PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Flowers are scarce this week. Mums from California are a big help. There has never been such a shortage of mums in Seattle as there is this year, where at this time the market usually has been flooded. This year there is nothing, growers demanding almost twice as much for a poorer grade of stock. It looks at the present time as though the retailers will have the holidays on top of them with about half enough cut stock to meet an expected heavy demand. The demand for funeral work has got back to normal once more, but it was a long, hard grind for everybody in the trade for about six weeks.

Various Notes.

George Rosaia returned last week from a month's vacation in California. He reports business on the boom in the sunny south

The Stuber-Richardson Co. has added a new house to its range at Bryn Mawr. The house is 37x200 feet, with hot water heat. The initial crop will be cucumbers.

Rosaia Bros. have a fine lot of pot plants and novelties for the holidays, at their range at Thomas, Wash.

Mrs. Ghilarducci, of the California Florist, Tacoma, was a visitor in the city. She reports business good.

YAKIMA, WASH.

The Market.

Business in general is good, owing to the large number of cases of influenza, resulting in heavy funeral work, which cleans up all stock daily. Large shipments of California mums are arriving. Violets are in good demand, although the quality of the stock is not the best. Greenhouse violets from Spokane are offered, but they move slowly. Local sweet peas find a ready sale at fancy prices. The supply is limited, but the quality is fine. Mums are in fine form and the growers look for a big cut for Thanksgiving.

Various Notes.

The State Floral Co. has opened an attractive shop on North Second street in charge of W. R. Cord, who is a member of the firm, having come here a year ago from the State Nursery Co., Helena, Mont., where he had years of experience in the florists' business. A good future is predicted for the new venture. Mrs. Murphy, formerly of Victoria, B. C., is assisting in the store.

Fred Young, of Portland, Ore., is visiting in the city this week. Mr. Young is planning to take down the greenhouses he purchased recently in Portland and rebuild them on his tract of land on Sixteenth avenue. He is assured of a welcome from the trade.

The force at the flower shop of Bourn & Sons has been working overtime getting out funeral orders from neighboring towns. Vernon Bourn has gone to Seattle, where he expects to go to work in the shipyards, leaving J. L. Bourn sole representative of the firm, Harold Bourn having enlisted in the navy at the beginning of the war. J. L. B.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

A peculiarity of the market this week has been the large number of orders sent in from distances too great for satisfactory shipping. Canadian orders and orders from the northern points of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan can hardly be taken care of without great risk and, as there is a big local demand, such orders in most cases have been refused. It is impossible, in fact, to fill all the orders that come through from what might be termed legitimate territory. Carnations have been particularly short some days and other days there has been a scarcity of mums or roses. There has hardly been a day when something was not in overdemand. Orchids are practically out of the market since labiatas have been over. There are some Percivaliana, but they are small and Trianæ will be the next to come in good supply. Sweet peas are arriving in small lots and the little Brunner roses from under glass are nice for corsages. There is no valley on the market. Camellias are coming in and there is some demand for them. Gardenias are in short supply. Heather is beginning to make its appearance and while it has not yet come to its best color, it is useful in funeral work and for choice baskets. The price keeps up well, especially for Erica melanthera, the most attractive and best form for winter use.

Towards the end of the week everything shortened up still more and it has been impossible for wholesalers to fill the orders that kept pouring in from all parts. The shortage of violets and mums is felt keenly. Local ferns gathered in the mountains in Los Angeles county are largely taking the place of the brake shipped in from Oregon and other northern points.

Various Notes.

Harry C. Morgan, of the force of F. Lichtenberg, announced the arrival at his home November 12 of a son. Bert Bateman, of the same store, is back at work after a seven-day siege of influenza.

J. Gordon has been down with influenza, but is reported better and all hope to see him back in his place at the store soon.

Mrs. Gutting, wife of C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery, is down with in-

The Market.

There has been a decided falling off in funeral work locally in the last week, but it cannot be said that the demand for flowers has slumped. Whether due to the peace negotiations, the end of the influenza epidemic, or both, the florists have noted a decided improvement in the call for flowers for home decoration, corsages and social uses generally, sufficient to keep them busy. The stock situation leaves nothing to be desired. There are enough flowers for all requirements, but nothing is in oversupply, and the average quality is good. Prices are firm all along the line. Chrysanthemums no longer dominate the market. The downpour of rain early in the week shortened up the receipts considerably, but arrivals are heavier again the last day or two, with the return of sunshine. Bonnaffon is gone, leaving the market short of good yellow mums, especially medium-priced ones, as Appleton fills the demand for large, fancy stock. The rain helped the violets noticeably. The arrivals now show excellent quality and clean up closely, the shipping demand being particularly heavy. Roses were never better here at this time of the year. There is a splendid cut of Russell, American Beauties, Ophelia and many other varieties, and each day sees the supply cleaned up closely. Carnations are getting more plentiful, but more good blooms could be used. Cut poinsettias made their appearance at the downtown shops November 19, the supply coming from the southern part of the state. The flowers are as good as any ever offered here for the Thanksgiving trade. Orders are being placed freely, as there is no misgiving as to whether they will clean up. Red berries seem to be scarce this year and the price is higher than usual. Flowering plants are none too plentiful either, although the nurseries are beginning to send in some nice seasonable specialties. Potted ferns promise to fill the gap nicely. Calla lilies are welcome, the market having been bare of lilies for many weeks.

Various Notes.

David Lichtenstein, the Terminal Florist, located opposite the Ferry building, is back on duty after being ill for a few days, during which time Mrs. Lichtenstein looked after the business. She admits she had her hands full, with funeral work pouring in, help sick and her husband ill. She is much relieved to see conditions getting back to normal, transient trade replacing funeral work to a considerable extent.

A. Figone, of Cohen & Figone, who conduct the flower stand in the Ferry building, returned recently from an extended trip to New York by automobile. He was gone four months, having visited many nurseries and florists' establishments en route. Mr. Cohen says his force worked hard to keep pace with the funeral orders which poured in when the "flu" epidemic was at its worst. Now he is gratified to see the commuters again showing interest in corsages, table decorations, etc., thus breaking the monotony and depressing effect of so much funeral work. Antone Bachi, one of the clerks at this establishment, has gone to Honolulu for his health. He is expected back December 15 to assist with the holiday rush. He was accompanied by Louis Costelligo, another member of the staff.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray reports business holding up well at her store in Geary street, near Larkin, and much more activity at her stands in the Clift and Whitcomb hotels than during the epidemic.

Albert O. Stein executed a handsome decoration at the Fairmont hotel a few days ago for the wedding of Miss Henderson, daughter of Senator Henderson, of Nevada, and Lieutenant Selby, of Oakland. A magnolia hedge made a pleasing background and quantities of large chrysanthemums were used. The bride's bouquet was of white Ostrich Plume, phalænopsis, cyclamen and gardenias. Mr. Stein reports much improvement in counter trade in the last week and the outlook much better for floral decoration since conditions have begun to readjust themselves to a peace basis. He figures there will be a great deal of entertaining this winter and more liberality shown in the purchase of flowers for home adornment than has been the case for many months.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee has been on the SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Flowers are more plentiful this week than last and, while the demand is still above normal, the supply is increasing. Chrysanthemums are in good supply and the prices remain high. Roses and carnations are still in great demand, but the shortage is being overcome.

Potted plants will be short for Thanksgiving, as cyclamens are about the only plants offered in any quantity.

Various Notes.

Mr. Bernson, of the Bernson & Halle Greenhouses, Glenrose station, states that he will be able to supply sweet peas by the first of next week. These will be the first offered on the Spokane market.

Mr. Rahn, of the Spokane Greenhouses, located at Marshall Junction, quietly evaded his many Spokane friends last week and, after being absent for a few days, returned to Spokane with a bride. Mr. Rahn is not much of a hand to advertise his plans, but is certainly clever in his selections.

The Spokane growers were visited last week by a clever swindler. He had a smooth line of talk that seemed to persuade a large per cent of our friends and in most cases extracted from them from $15 to $18. No doubt he would have continued his profitable sales, had it not been that one of the victims became suspicious of the magic that would grow geraniums, chrysanthemums and almost all indoor blooming plants by a light application of the wonderful "plant food." He started out and located the twentieth century salesman spreading his clever non-fertilizing production on the benches of a newly planted bed of carnations. The latter soon became confused by the appearance of his former victim, when he found that his words were being questioned by both the prospective and past customer. After his sale had been checked permanently there, he agreed to refund the money to the fortunate self-made detective, providing the party concerned would not advertise it to the other victims until he had left the city.

The report is that Seattle purchased several thousand pounds of this article, which proved to be of no value to the soil, plant or grower.

Walter Peters, of Peters & Son, Hillyard, Wash., has returned home after a long absence. Mr. Peters, feeling the force of Uncle Sam's demands for skilled help, went to the coast and has been in the shipbuilding line since last summer. R. W. N.

Club Meeting.

After an intermission of two months, the Portland Floral Society held one of the liveliest meetings November 19 in the history of the organization. Routine business had accumulated and required considerable attention. One new candidate for membership was proposed.

The action of the society remitting the dues of members in military service was extended to cover a case in which the most active member of a firm holding membership was in the war zone.

H. Niklas brought in a vase of White Maud Dean mums, which he said had been grown in a ground bed at Clackamas. A discussion arose as to the vitality of this variety now as compared with five or six years ago. Though the specimens shown were of excellent quality, it was generally conceded that this mum has depreciated in vigor.

Prof. Lovitt, of the entomological department of the Oregon Agricultural College, was present, with his assistant, Prof. Black, and led a discussion of methods of defense against the ravages of the marguerite fly and cyclamen grub.

It was shown that the fly was not in

Within the last year the florists' business in this region has made wonderful progress toward the standards of the larger cities. This is due partly to an awakening among the retailers and partly to the stimulus of the demand for higher-class stores, workmanship and efficient service. A few years ago this city did not have an independent retail florist. Small retailers were sharing show rooms in drug stores or real estate

J. Breitmeyer's Sons

26 and 28 Broadway — Member F. T. D.

It always is a pleasure for me to keep an eye personally on orders for Brother Florists.

PHILIP BREITMEYER.

"Say It with Flowers"—At the end of 30 days "Say It with a Check"

Florists Everywhere

Members of the F. T. D. and Others: Whenever you receive an order for flowers from another florist, fill the order. Give your customers and the other fellow's customers Service. Send something, even if only a letter, or call up the people to whom the flowers are to go and tell them that you have a message from their friends to deliver; tell them, if you must, that at the moment you are out of flowers, but will have some later and will send them then. Do business in a businesslike way.

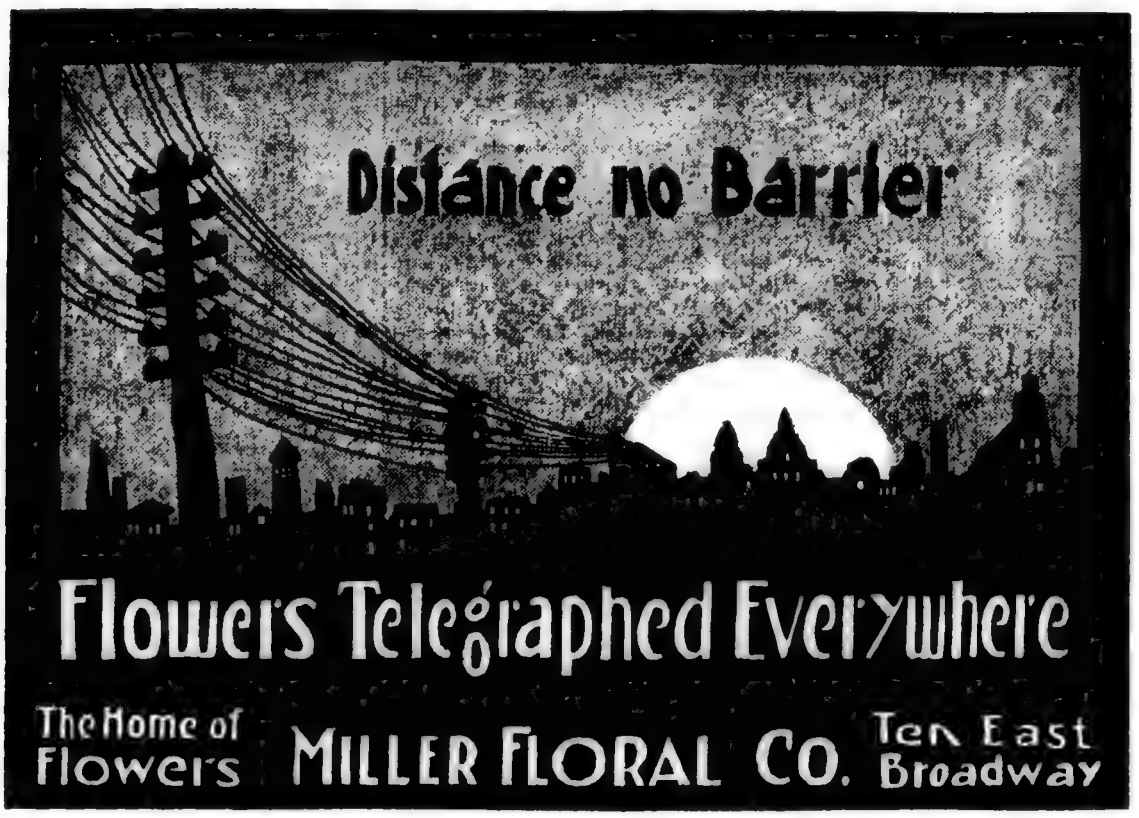
PUBLICITY AND PROGRESS

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

First Year Near End.

One month now to the end of the year. We are nearly $5,000 short of the $50,000 required to put the 1918 stage of our campaign over the top—or, had we better say, to the top?

Our committees have every reason to believe that subscriptions to complete the fund will not be wanting, and are going ahead with the program already laid out. Why? Because the reports coming in to our promotion bureau are such as to make even the man with cold blood enthuse. East, north, south, middle west and west, the feeling is that our publicity has had the effect of stimulating business to a remarkable extent. If it was possible to accomplish this result in times such as we have just passed through, what are we to expect in the better times which are before us? Already florists are asking why we did not start a campaign before. The answer is easy—we were not organized for the effort. Now, through the generous contributions of a large number of whole-hearted florists, we have approached a point where we may well consider ourselves organized, and our work is having a telling effect. We want to keep going. We want our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," to be continually in the public mind, and we are proceeding in the right way to accomplish it.



Must Complete the Fund.

But we must have the requisite funds to fully attain our object. We have had to anticipate the little shortage we are complaining of. Surely there are enough good souls among the large number of florists who have not yet subscribed to help us reach our goal. No matter whether a retail florist or a grower, the fund is worthy of support. It should be remembered that some florists have contributed as much as $500. There's faith for you. And these same florists are satisfied that they have had their money's worth in increased business. The more money, the more publicity, and the bigger the volume of business.

Help now, when help is most wanted.

Take advantage of our direct aid service. Use the newspaper electrotypes we have provided and connect your establishments with the magazine advertising. Display our signs and popularize our slogan in your community. Our Christmas advertisement in a number of national magazines will bring business to your door if you will run our newspaper electrotype in your local newspapers. Send us $1 and one will be mailed to you right away. Get your advertising going early and you will not want for Christmas trade.

John Young, Sec'y.

Here's Another Good Telegraph Delivery Ad.

DISTANCE NO BARRIER.

Robert Newcomb, manager of the new Miller Floral Co. store, Salt Lake City, Utah, is pushing the F. T. D. in the store's newspaper advertising and in so doing has coined a new phrase descriptive of the telegraph service. It is, "Distance no barrier; flowers telegraphed everywhere." In a recent advertisement this phrase, together with the name of the store, was placed over the silhouette of a city, with numerous telegraph wires extending from the foreground to the back. Mr. Newcomb is an enthusiastic believer in the value of the F. T. D. and is pushing it in his territory.

HOW TO BE A BETTER MAN.

"Be at war with your vices, be at peace with your neighbor, and let every new year find you a better man." Thus spoke Ben Franklin and aptly does the precept apply to present conditions pertaining to our publicity campaign.

In the beginning of this venture we were met with opposition on the part of those who considered the time inopportune for the inauguration of advertising on an extensive scale. Those who believed otherwise joined in and reaped benefits by supporting the program as outlined. This project will continue to grow to much larger proportions, so that we may yet see every man connected with the florists' business finding himself a better man through giving his share toward the general publicity fund, which will result in his receiving even more than he gave.

I have yet to see it fail that the man who had the breadth of vision to contribute to a good cause received more

FLASH SIGNS MAY FLASH.

Among many other acts of the administration looking to the restoration of a normal condition of industry and the adaptation of resources to civilian uses, the order of the Fuel Administration rescinding the ban on the use of electricity which made necessary the "lightless nights," among other privations, is one that will go far to restore a cheerful appearance to the streets and thoroughfares of city and town, besides expediting the convenience of the people in various ways. It also will enable the florists to utilize one of the most effective mediums of publicity. Electric flash signs and the use of electricity for advertising purposes generally will receive an impetus from the lifting of the prohibition and some fine effects may be looked for in the revival of prewar methods of publicity. The order was promulgated November 21 and was effective November 23.

and it is interesting to note that the $3 and $4 sizes are the most popular in advance orders. Roses are in fair supply at prices running from $6 to $12 per hundred. Indications point to a demand that will be equal to the supply. Carnations are in fine condition and enjoy a growing demand at satisfactory prices. They have held steadily at $6 per hundred for the best since October and the increased supply renders higher prices unnecessary. Green goods, while moving satisfactorily, are not enjoying the demand that obtained in former years. Smilax especially is moving slowly and the majority of shipments are going to large wholesale centers for resale.

Various Notes.

Far-sighted members of the trade are attempting to foresee the conditions of supply and demand for December, and diverse and interesting are the conclusions arrived at. Some of them predict a stagnant condition and consequent low-price level up to a week before Christmas. Peace and the abatement of the "flu" epidemic compose the deadly duet that will preclude any acceleration of demand, in their opinion. Others are of the opinion that stock will be abundant and demand immense. Another element believes that a resumption of the conditions of last October will occur and reflection confirms the logic of this prediction. Mums will be practically out of the market. Roses will be in small supply, as those succeeding the October crop will not have time to mature, and carnations and other stock will be in such a stage of development as to make it impossible for them to fill the void created by the exhaustion of the mums. The demand is sure to be good. The revival of entertaining in social circles assures that. Hence it seems that the wheels of business will revolve at a rapid pace for both retailer and wholesaler, with the advantage in the hands of the latter, perhaps.

MISSISSIPPI
STEMME & SONS HATTIESBURG

J. G. Layton, of Olean, N. Y., paid the market a visit last week and astonished us all with some blooms from a new geranium plant he originated, a deep rose-pink bloom, double and exceptionally long of stem, rising from a small, compact plant with heavy foliage. "A sure bloomer for Memorial day," Mr. Layton remarked. As soon as a medium supply is worked up, Mr. Layton intends to sell the stock to some large establishment for development and dissemination. He reports business at his store as brisk, commenting on the good luck he is having with prompt deliveries of shipments from distant wholesale centers.

"October business was double that of October, 1917, and November so far is double that of October," Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff, of Erie, Pa., says, a statement borne out by the unceasing rush from morning till night at her store. A fine batch of geranium cuttings at the greenhouses elicited a statement that explains in part her wonderful success. Mrs. Schluraff says that she always obtains her cuttings from the plants she sells to large organizations for ground decoration on the basis of ten per cent discount for the privilege, with the understanding that culture will be attended to during the summer months. "This arrangement," she says, "makes unnecessary the saving of plants for stock and also saves a good deal of summer work."

Mr. Hoehl, of S. S. Skidelsky & Co., visited this territory last week and reports business as greatly in excess of expectations. Ever since peace was assured, Mr. Hoehl said, the general tendency among the florists he called on seems to be to buy heavily in preparation for future events and quality is considered before price. C. N. C.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

There is a pronounced shortage of stock of all varieties, owing to the increase in funeral work, together with the dark skies and damp atmosphere, which have retarded production. The local chrysanthemum and pompon houses are now practically cut out and outside shipments are entirely eliminated. Lilies continue scarce and Paper White narcissi, which normally would be in evidence at this season, have failed to put in an appearance. Fortunately, American Beauty roses, especially of the medium and short-stemmed varieties, are more plentiful than for some time, although the supply still is inadequate. Violets form the one exception of flowers which are not moving ahead of requirements; they seem to be less favored than for several seasons. Naturally prices are higher, roses averaging $6 to $15, while carnations are $5 and $6 per hundred at the wholesale markets. There is an unusual demand for supplies of all kinds, especially everything in the basket line.

Various Notes.

The McCallum Co., Inc., is adding a large display window, primarily for the exhibition of artificial products. Miss Gertrude Becker, of the firm's auditing department, has been absent from the store for the last fortnight owing to the illness and death of her mother.

Another recent death was that of Richard Gast, the husband of Mrs. Alice Gast, designer for the Ludwig Floral Co. Mrs. Gast has been with relatives in Bethlehem, Pa., but is expected to return to the store December 1. Her

A representative of Cohen & Hiller's New York city ribbon house called on the trade last week. Mr. Rosenfeld was another recent New York visitor, representing Wertheimer Bros.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Ludwig entertained at a large family dinner November 17 in joint celebration of their birthday anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Pearsoll, of South Brownsville, are both ill. Meanwhile Mrs. Pearsoll's mother is supervising their business as best she can, the demands being unusual, owing to funeral work. Harry O. Irwin, in Monessen, is having a similar experience, Mrs. Irwin and their son looking after the business during the illness of the proprietor.

Frederick W. Henninger, treasurer of I. W. Scott & Co., has returned to the store after two weeks' illness. Vice-president L. Frank Post, who was attacked by influenza at Grove City, Pa., has returned to his office. He was taken ill while en route from a business trip through western New York and sections of Pennsylvania, where he found business conditions fair.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. are among the few retail firms hereabouts which have had enough chrysanthemums of their own growing to depend on this season. While a few blooms were requisitioned from the wholesale growers, the bulk of the stock was supplied from two large

WHAT TO DO WITH A GLUT.

[A paper read before the St. Louis Florists' Club at its meeting October 4, by C. W. Wors.]

The grower is the one most affected by a glut. It is important that he, as the producer, should know at all times whether his returns for the flowers shipped to the market reimburse him sufficiently for his investment, time and labor. He should keep as complete an account as possible of his receipts and expenditures, needless to say.

Perhaps in these war times production is not so heavy as in normal times, but that there will be a glut now and then under any circumstances is certain. So we should be prepared for it with some kind of system to prevent demoralization or injury to the legitimate florists' business. The grower, the wholesaler and the retailer each is dependent upon both of the others; but the onus of the situation falls principally on the grower, in my humble opinion. Therefore the grower should exercise care before taking his flowers to the market. He should endeavor to have them in A-1 condition. He should bunch them carefully, for one thing, and avoid putting any cripples in the bunch in order to make up the count.

Injurious Practices.

The wholesaler frequently keeps leftovers in his iceboxes. Once or twice a week he may unload this stock on some merchant, to be disposed of at prices below the market. I will say nothing of the street faker, for St. Louis does her faking either in the downtown stores or in the department stores, which for advertising purposes sell flowers at such low figures as to put the legitimate florists in an unenviable position.

We frequently hear talk about giving the poor people a chance to buy flowers. This is good propaganda for the wholesaler. He loses nothing by it; in fact, he unloads his flowers. In many cases the flowers sold at reduced prices are in a condition, however, that reflects no credit on the vocation of floriculture and the purchaser of the flowers gets disgusted when he takes them home and finds them in poor condition. He is apt to consider thereafter that the purchase of flowers is a wasteful expenditure of money.

I will cite an instance of poor judgment in disposing of the surplus, which occurred just before Mothers' day, when Enchantress carnations were retailed at 25 cents for two dozen. The next day, Mothers' day, 4 to 6 cents were the prices asked by the wholesalers for carnations. These fluctuations in prices of flowers are matters the general public never will understand and they inevitably react in a manner injurious to the trade as a whole.

A Better Way.

If the grower has a surplus of flowers, let him be the dispenser of charity himself. Let him distribute his left-overs to the city institutions or to individual cases he may know of. Let him give his flowers to public hospitals only, however, so as not to conflict with the retailer, who gets orders from persons who can afford to pay for flowers and also to pay their way at private hospitals. Let flowers be sold always at fair prices. Gluts last only for a short time. If a retailer desires to sell his flowers at cut rates, he has the privilege. Let him curtail his own profits if he sees fit, but let him not ask the grower to be the loser with him, as the growing of the stock most certainly entitles the grower to a fair profit, at least, for his time and labor.

Coöperation Needed.

We have, I believe, a Retailers' Association in St. Louis. What is it doing about this most important matter? Sim-act according to this slogan, we must get together, growers, wholesalers and retailers, and organize for the uplift of our vocation in all lines. Then will the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," become a power and a benefit to grower, wholesaler and retailer alike.

Manistee, Mich.—The annual chrysanthemum show of Joseph Clarkson, at his greenhouses, surpassed any former one this enterprising florist has held. There was an excellent assortment of well-grown mums and the visitors were numerous and appreciative. "Up here where we are supposed to be nothing but lumberjacks," said Mr. Clarkson, "we try to 'keep the home fires burning' in these strenuous times, so we are boosting our most loved profession." Local newspapers gave Mr. Clarkson's mum show much publicity.

act according to this slogan, we must get together, growers, wholesalers and retailers, and organize for the uplift of our vocation in all lines. Then will the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," become a power and a benefit to grower, wholesaler and retailer alike.

Manistee, Mich.—The annual chrysanthemum show of Joseph Clarkson, at his greenhouses, surpassed any former one this enterprising florist has held. There was an excellent assortment of well-grown mums and the visitors were numerous and appreciative. "Up here where we are supposed to be nothing but lumberjacks," said Mr. Clarkson, "we try to 'keep the home fires burning' in these strenuous times, so we are boosting our most loved profession." Local newspapers gave Mr. Clarkson's mum show much publicity.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ONE of the strongest concerns in Detroit is the Standard Accident Insurance Co., incorporated in 1884. Lem W. Bowen is president and D. M. Ferry II is vice-president.

SOME destructive bean diseases, including pod-spot, are carried in the seed; so it is extremely important to observe the general rule that no seed should be saved from diseased plants. Never save seed from pods which are not bright and clean.

THE new warehouse of the Balcom Seed Co., Greeley, Colo., is provided with modern equipment and is a model of convenience. This concern gives employment to eighty-five hands, besides outside help. Weld county, in which it is located, is the home of the warehouses of three other companies dealing in seed beans, for which crop the climatic conditions are favorable.

CHARGES FOR PACKING.

The buyers of bulbs this season have not as yet had much to say about the costs added to the price of bulbs—doubtless because their breath was completely taken away! But returning consciousness is bringing with it a splutter that indicates that it will be a long time before the last is heard of the subject. It was natural that the cost should be greater than heretofore, because the shipments could be made only by way of England, involving trans-shipment, but no one was prepared for the number, variety or size of the items charged for. In many instances the charges seem to have been without rhyme or reason, but in one particular there is notable uniformity: All the Holland exporters appear to have made a uniform charge of $3 per case for the box and packing material. When it is considered that the exports to America totaled 18,000 cases it becomes apparent that the exporters thereby added to their invoices the rather tidy sum of $54,000. Even in a country notoriously without wood, $54,000 should buy quite a few boxes; to say the least, the frugal Hollander lost nothing.

Our French friends appear to have missed a bet. The packing charges for the French bulbs were somewhat less than $1 per case.

ON FIXING RESALE PRICES.

Affecting Packet Seeds.

In view of the disposition of the Federal Trade Commission to take cognizance of the custom of the commission box seed houses in fixing prices on their wares, as shown by the recent complaint against D. M. Ferry & Co., the statement of the attitude of that body will be of interest to many seedsmen. Such a statement was made at Cleveland last week by William B. Colver, chairman. He said in part:

As to Resale Price Maintenance.

"We of the Federal Trade Commission have not been unmindful of the fact that resale price maintenance has been a subject of great concern to many business men. A contest has been on between two schools of business thought and the Federal Trade Commission found itself in the unenviable position of being required, under its plain duty as expressed in the law, to take up its abode in No Man's Land, a land, as you know, noted principally for shell-holes, barbed wire and gas and where he who occupies it is fair target for the snipers on either side.

"It does not appear to be beyond debate to say that any man should have both the right to fix and to maintain a resale price. A price to be maintained must be known to be a just, a fair and reasonable price. It would seem, then, that the proponents of the Stephens Bill would find their interests fully served and the interests of the public, among whom are their retail dealers, unimpaired, if the manufacturer either fixed a price which he deemed to be a proper resale price, and committed the maintenance of such price to another and disinterested agency; or, perhaps better still, if the manufacturer were given the right to maintain a resale price, by refusal to deal with the violators of such price, provided such resale price were fixed by or was the subject of review by a disinterested agency. A fixed price, with power by law to maintain it, should have in it these elements: The element of reasonable profit to the producer for the service which he performs and the capital he employs; the element of reasonable and fair profit to the retailer for the service which he performs, and these two fair and reasonable profits added to a manufacturing cost, based upon efficient and economic methods, would result in the third element, a fair and reasonable price to the consumer.

The Colgate Case.

"And now a word about the Colgate case, in which you are all especially interested and in which, naturally, the Federal Trade Commission is likewise deeply interested.

"This case, although only recently decided, has been the subject of earnest study and thought by the commission, and I have asked Governor Fort, the dean of the commission, a man deeply learned in the law, to reduce to writing the result of our study and discussion of this case. Governor Fort says:

It does not appear that the decision of the District court, in the case of the United States vs. Colgate & Co., has any effect upon the question of resale prices under the Clayton Act or the act creating the Federal Trade Commission.

The act under which the Colgate indictment was found is the Sherman Act, passed in 1890, and a careful reading of the opinion of Judge Waddell in the Colgate case fails to show any decision except such as relates to a criminal proceeding under the Sherman Act. The only question decided by the court, as the opinion will show, was whether under the Sherman Act "a manufacturer of a given article may not, without incurring criminal liability, refuse absolutely to sell the same at any price, or to sell at a named sum to a customer, with the understanding that such customer will resell only at an agreed price between them"; and whether, "should the customer not observe the understanding as to retail (resale) prices, exercise his (seller's) undoubted right to decline further to deal with such persons." Civil liability is in no way mentioned in the opinion. The Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act are, neither of them, mentioned in the opinion. These acts provide only civil offense penalties.

Under Section 3 of the Clayton Act, it is expressly enacted that "it shall be unlawful * * * to sell or contract for sale of goods, wares and merchandise, * * * or fix the price charged therefor, or discount from or rebate upon, such prices, on condition, agreement or understanding * * * where the effect of such * * * sale, or contract for sale, or such condition, * * * may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce."

And Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act reads as follows: "Unfair methods of competition in commerce are hereby declared unlawful."

It would seem that it is an unfair method of commerce to sell to a customer an article for which he pays, and to whom the title passes, upon the sale, with any condition or restriction as to the terms upon which he in turn may sell.

"Under the Sherman Law a manufacturer may, unless the refusal is in furtherance of an unlawful plan, sell or refuse to sell at his pleasure. Under the Clayton Law, not so. Under the Common Law a man has an inalienable right to deal lawfully with his own property. The retailer, owning his merchandise, may, bona fide, sell at any price or give away and, under the Clayton Law, he must not be discriminated against."

Seems to Let Seedsmen Out.

Although the Federal Trade Commission haled to its bar of justice one of the largest and, it is believed, most honorable of the seed trade's members, it seems that Chairman Colver's statement constitutes an O. K. on the seed trade's methods. The custom of all who put up packet seeds for the commission box trade is to retain title to the seeds until they are sold to the planter; the retailer merely is the agent of the seedsman and at no time holds title to the seeds, supposing, of course, that the commission agreement actually accomplishes its purpose.

Occasionally a price-cutter somewhere sells out the stock of seeds, with which he has been provided, at prices less than those printed on the packets and tenders settlement otherwise than in the terms of the agreement. A cut-price sale of seeds bearing a well-known label invariably brings a protest from others selling the same line on commission, who will not handle it at cut rates, and the seedsman, to protect his own business, is compelled to take his line away from the price-cutter. Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, England.—"Novelties and Specialties for 1919," an illustrated, supplementary catalogues of vegetable and flower seeds. Knull Floral Co., Tampa, Fla.—"Catalogue Number 1," an attractive, well illustrated 32-page book. It is suitable for the use of both agents and customers and represents all branches of the company's business, offering greenhouse and outdoor plants, palms and other decoratives, ornamental nursery stock, bouquets, sprays, wreaths and designs. fluenza, but Mr. Gutting and their daughter are reported improving.

After repeated setbacks, owing to influenza and closing orders, it has finally been decided to open the Liberty fair November 23, and the flower show committee has been called upon for a hurry-up decision as to dates and exhibits. Naturally with such a short time to prepare, and in view of the fact that much of the stock has passed its prime, the members had a hard row to hoe, especially as T. Wright, the former chairman, had to be out of town, and C. Gutting, one of the real hustlers, was down with influenza. This left it up to F. R. Hills, F. Lichtenberg and H. R. Richards to lick the thing into shape, which they hope to do by the opening date of the flower show, November 27. Many of those who promised to exhibit suffered from chill in the pedal extremities, but others are standing loyally by their promises. Dahlias being out of the market and the mums so nearly gone, will of course greatly diminish the display.

Preparedness is always a virtue and F. R. Hills was well prepared for the big rush of orders for ferns which have been coming to him of late. Mr. Hills always manages to hold his old customers and take care of the new ones as well.

H. Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena, notes a livening up on business, especially among his clientele at the principal hotels in the Crown City.

The H. N. Gage Co., Inc., of Montebello, is propagating and will exhibit a new sport of Nephrolepis Teddy, Jr. It is a crested form, growing erect, and it is a distinct variety. It was originally detected in a batch of the parent kind by W. Squires, who was in the employ of the Gage Co. for fourteen years. Mr. Squires has been overseas during the greater part of the war. Mr. Gage probably will name the fern for him when it is ready for dissemination.

SALT LAKE CITY.

offices. Now there are the Lambourne Floral Co., the Huddart Floral Co., L. C. Miller, etc., each occupying an up-to-date store independently. However, there is one essential lacking in this district. That is a nursery business. All the retailers in this and smaller cities in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming are looking to find sufficient stock from Salt Lake markets and supplies are always short in all seasons. During the war all the retailers in this region suffered from the difficulty experienced in obtaining sufficient stock and the only way they could fill orders satisfactorily was by obtaining stock from California. There is room for a number of nurserymen to operate profitably in this region. Coal is cheap, water plentiful, railroad facilities splendid, the soil fine and the climate better than in more densely populated regions. The demand for flowers is immense all through the year. Growers are getting better prices for flowers here than in any other state of the Union at any time. The public and the retailers want more growers, more greenhouses and a larger supply.

The "flu," which swept over this region recently, was reported to be under control, but it has returned and cases are reported daily now in large numbers. Of course this unfortunate occurrence has brought a heavy demand for flowers. Market prices of flowers are higher now than last week. The last few days of cloudy weather and short supplies from California both contributed to reduce stocks to the point of distress.

Various Notes.

The death of Miss Mabel G. Atkin, of Pocatello, Ida., is noted in the obituary column.

The Salt Lake Florists' Association held its meeting at the store of the Huddart Floral Co. November 20 to discuss the matter of donations of flowers to the Red Cross and other charity organizations. The plans of the florists will be reported in the next issue.

The president of the "Church of Latter Day Saints," Joseph F. Smith, commonly known as the president of the Mormon church, died November 19 at the age of 80 years. President Smith being also the head of many Mormon institutions, such as banks, an insurance company, schools, wholesale and retail business institutions, and several social organizations, his funeral will be one of the most elaborate ever held in this city. The florists are making all possible preparations to meet a heavy demand for funeral work. The date of the funeral has not been announced.

FRAT-M

FRATERNAL EMBLEMS.

What are they?

They are 4-inch reproductions of Fraternal Emblems embossed in gold and the colors demanded by each Fraternal Order

How are they used?

They are attached to the ribbon or chiffon of any floral offering.

Why are they of such help to the Florist?

They save flowers, as the colors demanded by each Order are embossed on the Frat-M. They save wire designs; for instance, any plain spray with a Frat-M attached becomes a fraternal piece. Think of what this means, with a shortage of wire and flowers as scarce and high as they will be the coming winter. They save lettering. Think of that. If attached to door badges alone, they are worth many times their cost.

What do they cost?

They cost 20c each, or $2.00 a dozen cash, and should retail for 50c each, or $6.00 per dozen. An order of two dozen ($4.00 cash) gets the exclusive use of Frat-M's for one year in cities of 25,000 or less. They can be bought from your wholesale supply house, or the

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

THE real estate columns of the Chicago daily papers record a loan to William A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, of $80,000, payable in five years, with interest at five per cent, secured on seventy-four acres adjoining the nursery. This is to enable Mr. Peterson to complete a subdivision development started just before the war, when Mr. Peterson sold the acreage to a firm of subdividers, who soon found themselves in deep water. The nurseryman took over the project to save anybody a loss.

NURSERY STOCK PRICES.

E. B. Drake Discusses Them.

That the law of supply and demand should not operate in fixing the prices of nursery stock, but that nurserymen instead should base them on the cost of production, is the contention of E. B. Drake, proprietor of the Cumberland Nurseries, Winchester, Tenn. Mr. Drake says that "nurserymen should establish a schedule of prices that are uniform and then stick to them."

"It is my conclusion that in this era of better prices some business methods should be devised which would lift the nurseryman's price schedule above the fluctuations of supply and demand, thus stabilizing the business," says Mr. Drake. "It seems to me that the law of supply and demand is not a natural law like the law of gravitation, but rather a matter of business practice. The price derived from supply and demand does not represent the value, or cost of production, but is a matter of expediency. I believe that Adam Smith, when he enunciated his law of supply and demand, simply interpreted business conditions and practices as he found them at the time he published his 'Wealth of Nations,' which was in 1776, before the days of railroads, steamships, telegraph and swift postal service. I believe that it is a rule of thumb that will hamper any enterprise that does not realize that the whole tendency of modern business is towards the amalgamation of interests.

The Law of Supply and Demand.

"Adam Smith took land and labor as the sources of all wealth. All tillers of the soil, as I understand it, are exempted from the penalties of the Anti-Trust laws; they have the privilege of organizing and fixing prices without fear of hindrance. I believe that farmers will take advantage of this privilege and you will witness the maintenance of high price levels for all farm products.

"To dwell upon the organization of labor would be to carry coals to Newcastle. Moreover, I believe that relatively high wages must be allowed if you get that state of mind necessary to efficient work, to say nothing of contentment.

"It seems to me that nurserymen should establish a schedule of prices that are uniform, then stick to them. They have a right to unite upon a fair price, and if they do not go beyond a fair price in their demands they will not be molested.

"All lines of nursery stock with us are in short supply and active demand, and prices are better this year than they have been in recent years."

THE NEOSHO NURSERIES CO.

The Wm. P. Stark Nurseries Co., Neosho, Mo., has been reorganized and the name changed to the Neosho Nurseries Co., the officers of which are as follows: President and general manager, Josiah J. Hazen; vice-president and treasurer, C. E. Buehner; secretary, P. M. Ransom; directors, O. L. Cravens, C. E. Buehner, P. M. Ransom, W. P. Stark and Josiah J. Hazen.

William P. Stark has left Neosho and now is general manager of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal.

The new company has purchased the brick buildings at Neosho. They had been rented for several years and are used for the offices and packing houses. This purchase included the land surrounding the buildings, amounting to eight and one-half acres. The holdings of the company also have been increased by the addition of 180 acres and a number of good buildings to the nurseries ten miles east of Neosho.

MICHIGAN CONDITIONS.

"Our trade throughout the summer and fall has been satisfactory, a large percentage of the business for fall delivery running to ornamentals, which we grow extensively for landscape trade," says C. A. Krill, president and general manager of the Prudential Nursery Co., Kalamazoo, Mich. "We do not handle many fruits in the fall, but have as many orders, measured by dollars and cents, on the books now for spring delivery as we had a year ago at the middle of January. There is every probability that there will be sufficient winter trade to exhaust the supply of fruit stock well in advance of the planting season. Fruit trees of all kinds are scarce and should not be equal to the demand for at least two, and probably three years. There is also a lively demand for small fruits, with a decided underproduction of plants. With these conditions prevailing, together with scarcity of labor in the nurseries and increased cost of production, higher prices are certain.

"As to ornamentals, we have experienced a much livelier demand for deciduous shrubs than we anticipated early in the season, and this demand we expect to see increased now that the war is over. There will be for the spring trade a shortage of roses and some varieties of shrubs, vines and evergreens, which Europe usually furnishes to the American nurserymen. On the whole, the outlook appears bright for the nursery business."

New London, O.—R. E. Lee has a house comprising 1,600 square feet of glass which he has not been using, but in view of the removal of fuel restrictions he expects to put it in commission for the winter.

Evansville, Ind.—The Evansville Nurseries supplied the decoration for the convention of the War Mothers of America, which met in the Colosseum recently. It consisted of a flag composed of Crego asters in red, white and purple, the stars being formed of buds of white asters. It measured 3x5 feet and constituted a fitting emblem for the meeting of these patriotic mothers.

evidence in Oregon up to two years ago, but in this short time it has become a pest which must be checked. Prof. Lovitt described the life history and habits of the larvæ and adults, showing that they breed in May and June, during a period of five or six weeks. The same generation thus appears in all stages of development throughout the late spring, summer and early fall. Prof. Lovitt recommended spraying with nicotine solutions in the proportion of one to 400 parts, which he said had been used successfully in an experiment at an eastern college. Several members questioned the virtue of the spray so reduced in strength. One member advocated quassia chips and whale oil for outdoor use, but his experience did not cover plants under glass. Prof. Lovitt said the writer of the bulletin advocating the nicotine spray claimed that the one to 400 strength solution would penetrate the epidermis of the leaves and kill a large per cent of the larvæ, which were feeding on the plants.

The cyclamen grub has been giving trouble to the growers here for several years. The O. A. C. has been investigating methods of controlling it for two years. At present the college recommends sterilizing the soil by heat or chemicals, after the plants have been potted some time, as it is believed that while the eggs of the beetle forming the grub may be introduced with manure, such introduction is not usual.

J. H. Baehr read an article which he published recently in the local dailies, calling attention to the fact that growers of plants were longer-lived than other people, generally speaking, and that plants in the home, by giving warning, by drooping, of unsanitary conditions, tend to conserve health.

President Steele surrendered his chair to B. Tonseth, who immediately organized a kangaroo court, with T. W. Scott as prosecuting attorney and W. Thompson as bailiff, much to the diversion of the members. Fines exacted from several victims were ordered donated to the War Relief fund in the name of the society.

Various Notes.

The nights are growing colder, with heavy frosts, necessitating firing in the greenhouses.

PLENTY OF ILLINOIS COAL.

Raymond E. Durham, State Fuel Administrator for Illinois, has notified the county fuel administrators throughout the state to inform all florists that they may have all the bituminous coal in prepared sizes they want in addition to the fifty per cent allotment allowed under the restriction order of last April. While permission to florists to secure a full quota of coal was given by U. S. Fuel Administrator Garfield several weeks ago, the order made it optional with the state administrators to put it into effect, or withhold it, as local conditions warrant.

The order relating to coal for florists, sent by Administrator Durham to the county administrators, is as follows:

"Owing to the fact that Illinois is in a more favorable position in relation to its fuel supply than many other states, and that because of the work which you have so ably assisted us in doing this summer in preparing for the exigencies of the winter we are prepared to definitely state that in our opinion there is no danger of any shortage of coal for the domestic consumer in Illinois, some restrictions heretofore existing as conservation measures can be lifted.

"You are therefore authorized to announce that florists are permitted to receive and burn bituminous coal without having such fuel apply on their fifty per cent quota, as defined by the fuel administration curtailment order of April 24, 1918, whenever there is a surplus of such fuel which in your opinion can be spared for such purpose. If you need assistance in procuring this fuel, please notify our dealers' distribution department."

ONE TANK FOR TWO SYSTEMS.

I wish to get a little advice on a proposed change in my heating system. My residence has been heated from the greenhouse boilers, which are about forty feet from the residence. There is a 42-gallon expansion tank in the attic of the residence. The tank is about twenty-two feet above the top of the boilers, which are in a pit. I find that I cannot heat the residence satisfactorily with the present equipment. In severe weather there is not enough boiler capacity. At other times, when little or no heat is needed in the greenhouses, I have to keep large boilers going to heat the residence.

My plan is to install a separate boiler in the residence and the question that troubles me is this: Would it be advisable to connect the new boiler to the present expansion line, leading to the attic of the residence, or to put in a separate expansion tank for the residence boiler? Would you leave the present tank in the attic, where it is twenty-two feet above the boilers, or move it to

KROESCHELL BOILERS

Will put high temperatures into your heating lines.

Kroeschell Tubeless Boilers

It will pay you to consider the advantages of KROESCHELL BOILERS for Hot Water or Steam no matter how large or small the size of your establishment.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

The high safety factor of KROESCHELL BOILERS eliminates the danger of cracking and break-down risks.

Successful greenhouse owners everywhere insist upon KROESCHELL BOILERS because they are dependable and economical—you get better and longer service—you can reduce your heating costs by burning the cheapest grades of soft coal.

It is a sign of scientific management to own a KROESCHELL—a business management that insures a responsive, efficient and profitable heating system.

The supremacy of KROESCHELL BOILERS is proven by their country-wide adoption.

It Nurses Along Your Coal Pile

THERE are days when you first start firing in the fall, and continue in the late spring, when half your fire would be plenty. Still you want it lively enough so it will start up quickly to meet sudden changes.

Running a low banked fire on the entire grate is not satisfactory.

There is a needlessly large bed of coals, most of it mostly asleep.

With the Burnham, the grates shake half at a time—a front half and a back half. You can bank the back half with ashes, and run the front half. It gives you a complete control of a body of coal that will slumber along, or start up in a jiffy.

Saves you coal. Saves you bother. Saves you anxiety.

the service building, where it would be only three or four feet above the highest flow line in the greenhouses?

V. E. C.—Pa.

It will be entirely feasible to connect both boilers to the present expansion tank. There is no objection to having the tank elevated and at some distance from the radiating system, provided there is no danger that the tank or connecting pipe will freeze. There is often a decided advantage in the extra elevation, as it tends to increase the temperature to which the water may be raised before it will boil, and thus lessens the danger of "boiling over," at the same time increasing the heating efficiency of the system, especially in extremely cold weather.

Provided the main flow and return pipes are amply large to allow a free circulation of the water through the coils, and provided the size of the boilers is properly adjusted to the amount of radiation, good results may be obtained when the expansion tank is only three or four feet above the highest point in the flow pipes, if the top of the boiler is below the lowest coil. However, unless there is some objection which is not evident in the inquiry, we would advise using the same expansion tank for both systems.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

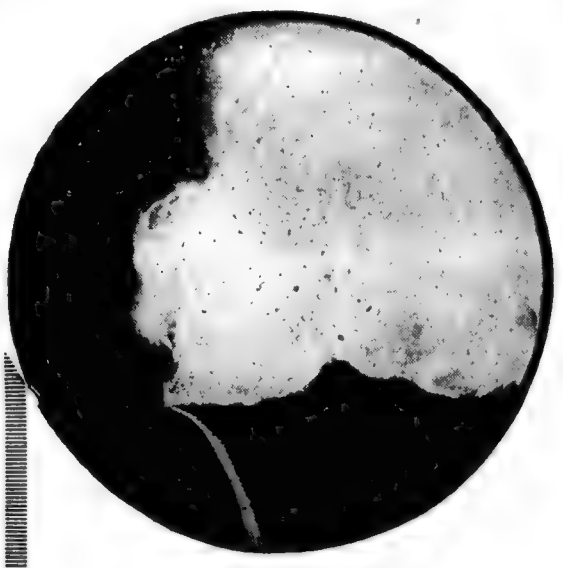
sick list as the result of overwork, but she is expected back at the store again in a few days. Meanwhile business is reported good by her staff. A good many chrysanthemums are still being shipped daily and violet shipments are gaining in proportions rapidly as the season advances.

The California Floral Co., on California street, near Hyde, is looking forward to an excellent Thanksgiving trade and is making preparations accordingly.



G. Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., Seattle, Wash., has returned home after spending a month in San Francisco. His brother, P. L. Rosaia, with the Art Floral Co., in this city, was home for a week taking care of other members of the family down with influenza. He escaped and is back on duty as usual.

Julius Eppstein, who conducts the flower stand in the St. Francis hotel, expected to be called for army service before this, but doubts now whether he will even get to the training camp. During the epidemic there was practically no call for flowers, he says, except funeral orders, so it seems good to have interest return in social work. He has a nice wedding decoration for next month.

Mr. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, looks for a good Thanksgiving business, on the assumption that people have much to be thankful for this year and will feel disposed to buy liberally. He also anticipates a banner Christmas trade. After the rush of funeral work, he says it is a great relief to have conditions return to normal. One day recently his firm made five palls, besides a large number of floral pieces.

Everything is in readiness at B. M Joseph's for a banner Thanksgiving business. A specialty will be made of fancy basket arrangements.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says that while there are not nearly so many funerals per day as was the case for three or four weeks, there is still a big call for funeral work, which he attributes to the fact that burials are not so rushed now, thus giving people more chance to order flowers. He notes a decided change in the attitude of customers entering the store since the turn in international affairs. There is more inclination toward joyousness and less inclination to curtail on expenditures. Mr. Rossi looks for many parties and other social events to take place this winter, which will make for good business for the florists' trade. He says the demand for flowers held up well during the war times, but he does not question that peace conditions are more

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

conducive to good business in the florists' line. A yellow celosia plant, standing over six feet high, in the window of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.'s store, has attracted much attention.

Until the will of the late Mrs. Mary D. Boland, proprietor of the florists' store in Kearny street bearing the name of her late husband, J. B. Boland, is probated, the business will be continued as usual under the management of Charles Shellgrain.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, Cal., who in normal times makes frequent trips to San Francisco, paid his respects to the trade this week, after an absence of over a month, which he explained by the announcement that he had been too rushed with funeral work to get away. Seeing that he had lost ten pounds in weight since his last visit, his friends here accepted his explanation without comment, in view of the fact that some of them also tip the scales several pounds lighter as the result of the hard work of the last month, notably J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co. Mr. Ebel says his force not only had all the work it could handle locally during the influenza epidemic, but was called upon to ship quantities of flowers to outside points, which kept it on the job from early morning till 12 and 2 o'clock at night. He considers prospects excellent for good business with the return of peace. One of the most gratifying features in his estimation is that people generally are prosperous and not inclined to haggle over prices.

J. A. Axell, of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports stock clearing up daily and holiday orders for roses accumulating, especially for Russells and American Beauties. He is also shipping a good many violets.

Domoto Bros. have a nice cut of roses for Thanksgiving.

The rain stopped chrysanthemum shipments to distant points for a few days, but the United Flower & Supply Co. continued to fill orders to Sacramento, Stockton and other California cities without interruption. This firm is sending out a good many roses now and violet orders are on the increase.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., has no complaints to make about business, as shipping orders continue brisk and the local demand leaves nothing to be desired.

C. Kooyman considers the outlook for Thanksgiving business unusually good, and is also looking forward to a banner December trade. M. M.

PANSIES.

We have as fine a lot of pansies as we ever had, strong and well rooted, and are shipping by parcel post prepaid as it is much better. I ship insured so there is no chance for you to lose. Our prices are net. We pay all charges and give you as good plants as you get anywhere. The parent of these plants had thousands of blooms 3-in. across. Steele's Greenhouse Special, at $4.50 per 1000; Ozark Mammoth Strain, at $4.00 per 1000; Steele's Private Strain, $4.00 per 1000. Compare these prices and you will find they are as cheap as others are selling Trimardeau. You don't run any risk; if the postoffice does not deliver the goods in good shape notify me and you can get your money back, as I let the postoffice do my worrying.
These terms only when a postoffice money order accompanies your order. We have 500,000 of these plants, so if you will need any for spring, order this month, as these prices are only for November.

MOSS AS SURGICAL DRESSING.

The value of sphagnum moss as a surgical dressing is now generally known, and there are forty-five depots in Ireland to which the moss is sent to be made up into surgical dressings of standard sizes. Over 100 collecting stations scattered over the country supply moss to the Royal College of Science in Dublin. Nearly 1,000,000 finished articles made of this moss have now been exported, apart from the work done by the Ulster Sphagnum Moss Association. In 1915 the demand on the Irish organization came almost entirely from France, but gradually and steadily it increased, till now a constant stream of supplies goes to military hospitals in Ireland, England, France, Italy, Salonika, Egypt and Mesopotamia.

Mankato, Minn.—E. C. Willard, who had a freeze-up last year, now has his place in first-class shape and with, he thinks, sufficient heating capacity to carry him through even the most severe of seasons. His specialty is vegetables under glass, but he grows pansies and geraniums for spring trade and expects to develop a wholesale business in young stock.

Hark!
—they are calling you

—calling you, Mr. Florist, to lend a hand in the biggest undertaking of which the world has ever dreamed—the reconstruction of the whole world.

Who are they that call? They are all the cities, towns, villages and hamlets in the country. They are calling you, challenging you. DARING YOU. For—you are needed and —it's up to you to make good or make room for someone that can make good.

Look about you! On every hand, in every line of commercial activity there is the hum of preparation. Preparation, not for war, but for PEACE. Shops that have stood silent and empty for many months are beginning to resound to the sound of machinery that is to turn out peace-time products.

The ban has been lifted—the bars are down—the gates are open to the alive, the alert, the active, the worth-while men in every line. And the roll of these worth-while men in your line is being called now—today. Your name is on that roll and it's ringing out strong and clear. Are you going to answer?

There's only one way to answer yes, and that's to throw all your energies, enthusiasm, pep and punch into high gear and put every ounce of your being and force into your business with the object of making it the best business of its kind in your community, city, state or country.

You don't have to watch the Hindenburg line any more—but you do have to watch your own line—your eave line—your ridge and—if you want to be in strong—you want to watch THE AGMCO line.

HERE is a good example of our Pipe Frame double "Y" supported greenhouse. It is 35 feet 6 inches wide and has but two rows of supports through the center. It is amply strong to stand the severest storms and snows of winter.

It is one of the most economical houses to build and also one of the most economical to heat.

The erection of this house is very simple and, with our complete plans and instructions, it can be put up with ordinary mechanics such as are found around any town.

Let us give you an estimate on the cost of this type of house.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

RECONSTRUCTION CAMPS IN GREENHOUSES

Educating the American soldiers who were maimed in the fighting in France in some work that they are able to do is one of the things the United States government has undertaken. Growing flowers in greenhouses is one of the courses taught. Here is how they do it at Fort McPherson, Ga.

WHEN the maimed among the many thousands of wounded American soldiers reach home during the next few months they will find that Uncle Sam and his nephews are prepared to receive them. Not only will they get the enthusiastic welcome that is their due, but they will find that preparations have been made to take care of them until they have regained their strength and that then opportunities will be at hand to re-educate them in some useful and profitable occupations that they can do to become self-supporting.

Through the coöperation of the American Red Cross, Federal Board for Vocational Education, authorized by an act of congress, and the U. S. War Department, aided by many public spirited citizens, reconstruction "camps," as they are called, have been and are being established in many parts of the country.

Here the maimed soldiers, after they have been discharged from the hospitals and convalescent camps, will be welcome and given an opportunity to learn any one of many vocations that they physically are able to follow.

Teaching Our Work.

One of these vocations that already is being taught is that of growing flowers. So far few maimed soldiers have been returned to this country, and are attending the schools that have been established in greenhouse ranges near the army camps. There are, however, hundreds of soldiers who are convalescing from sickness and injury in the training camps attending the classes in floriculture. And to these pupils will be added as soon as they are able the men who have lost an arm or a leg, or otherwise have become unfitted for the occupation they followed before they entered the army.

This system of "re-education" was first adopted in the European countries that were at war with one another. Early in the hostilities the problem of caring for the maimed soldiers engaged the attention of the governments and schools of all kinds were established. What the armless, the legless, the blind and the otherwise mutilated men have accomplished is one of the many amazing things the war has produced. The results of this plan, however, have justified the belief that, except in extreme cases, there are things that these men can do to earn their living and something beside. It also solved the problem that has followed every war—caring for the disabled.

Profit by Europe's Experience.

When the United States entered the war, far-sighted men, profiting by the experience in the European countries, set out to establish similar reconstruction schools in the United States. And many of them now are in operation.

One of these is located at Fort McPherson, near Atlanta, Ga., in connection with U. S. Army General Hospital No. 6. After the various courses of instruction had been planned, and greenhouse flower and vegetable growing had been included in the curriculum, it was necessary to find a suitable "schoolroom" for the latter. For this purpose the C. A. Dahl Co., Atlanta, offered the use of a range of 60,000 square feet of glass. The illustration on this page shows the convalescent soldiers at work in the greenhouse. The illustration on the following page shows the Dahl range, where the soldiers daily attend "school."

The work at the Dahl range is described by Major John L. Riley, U. S. A., chief educational officer at the hospital, as "for curative purposes of convalescent patients of U. S. General Hospital No. 6, Fort McPherson, Ga." Of the work Major Riley says:

"The greenhouse work of U. S. Army General Hospital No. 6 is only one of a half dozen courses in agriculture conducted by the Reconstruction Division for the benefit of disabled soldiers. Among the other courses are vegetable gardening, on an 8-acre plot adjoining the hospital, cotton growing and fertilizing, conducted chiefly by excursions to surrounding farms and plants, farm mechanics, conducted within the hospital, where several thousand dollars' worth of machinery is used under a temporary tent, and farm tractor operation, which is taught in the midst of the wards, where a small plot of ground is being used for practice in running tractors.

Business Men Lend Aid.

"The machines for the course in farm mechanics and the farm tractors have been loaned to the Reconstruction Division by generous business men of Atlanta, who are deeply interested in promoting the welfare of the patients. Teaching the Maimed to Grow Flowers.

Business Men Lend Aid.

"The machines for the course in farm mechanics and the farm tractors have been loaned to the Reconstruction Division by generous business men of Atlanta, who are deeply interested in promoting the welfare of the patients. All the work in agriculture carried on by the Reconstruction Division is in charge of Sergeant George M. Darrow, who, before coming into the service, was employed in the United States Department of Agriculture as scientific expert in charge of small fruit investigations.

"Assisting Sergeant Darrow are seven enlisted men, several of whom, like the head of the department himself, are graduates of a state agricultural college and all of whom have had first-class experience in farming on a large scale. Of these eight instructors four are from the south, two from the west and two from the east, a proportion which nearly applies to the patients in the hospital who take the courses.

"The greenhouse work commenced October 24, the C. A. Dahl Co., of Atlanta, having generously turned over its entire Atlanta greenhouse range to the War Department. Camp Gordon and General Hospital No. 6 are coöperating in the running of this establishment, the hospital using it particularly for the purpose of providing curative and vocational work for such disabled soldiers as may be interested. The range consists of about twenty greenhouses, totaling over 60,000 square feet. In this large establishment the soldiers are given instruction in vegetable plant growing, cut flower production and vegetable forcing. Camp Gordon, through its reclamation division, furnishes the stable manure, and provides such labor as may be needed in addition to that of convalescent patients. Both Camp Gordon and General Hospital No. 6 will use the greenhouses to grow plants for the next year's farms.

Practical Growers as Teachers.

"Private Talhurst, a New York state greenhouse man, is in charge at the greenhouses for Camp Gordon; Private Carl Johnson, a Massachusetts greenhouse man, and Private Sandlin, graduate of Alabama Agricultural College, have been in charge of the groups of the convalescent patients.

"The patients are taken to the greenhouses each day in autos, leaving the hospital at 8 o'clock in the morning and returning about noon, the distance from the hospital to the greenhouses being about five miles. Several houses have already been planted to lettuce, mostly the Grand Rapids variety. There have also been planted onions, New Zealand spinach, radishes, tomatoes, etc. The flowers grown in the greenhouses and taken by General Hospital No. 6 as its share are used to brighten the hospital wards. The vegetables are sent to the soldiers' mess at the respective camps.

Greenhouse Course Popular.

"The course has been popular with the patients. They have the ride in the autos to the greenhouses; they are occupied in doing something they like; they have an opportunity to learn the business of flower and vegetable growing, and they recover more quickly than they otherwise would. The patients taking this work have visited other greenhouse ranges in Atlanta and have been received and shown over the establishments in the most cordial manner.

"It is difficult to overestimate the value of such work as the convalescent patients are doing in these various courses in agriculture. Soldiers coming from the farming sections find that while they are recovering in the hospital an opportunity is offered them to familiarize themselves with the most up-to-date machinery used in farming, and to learn from able and practical instructors something more about the science of agriculture than was possible to learn in their home communities. The courses must, of necessity, be brief and the instruction intensive. Many disabled soldiers, however, will have their minds thoroughly awakened through these short courses and will return to their homes with increased efficiency and more alert minds. This result will be in addition to the curative effects of the work, which are undoubtedly great."

Many Maimed Soon to Come.

Before spring comes there will be many hundreds of veterans of the Great War at school in the reconstruction camps of the country. Courses in growing flowers will undoubtedly be far from as complete as those taught in the state agricultural colleges, but as the soldiers are allowed to pick the thing they like to do, and as the thing a man likes to do he usually does well, there will be numerous additions to the supply of greenhouse workers before a year rolls around.

Helping a man to help himself is one of the most satisfying things anyone can do. The reëducation or rehabilitation of these maimed men is a great work and will receive the whole-hearted support of the florista' trade.

Incidentally it will be noted that the flowers the soldiers grow at Fort McPherson are "used to brighten the hospital wards." To the hundreds of patients in the hospital, sickness ever more will bring thoughts of flowers. Here is another of the many examples of what the war has done to increase the use of flowers.

OUT-OF-TOWN ORDERS

HOW MANY DID YOU SEND?

How Many Were Received?

What is the extent of your telegraph delivery business? This is a question that Secretary Pochelon, of the F. T. D., asked all members of the association just previous to the meeting in Cleveland, October 8. Few were in a position to answer the question, or, at least, few did make reply. The figures given by those who made them public at the F. T. D. meeting surprised many of the trade by the large totals.

At the time The Review said that it believes that more publicity given the extent of the business of transferring orders between florists would rapidly promote the growth of the F. T. D. This view also is taken by some of the largest retailers of flowers. Max Schling, of New York city, started to boost the association by using his space in the Pink Section of The Review to show how much business of this character he is doing. Henry Penn, of Boston, also will use his space in the Pink Section for the same purpose. F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, gave The Review his figures for October and they were published in the issue of November 28.

What Penn Did.

During the month between October 10 and November 10, Penn's telegraph delivery business, so called, but including telegraph, telephone and mail orders, amounted to $2,735.75 for 459 separate transactions. During that period Mr. Penn sent out 297 orders, amounting to $1,722, and received 162 orders, amounting to $1,013.75.

"I am not doing this to show what I am doing, but to secure more members for the F. T. D.," says Mr. Penn. "These figures prove the concrete results obtained and the reason why. Our association is growing, but not fast enough, and if we can by the assistance of The Review create confidence in the minds of some of the 'doubting Thomases' as to why they should join voluntarily, we both will have helped a little more.

"We have for several years past run a small ad in the Boston newspapers telling of our telegraph delivery service. This is independent of our other advertising. In the boxes of flowers sent out by us are circulars describing the service. On our windows are the lines, 'Flowers telegraphed to all parts of the United States and Canada'; on billboards we carry the same message. Our house organ, The Blue Flower, and our stationery also tell of this method of transferring orders. Thus does the message of telegraphing flowers enter into our daily publicity.

"I want you to quote me as saying that The Review has helped a great deal in the development of orders from florist to florist, a part of our business, by the way, that is in its infancy. More florists should take advantage of The Review's pink advertising section.

Where They All Went.

In support of his desire to convince "doubting Thomases" of the extent to which the transfer of orders has grown, Mr. Penn sent along his bill from the Western Union Telegraph Co. for October. Only a Part of the Orders.

This of course was not the extent of the business done by the Penn store, as many orders were received and sent through the Postal Telegraph Co. and by mail and telephone.

Mr. Penn is just as strong for advertising the F. T. D. as he is to spread the gospel of the S. A. F. slogan, "Say It with Flowers." In the Boston newspapers just previous to Thanksgiving the Penn store had large advertisements, each carrying "Say It with Flowers" at the top and a statement of the telegraph delivery service at the bottom.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Wilmette, Ill.—Sydney C. Eastman, referee in bankruptcy representing the U. S. court for the northern district of Illinois, has set 10 a. m., December 12, as the date for the hearing in the case of Pyfer & Olsem. The place is room 907, Monadnock block, Chicago.

SAFE AT BRUGES.

A British trade paper learns that the business at the nursery of Sander & Sons, at St. Andre, Bruges, Belgium, has been carried on by the staff during the four years the town has been in the occupation of the Germans. Messrs. Sander have received a letter from the manager, T. Mellstrom, who is well known to many readers of The Review because of his journeys in the United States, informing them that he is well, but that the nursery has suffered considerable damage, mainly in broken glass. He also states that they have been able to maintain a portion of the stock of plants. It is regrettable that the head of the clerical department was killed on the day before the town was liberated. During the earlier part of the war business was possible, mainly with America, but in recent times all communication with the head establishment at St. Albans has ceased, and there was no knowledge as to whether the nursery was even in existence.

It is to be hoped, says the Gardeners' Chronicle, that the many large nursery establishments in and about Ghent may be equally fortunate in escaping total destruction, as the nursery trade of Ghent and Bruges was one of the principal industries of this part of Belgium.

scientific expert in charge of small fruit investigations.

"Assisting Sergeant Darrow are seven enlisted men, several of whom, like the head of the department himself, are graduates of a state agricultural college and all of whom have had first-class experience in farming on a large scale. Of these eight instructors four are from the south, two from the west and two from the east, a proportion which nearly applies to the patients in the hospital who take the courses.

"The greenhouse work commenced October 24, the C. A. Dahl Co., of Atlanta, having generously turned over its entire Atlanta greenhouse range to the War Department. Camp Gordon and General Hospital No. 6 are coöperating in the running of this establishment, the hospital using it particularly for the purpose of providing curative and vocational work for such disabled soldiers as may be interested. The range consists of about twenty greenhouses, totaling over 60,000 square feet. In this large establishment the soldiers are given instruction in vegetable plant growing, cut flower production and vegetable forcing. Camp Gordon, through its reclamation division, furnishes the stable manure, and provides such labor as may be needed in addition to that of convalescent patients. Both Camp Gordon and General Hospital No. 6 will use the greenhouses to grow plants for the next year's farms.

Practical Growers as Teachers.

"Private Talhurst, a New York state greenhouse man, is in charge at the greenhouses for Camp Gordon; Private Carl Johnson, a Massachusetts greenhouse man, and Private Sandlin, graduate of Alabama Agricultural College, have been in charge of the groups of the convalescent patients.

"The patients are taken to the greenhouses each day in autos, leaving the hospital at 8 o'clock in the morning and returning about noon, the distance from the hospital to the greenhouses being about five miles. Several houses have already been planted to lettuce, mostly the Grand Rapids variety. There have also been planted onions, New Zealand spinach, radishes, tomatoes, etc. The flowers grown in the greenhouses and taken by General Hospital No. 6 as its share are used to brighten the hospital wards. The vegetables are sent to the soldiers' mess at the respective camps.

Greenhouse Course Popular.

"The course has been popular with the patients. They have the ride in the autos to the greenhouses; they are occupied in doing something they like; they have an opportunity to learn the business of flower and vegetable growing, and they recover more quickly than they otherwise would. The patients taking this work have visited other greenhouse ranges in Atlanta and have been received and shown over the establishments in the most cordial manner.

"It is difficult to overestimate the value of such work as the convalescent patients are doing in these various courses in agriculture. Soldiers coming from the farming sections find that while they are recovering in the hospital an opportunity is offered them to familiarize themselves with the most up-to-date machinery used in farming, and to learn from able and practical instructors something more about the science of agriculture than was possible to learn in their home communities. The courses must, of necessity, be brief and the instruction intensive. Many disabled soldiers, however, will have their minds thoroughly awakened through these short courses and will return to their homes with increased efficiency and more alert minds. This result will be in addition to the curative effects of the work, which are undoubtedly great."

Many Maimed Soon to Come.

Before spring comes there will be many hundreds of veterans of the Great War at school in the reconstruction camps of the country. Courses in growing flowers will undoubtedly be far from as complete as those taught in the state agricultural colleges, but as the soldiers are allowed to pick the thing they like to do, and as the thing a man likes to do he usually does well, there will be numerous additions to the supply of greenhouse workers before a year rolls around.

Helping a man to help himself is one of the most satisfying things anyone can do. The reëducation or rehabilitation of these maimed men is a great work and will receive the whole-hearted support of the florists' trade.

Incidentally it will be noted that the flowers the soldiers grow at Fort McPherson are "used to brighten the hospital wards." To the hundreds of patients in the hospital, sickness ever more will bring thoughts of flowers. Here is another of the many examples of what the war has done to increase the use of flowers.

OUT-OF-TOWN ORDERS

HOW MANY DID YOU SEND?

How Many Were Received?

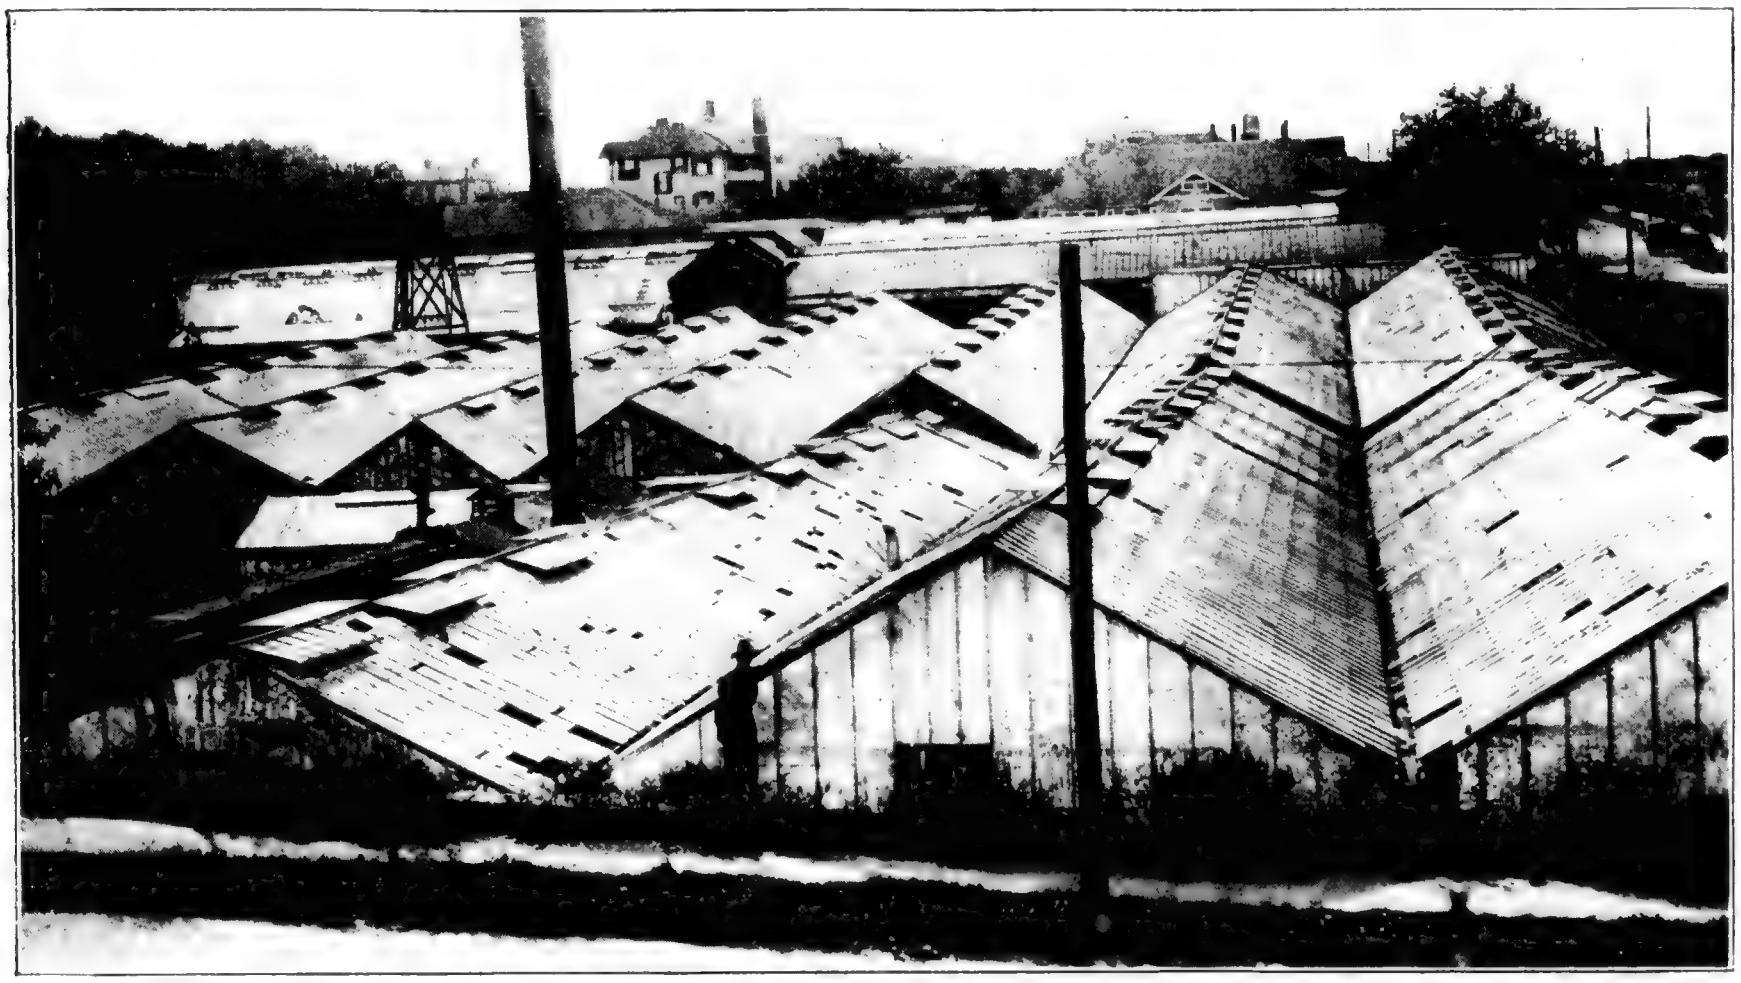
What is the extent of your telegraph delivery business? This is a question that Secretary Pochelon, of the F. T. D., asked all members of the association just previous to the meeting in Cleveland, October 8. Few were in a position to answer the question, or, at least, few did make reply. The figures given by those who made them public at the F. T. D. meeting surprised many of the trade by the large totals.

At the time The Review said that it believes that more publicity given the extent of the business of transferring orders between florists would rapidly promote the growth of the F. T. D. This view also is taken by some of the largest retailers of flowers. Max Schling, of New York city, started to boost the association by using his space in the Pink Section of The Review to show how much business of this character he is doing. Henry Penn, of Boston, also will use his space in the Pink Section for the same purpose. F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, gave The Review his figures for October and they were published in the issue of November 28.

What Penn Did.

During the month between October 10 and November 10, Penn's telegraph delivery business, so called, but including telegraph, telephone and mail orders, amounted to $2,735.75 for 459 separate transactions. During that period Mr. Penn sent out 297 orders, amounting to $1,722, and received 162 orders, amounting to $1,013.75.

"I am not doing this to show what I am doing, but to secure more members for the F. T. D.," says Mr. Penn. "These figures prove the concrete results obtained and the reason why. Our association is growing, but not fast enough, and if we can by the assistance of The Review create confidence in the minds of some of the 'doubting Thomases' as to why they should join voluntarily, we both will have helped a little more.



"We have for several years past run a small ad in the Boston newspapers telling of our telegraph delivery service. This is independent of our other advertising. In the boxes of flowers sent out by us are circulars describing the service. On our windows are the lines, 'Flowers telegraphed to all parts of the United States and Canada'; on billboards we carry the same message. Our house organ, The Blue Flower, and our stationery also tell of this method of transferring orders. Thus does the message of telegraphing flowers enter into our daily publicity.

"I want you to quote me as saying that The Review has helped a great deal in the development of orders from florist to florist, a part of our business, by the way, that is in its infancy. More florists should take advantage of The Review's pink advertising section.

Where They All Went.

In support of his desire to convince "doubting Thomases" of the extent to which the transfer of orders has grown, Mr. Penn sent along his bill from the Western Union Telegraph Co. for October. Only a Part of the Orders.

This of course was not the extent of the business done by the Penn store, as many orders were received and sent through the Postal Telegraph Co. and by mail and telephone.

Mr. Penn is just as strong for advertising the F. T. D. as he is to spread the gospel of the S. A. F. slogan, "Say It with Flowers." In the Boston newspapers just previous to Thanksgiving the Penn store had large advertisements, each carrying "Say It with Flowers" at the top and a statement of the telegraph delivery service at the bottom.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

SAFE AT BRUGES.

A British trade paper learns that the business at the nursery of Sander & Sons, at St. Andre, Bruges, Belgium, has been carried on by the staff during the four years the town has been in the occupation of the Germans. Messrs. Sander have received a letter from the manager, T. Mellstrom, who is well known to many readers of The Review because of his journeys in the United States, informing them that he is well, but that the nursery has suffered considerable damage, mainly in broken glass. CO-OPERATIVE ADVERTISING

THE MILWAUKEE CAMPAIGN.

Tax on Sales Raises Ad Fund.

The florists of Milwaukee and Milwaukee county, Wis., are enthusiastic over their coöperative advertising campaign and December 1 had a half page advertisement in the daily newspapers. The advertisement is reproduced in the accompanying illustration.

While coöperative advertising is far from being novel, the methods adopted by the florists of the Wisconsin metropolis to raise the money to pay for the publicity are out of the ordinary. By an agreement between growers, wholesalers and retailers every sale by both the growers and wholesalers is taxed and the money turned over to the treasurer of the Florists' Advertising Club, an organization having a state charter.

A. H. McDonald, manager of the floral department of Gimbel Bros., has charge of the advertising and prepared the advertisement shown herewith. Mr. McDonald describes the Milwaukee plan from its inception as follows:

"During the month of September, 1917, a general meeting of the growers, wholesalers and retailers of Milwaukee county was called. A prospectus of the proposed organization was read and the by-laws that had been prepared were accepted with minor changes. The Florists' Advertising Club was incorporated under the state laws, without capital and not for profit. Since that time signatures of members have been secured and money raised to start the advertising.

How the Money Is Secured.

"The plan of securing the money is as follows:

"Every grower marketing his product through the local commission houses has one-half of one per cent deducted from his returns. This amount is placed to the credit of the advertising fund. Every purchaser of flowers from a wholesaler has one per cent of the invoice added to his bill. Thus a $10 purchase is billed at $10.10. The wholesalers' part in the organization is to keep the books, collect the amounts and turn the money over to the treasurer of the Advertising Club.

"The club is controlled by nine directors, elected by the members. Three growers, three wholesalers and three retailers constitute the board of directors. All appropriations are allowed by this board and the directors approve the bills. The mediums used for advertising have been posters, newspapers and street car cards. The results have been satisfactory.

Expansion Is Planned.

"We hope to double our advertising fund by increasing the growers' tax to one per cent and the retailers' tax to two per cent.

"How well we have succeeded in enlightening the public as to why flowers should be used is shown by the satisfactory business the florists have experienced since the advertising was begun.

"The officers of the club are: President, H. V. Hunkel; vice-president, Gust. Rusch; treasurer, A. Leidiger; secretary, H. J. Seel.

"One of the things accomplished by the club is the elimination of petty jealousies among the florists. Also they have been taught the big lesson of co-operation."

BABY RAMBLERS FOR EASTER.

I have some Baby Rambler roses resting under a bench. Will you please give me instructions as to when to start to force them for Easter?

J. C.—N. Y.

Keep the roses cool and somewhat dry. The temperature should be only a little above freezing and they will be all the better if they have some frost while dormant. You need not start these plants until the middle of January. At that time place them in a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. Advance this 10 degrees as the plants break. As Easter comes moderately late next year, you will not need to force your plants hard to have them in flower on time. C. W.

WORMS IN LEAF-MOLD.

I have had trouble with small worms from rotted leaf-mold on my cyclamens, Begonia Lorraine, ferns, etc. I noticed the worms two or three weeks after potting up the plants in the leaf-mold. I took the begonias out this summer and washed the soil off the roots. I then took some of the leaf-mold and thoroughly sterilized it, so that I could be sure no living thing could be in it, and potted up the begonias in this sterilized leaf-mold. Shortly afterwards I noticed a small fly, just like a house fly newly hatched out. The flies appeared in large numbers when the plants were syringed. The worms are whitish and glassy looking, about one-eighth of an inch in length.

The plants are stunted in growth and the worms are on the leaf-mold as thick as ever, although I placed the pots on a shelf so they could not get started out of the ashes on the bench. We always have had good success with these plants and we never saw these worms or flies before. Would like to hear of a remedy. G. F. C.—Ia.

The worms are new to me, but perhaps some other reader of The Review may have had the same pests and be able to offer a better remedy than I can give. Sterilization, preferably with steam, of all potting compost will kill everything in the soil. For winged insects frequent fumigation will be necessary. I use hydrocyanic acid gas, unless the weather is extremely warm, but this is a dangerous thing to use unless in experienced hands. In its stead I would suggest one of the nicotine papers or extracts, giving applications once a week while the flies are on the wing, or more frequently if necessary. C. W.

WIREWORMS.

Will you please tell me how to get rid of wireworms? I am growing lettuce and cucumbers. They do not give any trouble in the cut flower houses. Do you think that tobacco mulch would drive them away? F. J. G.—Wis.

Make a cornmeal mash, which should be well sweetened with molasses. Add Paris green or dry arsenate of lead in sufficient quantity to slightly color the whole. Lay the mash at intervals over your beds or benches and cover with pieces of board or shingles. Great numbers will be poisoned in this way. Fresh clover, lettuce leaves or spinach leaves can be poisoned with arsenate of lead and will answer the same purpose. All poisons are better covered. A mulch of tobacco dust would help to clean out the pests. C. W.

THE BOYS WHO DID THE JOB

BACK FOR CHRISTMAS.

Many Thousands Sail for Home.

There is a strong probability that many thousands of the soldiers with General Pershing's American Expeditionary Forces will have returned to the United States before Christmas. The movement homeward already has begun and the first of the crusaders for the cause of liberty will have returned before this is read. The others will follow as rapidly as transports can be supplied. However, more than a million men will remain in Europe to police the German territory the Allies are holding until such a time as peace has been restored and a stable government has been established by Germany and the other Central Powers. Among these thousands of soldiers returning will be many members of our trade who have been helping in the fighting in France. As they return The Review will be glad to publish their names. Also as the boys who were at the training camps in this country are discharged from the army and reach their homes, The Review will receive the news with thanks. Send in the news about the soldier boys.

J. C. Peterson Dies at Camp.

Jens Christian Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, 3132 McHenry avenue, Westwood, O., died November 25 at Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex., of pneumonia. He was 25 years of age. When the young man became seriously ill his father was notified and left at once for Waco. Private Peterson was a member of Company H, 35th Infantry. Mr. Peterson, the father, is the senior member of the firm of J. A. Peterson & Sons and is widely known. He and Mrs. Peterson have the sympathy of the trade in their bereavement.

Wenner Botkin Coming Home.

When the members of the units of the American Expeditionary Forces in France who are to be returned home as fast as possible heard the good news, there were none more happy than the members of the 75th Coast Artillery. They celebrated the prospect of coming back to the United States in the usual American boy manner—with much music by the regimental band. Two members of this band are florists, Wenner A. Botkin, son of J. G. Botkin, of the East Lawn Gardens, Urbana, O., and Musician Engler, formerly with the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

This information came in a letter just received by Mr. Botkin from his son. He tells of the joy when the armistice was signed of the people of central France, where his regiment was stationed, and of the enthusiasm of the American soldiers at the prospect of returning home. Previous to March 14, last, when he joined the coast artillery, Musician Botkin was foreman of his father's greenhouse range at Urbana. While in training at Fort Moultrie, S. C., his superiors learned that he is a talented tenor saxophone player and he was advanced to musician. In France he discovered that Bandsman Engler also was a florist.

Both young men, the letter to Mr. Botkin says, are having an opportunity to study French landscaping and he expects that they will bring back some good ideas along this line.

Bushyager Boys in Service.

Two sons of E. Bushyager, proprietor of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, Jeannette, Pa., are in the service of their country, but were too late to get into the fighting in France. Lee R. Bushyager enlisted last January as a pilot in the U. S. Aviation Corps. He was sent to Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., April 27, and later was transferred to a flying field near Dallas, Tex., where he remained some time. He now is at a camp in Arkansas, where he will finish his training if the government continues the school. Glen R. Bushyager enlisted in the S. A. T. C. and is at Allegheny, Pa. Roy O. Bushyager entered the army last spring, but was rejected for physical reasons after spending seven days in camp. A fourth son was exempted so he could remain at home and help his father, who grows vegetable plants, as well as flowers.

Rochester Florist Wounded.

Advices received from friends in Rochester are to the effect that Corporal Lester G. Brown, formerly of the H. E. Wilson forces, of that city, is in a hospital near the Alps close to the border of Switzerland, recovering from wounds and a gas attack. Corporal Brown had suffered from shrapnel wounds as well as from a bullet wound in his heel, and lost his voice as the result of gassing. He writes, however, that his voice is being restored. He has been in the hospital from which he wrote two months. Rochester friends are hoping for his early recovery and safe return.

Hartung Hunting Huns.

Among the numerous florists who are in France on missions connected with making the world safe for democracy is Norbert E. Hartung, of Two Rivers, Wis. He is with an engineer regiment and has had a busy year. He is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hartung, who have been in the florists' business at Two Rivers for forty years. He was his father's chief assistant before he entered the army. The greenhouses are closed this season, but will be reopened when the young man comes back.

Colligan in France.

William E. Colligan, formerly connected with the cut flower department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, under O. W. Frese, was at La Valbonnais, France, when the war closed, training for a commission, one of 7,000 in the camp. He entered the service as a private in a regiment which trained at Camp Lee and was among the first to sail. The regiment made six trips to the front and Colligan rose to be top sergeant, after which he was selected as a candidate for a commission and sent to southern France, to an officers' school.

Three Sons Coming Home.

Now that the war is over and the men in the training camps in this country are being demobilized, the three sons of S. W. Pitkin, St. Charles, Ill., will soon return to their home. Ernest C. Pitkin, aged 29 years, is in training at a camp near San Antonio, Tex.; Elbert, aged 25 years, is attending the radio school at the Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis, Minn., and Charles, aged 21, is at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill. The two older boys were associated with their father at his establishment in St. Charles, while the youngest son was with Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

Sergeant Billy Clark.

One of the characteristics of the Yankee troops noted by the seasoned veterans of the allied armies was that they went ahead faster than they were ordered to move and did not seem to know when to stop fighting. The "untrained" men of the American brigades had a different method from that of the machine-like action of the divisions they came to aid. And it was Yankee pep that did the job.

Another peculiarity of the Americans was that the higher officers often led their men in person, contrary to the rules of warfare, many of them sacrificing their lives in their eagerness for the fray. But when an officer fell there was always a "noncom" who could take command and lead his company with valor and dash to victory. Of such was Sergeant "Billy" Clark, formerly employed by the Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, Cal., and before that with another florist firm of the same city.

"On the fifth day of the battle," writes a correspondent from the front to a Los Angeles newspaper, describing one of the last engagements of the war, "Company A of the 364th Infantry found itself without a leader. All the commissioned officers down to the last second lieutenant had been put hors de combat. The company, a sort of derelict in the fog of battle, floundered along, fighting a kind of guerrilla warfare and gradually losing its identity and cohesion, when a red head appeared through the smoke, followed by a sharp word of command, or rather an invitation to 'go get 'em.'

"The men pulled themselves together and, under the leadership of Sergeant Billy S. Clark, made one of the most brilliant charges of the drive. This continued for three days and during that period no company made a better showing or displayed more relentless aggressiveness."

When complimented on his achievement, Sergeant Clark was brief and laconic in his response, regarding his action merely as the performance of a duty. "I reckon that's what Uncle Sam pays us for," was his sole comment.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

CHARGING FOR BOXES.

In The Review of November 28, page 19, I noted the following inquiry from J. U. M.—Miss.:

Will The Review or some of the retail florists give us a little help? What do they do in the matter of charging for the boxes in which they deliver flowers and designs? When we receive cut flowers from the wholesaler the boxes always are charged for, usually at from 60 cents to 85 cents each, but does any retailer make a charge when he in turn makes shipments? One day last week we shipped to one customer at one time thirteen boxes and we made no charge for the boxes. They contained sprays and designs. We shall appreciate any ideas expressed on this subject.

Perhaps my experience, as proprietor of the Port Allegany Greenhouses, Port Allegany, Pa., may be helpful to J. U. M. The excessive greenhouse expenses of the last year caused me to charge for large boxes and to give credit for their return, grading my charges according to the prices paid by me to the wholesalers and commission men for the same boxes. After signing the conservation pledge of the paper houses, I ordered the printing of some labels, which were inscribed with the following notice to patrons:

RETURN BOX.

Wishing to do our "bit," we signed the pledge "to coöperate with the Conservation Division and the Pulp and Paper Section of the War Industries Board to economize in the use of paper, paperboard [boxes].....and to secure and procure others, so far as lies within our power, to do the same, or forfeit the right of purchase." To comply, we ask that each box be returned to us by.....and deduct.....cents from bill.—Port Allegany Greenhouses.

It will be observed that blank spaces were left on the labels for the insertion of the name of the return route and the amount to be deducted. These labels were pasted on all except the smallest boxes, with most gratifying results. Sales, evidently, were not decreased thereby, as the receipts for the last four months have been more than double the receipts for any similar period during the eighteen years of my experience as a florist. The quick return of needed boxes, since the long-distance express service has been so slow, has been of great value to me. I would suggest that others give the plan a trial. M. E. G. Ventres.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

While you may be right in your editorial statement that the government should quickly return the public utilities taken over, you will find many who, for different reasons, disagree with you. Some few reasons why these utilities should be held, for the present at least, are:

Because in many places the service is far better and the employees more courteous, there being someone to make complaint to.

Because the employees of these companies, long misused, speaking of express companies, have received or are about to receive better pay and treatment.

Because the stockholders of these companies will be honestly protected and the companies will not again be exploited and wrecked repeatedly in the stock markets. Observe how few the scandals, how efficient and cheap the postal service is, as compared with any of these companies.

Because in the near future we may go through a period of unrest and will, in that case, want these utilities kept as sacred as the postoffices and banks, and have complete control over them, not trusting, in the case of the express companies, for instance, the more or less secret owners to battle out their claims with our soldiers, should it unfortunately come to that.

It is hard indeed for the public to enthuse over these utilities going back, and harder still for the employees, and if the former owners were wiser, it would be hardest of all for them.

Somewhat apart from this, shippers who have long-standing claims against the express companies can have settlements greatly facilitated by turning them over to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington.

CAN YOU TELL HIM?

We are having trouble with our cyclamens. Can some brother florist tell us what is the cause and give us a remedy for the curling of the leaves and the drying up of the buds? The same disease attacks our Rex and Cincinnati begonias and pentstemon, lobelia and other plants that are near the diseased plants. Any information will be greatly appreciated. Frank M. Warner.

La Fayette, Ind.—The greenhouses of William H. Robinson were sold at auction to Wilbur Lahr. The sale included a 10-acre farm, the greenhouses and the retail store and amounted to between $9,000 and $10,000. Mr. Lahr will continue the business.

Peoria, Ill.—Fred Burre has taken over the interest of his brother in the firm of Burre Bros. He has the greenhouse establishment formerly conducted by D. U. Augspurger & Sons Co., which went into bankruptcy a year ago. Mr. Burre is growing plants for the wholesale trade.

THE CARNATION SOCIETY.

The American Carnation Society directors met with the Cleveland Florists' Club December 2 to complete the program and make final arrangements for the A. C. S. convention in Cleveland January 29 and 30, 1919. Conditions all round being so unusual, it was considered best, and decided, to make a departure from the usual program. Express service being so undependable, it was not considered advisable to attempt an exhibition along the lines followed in previous years, and the secretary was instructed to rearrange the schedule to meet the prevailing conditions. All the medals will be offered and a special effort will be made to induce the growers of new varieties to exhibit them. There will be a number of classes for standard varieties for those who grow only those varieties. It was pointed out that if each member who will attend will bring along with him enough blooms for one vase, it will result in the largest exhibition we have ever staged. Many of those within short distance will bring along 200 to 300 blooms, which will bring up the average.

It was also pointed out that the high prices which will likely prevail all winter will also deter the larger growers from staging in quantity as formerly, but almost every grower of carnations will gladly contribute fifty to 100 blooms to help make up the show. The secretary will get the premium schedule out at once and will mail it to the members.

This being the first meeting of national scope within the trade since the signing of the armistice, it was decided to make it a celebration of that event, and the program of entertainment will be arranged along that line. Invitations will be sent to other organizations to participate, and it is hoped that a large attendance will result.

There is much enthusiasm in the Cleveland Florists' Club over the prospects of a rousing convention, and the local end of the arrangements will be well taken care of by a committee made up of some half dozen of Cleveland's celebrated live wires.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

MIDGE ON MUMS.

I am sending you a box of chrysanthemum buds and foliage from plants which I bought last year. I would like to know what the disease is which is affecting them, the cause and the remedy for it. I never have seen anything of the kind before, but this fall all varieties of mums in my house are affected by it.

E. S.—Mich.

The mums submitted are badly infested with midge, which has been reported this season from practically all sections of the country. The origin of this midge is in doubt; no one seems to know where it came from. Some growers seem to think it was imported, but I never heard of its being on mums in any other country, so I doubt if it was brought into this country on stock.

There is just one way of getting rid of this midge, and that is by fumigating with tobacco dust. In most cases this will clean the stock, providing the tobacco dust used is of sufficient strength. It kills the pest as it hatches out every day.

The specimens submitted were badly infested and I question if you would be able to cut any flowers from such plants. I doubt if it would pay to keep the stock. I would simply place it on the rubbish heap. C. H. T.

At Chicago, November 16, Robert E. Mills, a yellow sport of William Turner, Japanese incurved, submitted by Robert L. Dunn, St. Catharines, Ont., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 13; fullness, 9; stem, 12; foliage, 13; substance, 13; size, 9; total, 87.

At Boston, November 16, Robert E. Mills, a yellow sport of William Turner, Japanese incurved, submitted by Robert L. Dunn, St. Catharines, Ont., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 9; stem, 12; foliage, 13; substance, 13; size, 10; total, 89. On the exhibition scale: Color, 13; stem, 4; foliage, 4; fullness, 13; form, 14; depth, 14; size, 27; total, 89.

At Chicago, November 23, Victory, white, incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 8; stem, 14; foliage, 13; substance, 12; size, 8; total, 87.

At Chicago, November 23, Loyalty, yellow, incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 13; fullness, 9; stem, 14; foliage, 13; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 88.

Department of Registration.

November 27, 1918, the Davis Floral Co., Davenport, Ia., registered the new chrysanthemum, Mary Louise, a bronze sport of Patty, incurved.

PEST ON MUMS.

I am enclosing two small bugs which we call "aster bugs," although they eat mums as well as asters. If you will tell us how to get rid of them we shall be grateful. Half of our mums are spoiled by this pest, in both early and late varieties. F. H.—Que.

This pest is much more troublesome some seasons than others. It seems to like white varieties of flowers better than any other color and on white flowers its ravages are serious. There is little that can be done after the buds are showing color, but previous to that time a spray of dilute solution of Paris green will kill many of these insects. We have found, however, that the only efficacious method is to watch the buds closely early in the morning, just before they open, when the bugs will be found apparently waiting for the petals to show color so they can commence their work. Thousands of bugs can be killed at this stage of the development of the flowers. If they are not caught at that time it means a great deal of work to keep the flowers clean. In the last three or four years we have not heard much about this pest and were under the impression it was not so much in evidence as formerly. It is practically immune to tobacco dust and it is impossible to smoke the house when the flowers are fully open without injuring the blooms. Nothing is better than hand-picking early in the morning.

C. H. T.

FORCING SHASTA DAISIES.

Kindly advise me what is the proper method of forcing Shasta daisies. Is it profitable to have them in the greenhouses? K. P. & T. F.—Pa.

Shasta daisies are not of much value for forcing. Marguerites are much more satisfactory and can be depended upon to give flowers through the winter. If you want to give the Shastas a trial, leave them outdoors until they have had one or two hard freezings. Then plant them in a bench in a cold greenhouse. A violet temperature is sufficiently high. Let them come along naturally in this temperature. Any attempt to force in strong heat will result in failure. C. W.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

OUR SOLDIER FLORISTS.

The many hundreds of Ohio florists now with the Expeditionary Forces in France, or in the various cantonments, soon will be returning to their former places in the trade, solving the trained labor shortage of the last year and enabling overworked proprietors to get a little rest. Undoubtedly they will come back better men in consequence of their military training and expanded knowledge of life in general. This infusion of new vim and efficiency into the channels of the trade cannot fail to redound to its ultimate benefit. Fortunately, but few of the boys were incapacitated; and as they fought for us who could not go, let us see that they are given the consideration upon their return to which their sacrifices justly entitle them.

NO SEX IN BUSINESS.

That modern business permits no sex distinctions is well illustrated by the presence of so many successful women florists in the Sixth City and its environs. As a general thing, women embark in the business because they love to work with flowers, which, perhaps, is the secret of their signal success. Indulgence in this line of thought brings to mind perforce the names of such high types of business women as Miss Hester A. Getz, Mrs. G. W. Mercer, Mrs. Christine Cares, Mrs. L. C. Chott, Mrs. A. Nosek, Mrs. Frank Rigo, Mrs. P. J. Bauer and Miss Emily Dunn, of Cleveland; Mrs. J. B. Freeman, of Toledo, O.; Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff, of Erie, Pa.; Mrs. Harriet Van Meter, of Springfield, O.; Mrs. J. G. Crites, of Uhrichsville, O.; Mrs. Henry Matern, of Sandusky, O.; B. S. Fearn, of Elyria, O., all of whom preside over nicely appointed places of business and are a decided credit to their chosen profession. In the past little has been heard in organized trade councils from women members, but doubtless in the future their influence will be felt; and now, with the dawn of a new business era, perhaps the time is opportune.

Mac.

COST AND PRICES.

Close contact with the florists of northern Ohio discloses an increasing tendency to consider the actual cost of production in its proper relationship to selling prices. It is a well known fact that florists have been indifferent to this absolute business necessity, and it is one of the most salutary signs of the times that they have begun to recognize it as the vital factor in their success or failure. In the past there has been too much selling of flowers at a figure twenty-five per cent less than cost. Many florists regarded as successful have done this, other things, such as rises in property values, serving to keep them financially intact. Their output being extremely perishable, the law of supply and demand operated powerfully upon it, but perhaps sufficient attention was not given to the matter of supply. Bulbous stock might be cited in illustration of this point. At the prevailing prices of narcissi, daffodils and tulips, there should be no flowers from these bulbs at $10 or $15 per thousand this winter. Instead of forcing enough stock to flood the market, the better plan would be to grow sufficient stock to supply it at a legitimate price, devoting the difference in time and money to the production of other things that the market would absorb readily at profitable figures. At times, in the small towns, a mean type of competition exists, one florist trying to gain business by underselling his fellow-tradesmen, the result being the lowering of prices to a level where distinct loss, instead of profit, becomes the rule. Early failure, however, soon puts an end to this class of business man. Much might be accomplished by a generous coöperation on the part of competitors in the wholesome direction of keeping prices right, but the best plan is for each to sell his goods at a figure covering production and allowing a living margin of profit. Mac.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

ADIANTUMS.

The bulk of adiantums commonly grown for the florists' trade are grown in pots, but no matter whether in pots or planted out, the plants are benefited by a short rest at this season. Part of the ferns can be rested at a time, so that a new crop of fronds will be obtainable before all the old fronds have been picked. The plants should be kept dry at the roots for two or three weeks. Laying them on their sides will prevent their getting water they do not need. After a rest any necessary repotting can be done and the plants placed in a warm, moist heat. For compost there is nothing better than fibrous loam, with some sand and a little old and dry cow manure. If the loam is heavy, some leaf-mold may be added to good advantage. These remarks apply to such adiantums as Croweanum and cuneatum, which are more largely grown than any others for cutting.

PROTECTION IN COLD HOUSES.

The coal situation is much brighter than a month ago and there will be more glass operated than seemed probable a short time ago. The better market prices are proving a distinct help to the grower and those who have had the courage to plant their full areas are being envied by some of their neighbors who closed down all, or nearly all, their glass. It is possible to carry over some plants in unheated houses and these include pansies, daisies, forget-me-nots, violets, polyanthus and stock plants of chrysanthemums, but all should now have a liberal mulching of dry leaves to prevent freezing and thawing of the soil. Beds or benches planted with hardy perennials for spring flowering can be similarly protected. There is sure to be more or less damage in the form of broken glass, heaving of piers, etc., in unheated houses, as compared with such as are operated. Such at least has been the experience of those who closed down houses during the severe winter of 1917-18 and this will be repeated, I am afraid, in an increased number of cases the coming winter.

CYCLAMENS.

Owing to the scarcity of azaleas, cyclamens will be in greater demand than ever for the coming holidays and already specialists in their culture report that they are almost sold out.

No matter how handsome foliage you have on your plants, they will not sell unless one or two flowers are open and, although sales may be made until spring, you doubtless are anxious to sell out all you can to make room for other crops for Easter trade. It will not pay to force the plants hard. That will draw up the foliage and the flowers will flop over. Customers will fight shy of such plants. Keep the plants fairly warm; 55 degrees at night is ample. Remove all shade and give them some ventilation when the temperature goes over 65 degrees. Elevate some of the larger plants on inverted pots. This will give more space for the other plants. You cannot afford to have cyclamens crowded, as you will never get shapely plants under such conditions.

How are the young plants progressing which are to flower a year hence? They must not be neglected. You probably still have them in flats on shelves close to the glass. This is the best possible place for them. Stir the soil occasionally. Before they become too crowded transfer them to 3-inch pots. Be sure to use plenty of flaky leaf-mold at this potting. Both cyclamens and begonias root apace in this kind of leaf-mold, which must not be too much decayed and should feel spongy to the touch.

CHRISTMAS FREESIAS.

It has been a favorable fall for early freesias, with higher temperatures and clearer skies than usual, and some of the earliest plants already have flowers nearly open. There will be little in the way of bulbous flowers the coming Christmas outside of a few Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths. There will be few Dutch bulbs in flower, owing to late arrivals of bulbs, and, with a marked scarcity of valley, there should be a fine call for freesias and satisfactory prices for them. Keep the early freesias well up to the glass in a sunny house with a night temperature of 55 degrees and be sure they have an adequate supply of water.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

SPRING PLANTS IN THE SOUTH.

The first part of December is the best time to sow the main batch of seeds of spring plants, with the possible exception of sweet alyssum, which need not be started till the end of January. The seeds are better sown in flats, so they can be moved when desired. There are three pests that must be guarded against—mice, birds and the small Mexican ant. The former two are death to the larger seeds, such as verbenas, etc., while the ants are equally destructive on the fine seeds, such as primulas, petunias, etc. Glass placed closely over the flats will protect against the mice and birds. Set the flats on inverted pots placed in saucers of water to keep the ants out. Keep the saucers full of water all the time, not even allowing a film of dust to gather on top, else the little pests will get in and ruin everything in a short time. As soon as germination has well started there is no more danger. The soil used should be light, finely screened and moderately enriched. Press down smoothly, water well before sowing, and cover the larger seeds lightly. The fine seeds must not be covered with soil, but may be pressed down with a piece of board. To prevent these fine seeds from washing, cover with a piece of cheesecloth just big enough to fit the flat and water through that until the seeds are germinated, when it can be removed. For Primula obconica use about a quarter of an inch of pure leaf-mold, screened fine, as a surface bed for the seeds. To get the best possible percentage of germination, place all seed flats in a rather warm temperature, say 50 to 60 degrees at night. Vinca rosea and alba may be 5 degrees higher. Let them remain there until they have been pricked or potted off and established, when they can be removed to rather cooler quarters. L.

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

In growing carnations in this section it is the early propagator who gets not only the early but all of the worms. To have good-sized plants for planting in the houses by the end of June or beginning of July, the cuttings should be in the sand as early as possible. The process of rooting the cuttings is pretty generally well known, but too often many of what you may call the sanitary conditions are neglected. The propagating table should be washed and thoroughly whitewashed, and have a layer of from one to two inches of rough ashes as drainage before being filled with sand. The sand should be as sharp and clean as possible and free from all foreign matter, so that the water will pass through it freely. Carefully remove all trash from underneath the tables and sprinkle air-slaked lime occasionally. The temperature of the house should be the same as that in which the plants are grown, say 50 degrees at night, with a slight rise during the day. Do not crowd the cuttings too much and give plenty of ventilation. Shade during the hot part of the day and until the sun gets off the bench. The cuttings will need water at least every bright day if the sand is as porous as it should be. Bottom heat is not specially required. In twenty-five to thirty days from the time of insertion the cuttings should be rooted enough to pot off. L.

DOINGS IN DIXIE

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Market.

The "flu" and the war, with their dreadful vicissitudes and hardships, are things of the past, we are thankful to say. Although the former kept the retailers more than busy, gladness over its eradication reigns throughout the trade. From the beginning of November, with All Saints' day, to its close, including Thanksgiving day, every home-grown flower was used, besides big shipments from Chicago and other cities. The usual social functions of the winter months are beginning to be in evidence and, although there will be no official carnival season, with accompanying balls and parties, it is an assured prospect that the social season this year will demand the services of the floral artists to a far greater extent than last year. With Christmas only three weeks away, the growers are getting their stock in shape. Although last month's weather conditions were inauspicious for the florists, the general line of holiday stock is as fine as ever and not a single plant of poinsettias, palms or ferns needs to be bought out of town. Many of our private gardens are now shining in their new dress of rye grass, but, owing to the high cost of the seeds, the use of this grass is not so general as usual. Up to now we have had no killing frost. Coleus, croton and chrysanthemum beds, although the worse for continual heavy rains during November, are still seen. The general planting of pansies and the usual line of spring flowers will not take place until the middle of December. The first outdoor-grown sweet peas are in the market. It is hoped that the great quantities grown here will be cut before the heavy frosts kill them, as happened last year. R. E.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The demand continues greater than the supply. Chrysanthemums are gone. Mistletoe carnations are coming in, but there are not nearly enough to go around. Roses are off crop. A few Easter lilies are seen. Sweet peas and violets are in limited supply. Prices are as follows: Chrysanthemums, $5 to $7.50 per dozen; roses, $1.50 to $6 per dozen; carnations, $2 per dozen; violets, single, $2 per hundred; sweet peas, $3 per hundred; Easter lilies, $5 per dozen; orchids, $1.50 to $2 each. Cyclamens, peppers and Christmas cherries have made their appearance and are selling readily, cyclamens from $1.50 to $10, peppers and cherries from $1 to $3 each.

A number of Christmas orders have been received and the prospects are for the heaviest Christmas trade on record, with less stock than ever. Immortelle wreaths and all stock of this character sell well and all the florists hope to have them cleaned up before the cut-flower rush begins. Stock of all kinds cleaned up well for Thanksgiving and brought top prices. Weather conditions have been bad for the last two weeks, dark and cloudy with rain. We have had practically no cold weather at all, only a few frosts, with ice. But this conserves fuel. The coal ban, however, has been lifted and florists can buy all they want; in fact, the coal men are endeavoring to sell coal.

The florists who usually store quantities of galax, ferns, etc., will not be able to do so this year, as there are no available storage houses here this year. They closed on account of the coal and ammonia shortage, and will not open until next spring.

Various Notes.

A. H. Dailey is showing some choice sweet peas, roses and cyclamens.

A. J. McNutt is preparing for Christmas with some choice immortelle wreaths. He is showing the finest Christmas peppers on this market, also choice roses.

The force at Baum's Home of Flowers has been busy, with stock unusually scarce. They have been cutting choice carnations, but not nearly enough to go around, and they had to turn down orders. This concern now has a full force on the job. One of its White trucks caught fire this week, causing an estimated damage of $200. The local S. A. T. C. has received orders to demobilize, which will release Roy and Floyd Baum, who will resume their work at the greenhouses. K. P. B.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

It has been a long time since we have been able to find time to report for Nashville. But this has not been, by any means, because there was nothing to report. The facts are that the last summer has been a record-breaker for the florists of Nashville. The only trouble the florists have had here has been to find sufficient stock. There has been hardly a day this summer or fall that there have been enough good flowers to meet the demand. Had it not been that some of the growers planted outdoor stock, it is hard to say what the florists would have done.

The season was so hot and dry that there were few outdoor flowers of any kind after the middle of the summer. Asters were a failure and roses from the open were almost as bad. Dahlias have been a large item in the fall here for some years, but this fall they were scarce. They sold well, of course, and were a great help, but we longed for the loads of them that often have been thrown on the dump in other years.

Carnations were late in arriving this year, but have been plentiful for weeks now. The quality is excellent. There are few novelties here this year, as the latest introductions have not proven all that could be desired.

Roses are plentiful now. It is noted that American Beauties are occupying less space than ever before and that the days of Sunburst and Ward also are numbered. Russell holds its popularity. Ophelia, Kaiserin and White Killarney also hold their own. But Columbia is the sensation of the season. It is snapped up as fast as it appears and easily commands the highest price of all pink roses. In fact, a goodly proportion of the blooms have sold for $5 per dozen at retail. Our growers went in pretty heavily on this rose, but every one of them says it was a good investment, and we predict that Columbia will have more bench space next year than any other rose, unless it shows some unexpected weakness between now and propagating time.

Various Notes.

The yellow sport of Ophelia grown by Geny Bros. still is making good, and so far shows up better than any yellow sport of this rose we have seen. Another year they will be able to grow it in sufficient quantity to prove its worth.

Speaking of novelties, Nashville has more than its share of promising new things at present. In carnations, the white sport of McIntyre Bros. continues to be the best white we have, and the most fragrant of carnations. A sport of White Enchantress, it has all of the good qualities of its parent, with increased productiveness and general quality.

Mr. Smith, carnation grower for the Joys, has been crossing carnations and growing seedlings for some time, and has three or four that have been propagated in sufficient quantities to test with the older varieties. One of his yellows is probably the best of its color, but being a color that will never be popular, we pass it. He has a red that looks like a winner, but the cream of his collection is a pink, larger than any good commercial pink we know, well doubled, fragrant, and fringed on the outer petals.

Charles Trichler has a sport of Coleus Trailing Queen which shows some of the characteristics of the original Trailing Queen, but is better in every way, especially in that it does not fade in the winter or in the shade. But his pride is a fern which he has named Victory, a sport of Veronia. It is fully as strong a grower as the old Boston, with fronds that seem to stand any amount of handling or wind. Also the fronds are ruffled and frilled better than those of its parent. In fact, we have never seen so pretty a fern as a specimen of Victory that Mr. Trichler exhibited at the state fair this fall.

Thanksgiving trade was as heavy as could be. By this we mean that everyone sold everything he had to sell. Prices, of course, were better than usual, and we are told that an unusually large proportion of the sales were cash. Mums have been fine this fall, especially Mr. Trichler's pot plants, and they were cleaned up closely for Thanksgiving.

Bulbs are selling slowly thus far this season. Everyone has a full supply of bulbs of all kinds and an oversupply of Paper Whites. It happened in this way:

Most of the Paper Whites had been ordered through Holland growers, and of course no one expected that they would be able to make delivery. So as soon as any Paper Whites reached this country, our growers ordered from everybody who seemed able to make delivery. All came and so we are well supplied. But if present demands keep up, no one will be a loser.

Miss Carrie Chance, who has been running the Joy store in Chattanooga for some time, is at home again. Mr. Harrison and his sister, Miss Bess Harrison, took charge of the store when it was opened, but Mr. Harrison became a soldier and Miss Bess married one, so Miss Chance had to take charge.

Oscar Geny has been in poor health much of the summer, but is able to look after the greenhouses again now. In fact, he is stronger now than for a long time.

The weather is perfect here this fall and we still have little frost. Of course everything outdoors has been cut down, but the weather man is assisting in the conservation of coal to a remarkable degree. Farmers are still sowing small grain and the pastures are as green as in the spring. F. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

As was expected, Thanksgiving business was good, the market cleaning up quickly in spite of heavy arrivals of stock. While there was quite sufficient stock to go around, the buying was spirited and of a kind not witnessed of late. Practically everything sold well and much more stock would have been taken had it been available. As early as November 26 active buying set in and top-notch prices were reached and maintained until the morning of Thanksgiving day, when arrivals of flowers naturally were light. Chrysanthemums, of course, formed the bulk of the supply and were generally of good quality; but the tell-tale pink flushes on many of the Bonnaffons and some of the white varieties betokened hoarding to an extent, a condition which this year perhaps was excusable, as many of the late varieties had passed and the larger flowers were in especial demand. There was a wealth of pompons and singles, but good prices were obtainable and stock of all colors soon disappeared.

American Beauty roses appeared to stick around the 75-cent mark for specials of ordinary grade, but all other varieties moved at prices considerably in advance of those quoted on the first day of the week. Violets advanced to $1 and some specials of fine quality at $1.50, and they cleaned out well at these prices. Carnations were in good demand, the best bringing 10 cents, chiefly for Mrs. C. W. Ward, but 8 cents was the average top price for good flowers. Some heavy shipments of cypripediums came in and the stock moved well for a time at $1.50 to $2 per dozen. The best cattleyas brought $1 each, but the supply was limited. Lilies moved well at 8 cents to 10 cents each. Quantities of Lilium auratum were in evidence and brought an average of $2 per dozen. Callas were in plenty, but seemed to drag. Stevia, smilax and asparagus sold well.

This week will see the chrysanthemum crop at its end and then we shall be able to make prognostications regarding the Christmas supply of flowers. While many expect that it will be light, owing to the cut in production due to fuel restrictions, it must be remembered that bench plantings of carnations and roses were completed much later this year than usual and the heavy cropping varieties of the former have not yet asserted themselves, but undoubtedly will figure conspicuously in the Christmas trade. A good supply of roses also is to be expected.

With the Thanksgiving business out of the way, the market remains strong, with arrivals light; consequently there is no difficulty experienced in cleaning up. The supply of chrysanthemums is lighter and among the offerings are the late varieties, such as Jeanne Nonin and Seidewitz.

Carnations are improving in quality, but the supply still is not great. Some short-stemmed stock is shipped in, reminding one more of October pickings than a December cut. The best are quickly snapped up, but the rest drag, being used mainly for funeral work.

Roses are in good supply and the quality is excellent. Ophelia seems to predominate, but there is a long list of varieties furnishing a liberal cutting. The cut of American Beauty is not heavy, although adequate to the demand.

The supply of gardenias is still light and really fine flowers are scarce; most of them are sold before their arrival. Orchids are only in fair supply, with cattleyas decidedly short. Trianæ is the only variety suitable for corsage work coming in and perfect flowers of good size bring 75 cents easily. Oncidiums are plentiful, as also are dendrobiums of the Phalænopsis variety; a few sprays of Phalænopsis amabilis are seen, earlier than usual for them.

Lilies and callas are arriving in quantity sufficient for the demand. Lily of the valley remains of poor quality. A few sweet peas are arriving, but do not attract much attention. Mignonette, snapdragon, bouvardia, calendulas and pansies are plentiful and Paper White narcissi are putting in an appearance.

The weather is cool and buying generally is heavier in consequence. As conditions are settling, the public demand for flowers is improving and the trade is hopeful that by New Year's business will bear a semblance of prewar conditions.

An Important Meeting.

President C. H. Totty and Secretary John Young left for Atlantic City, N. J., December 2, where they were to meet Washington Representative William F. Gude, and George Asmus, of Chicago, all members of the committee which President Totty appointed to represent the S. A. F. at the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce to take place December 4 at Atlantic City. Delegates representing every line of industry will be in attendance at this meeting, the object of which is a discussion of the problems of readjustment of business generally. The problems are many, according to the call issued for the meeting, one of the most important being the question: "Are we to have government paternalism in industry? Do we want government supervision, or shall we demand individual creativeness through legal and helpful combination? Remember Germany's paternalism, which became autocratic, and the weakness of paternalism in France." President Schenck, of the New York Florists' Club, appointed Frank H. Traendly and Charles H. Brown to represent the club at the convention and it is understood that C. Albert Small is to represent the New York Retail Florists' Association.

A meeting of the secretaries of the various organizations taking part in the convention is called for the afternoon of December 4 at the Traymore hotel. The convention will be held at Young's Pier.

No Spring Show.

A meeting of the flower show committee was held at the office of the secretary, 1170 Broadway, December 2. The question of holding a flower show next spring was fully discussed. It was ultimately decided that in view of the fact that no building is available for the staging of a show which in character would compare with previous shows, and that prospective exhibitors in the competitive section would find it difficult, if not impossible, to produce material for exhibition within the limited time between now and Easter, the 1919 show be postponed until the following year. Mr. Hollaman, of the International Exposition Co., assured the committee the Grand Central Palace would again be available at that time. It was practically agreed that the show in 1920 should open on a Monday and on dates which would permit closing two weeks before Easter, which occurs April 4.

Various Notes.

Retail florists are rejoicing that passenger service to Europe has been resumed and notices of sailings appear daily in the newspapers. It is hoped that it will not be long before steamer business is again a strong feature of the New York florists' trade.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., of Adrian, Mich., will exhibit some new varieties of late chrysanthemums at the meeting of the New York Florists' Club December 9. As the election of officers will take place at this meeting, there should be a large attendance.

According to an order issued by the U. S. Fuel Administration, effective December 2, all restrictions regarding a fuel supply for florists are lifted. While, perhaps, at this late date such action will not benefit many, it should serve to eliminate the sometimes stupid interference with the delivery of legitimate supplies by local administrators.

Patrick Dunigan, more generally known as "Paddy," was found dead in bed December 2 at his home in Jersey City. He was for many years in the employ of M. C. Ford, wholesale florist at 121 West Twenty-eighth street, but for the last three months was employed by Joseph J. Levy, 56 West Twenty-sixth street.

Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., was a visitor recently.

Curt Thimm, the carnation and chrysanthemum grower, of East Williston, L. I., had an unpleasant experience November 27. Deciding to bring his flowers into market on his own car to insure early arrival, he started with a big load; but while on the main road east of Jamaica, the car turned turtle. Fortunately Mr. Thimm escaped injury, but a quantity of the flowers was badly damaged. However, assistance was obtained and the car was righted and towed into Twenty-eighth street.

Max Schling furnished, among other pieces, a beautiful pall of cattleyas and lily of the valley for the casket of Mrs. Gates, widow of the late financier, John W. Gates, who died last week.

August Buckholtz, a grower of Woodside, L. I., is around again after an attack of pneumonia which laid him up for several weeks.

The annual dinner of the New York Wholesalers' Cut Flower Protective Association will be held at the Hotel Breslin the evening of December 14.

Many of the wholesalers are noticing with regret a disposition on the part of some of the commission men to break away from the Sunday closing agreement. If we are to believe that stock this winter will be decidedly on the short side, there should be little need for Sunday opening.

The sympathy of many of their friends in the trade goes out to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, in the death of their son, Jens, last week at Camp MacArthur.

Roger Case, an orchid shipper, of Barranquilla, Colombia, was in the city last week en route to his home. Besides his orchid interests, Mr. Case operates an oil mill, whose product is castor oil.

The death is reported of Captain Joseph R. De Lamar, of Glen Cove, L. I., which occurred November 24. Captain De Lamar was greatly interested in horticultural matters and was a liberal exhibitor at our flower shows. He will be sadly missed by our flower show enthusiasts, who could depend upon him at all times for support in making their plans.

The park department of the borough of Manhattan is arranging to plant an avenue of American elms on the mall promenade in Central park in memory of the soldiers and sailors who died in the war. Each one is to carry a bronze tablet bearing the names of heroes. This is akin to the sentiment of our slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

It is reported here that the greenhouse property of S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., Westerly, R. I., recently sold by the receiver of the estate, has been acquired by Charles Munro, of New Haven, Conn., who will operate the greenhouses. J. H. P.

Belvidere, Ill.—Lyon & Anderson held their annual flower show November 15 and 16, which was well attended. Visitors were presented with flowers and a large part of the handsome stock displayed was sold at good prices. This firm has plans prepared for enlarging both its store and range.

El Paso, Tex.—H. H. Potter, who conducts both a flower and confectionery business, operating two stores, is among those who are pleased to see the end of hostilities. Not only did he suffer a loss of trade through the disposition to economize in the use of flowers, but during the summer his ice cream and confectionery business was cut almost in half by the Food Administration's edict limiting confectioners to half their normal consumption of sugar. Mr. Potter did not complain, as he was anxious to do his part to help win the war, but he is none the less relieved that the restrictions may be modified now that the war is won.

OBITUARY

Herman Kurth.

Herman Kurth, for many years traveling salesman for the firm of Reed & Keller, Inc., New York city, died November 24, of pneumonia, at the age of 29 years, at his home at Union Hill, N. J. Mr. Kurth was well liked in the trade and among a large circle of friends, because of his kindly disposition.

Charles Mitter.

Charles Mitter, formerly of New York, and more recently of Los Angeles, Cal., died November 27, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Mitter worked for several firms in the east and some years ago took charge of a large estate in Santa Susana. Later he was kentia grower for J. Dieterich, of Los Angeles, and he also looked after the collection of plants at Montebello. He was an efficient grower and a hard-working and conscientious man. His death was due to stomach trouble, which had been getting worse for several months. He was 55 years of age. H. R. Richards.

Mrs. Mary J. Thomas.

Mrs. Mary J. Thomas, one of the old school florists of Baltimore, died last week. Mrs. Thomas was the daughter of Robert J. Halliday, the pioneer florist in Baltimore. For many years she conducted the most exclusive flower store on North Charles street. Twenty years ago she retired and had been living since at Roland Park. Her funeral was largely attended by the older members of the trade and the floral offerings were among the handsomest seen at a funeral in Baltimore for many a year. Tate.

Walter H. Aylward.

Walter H. Aylward, son of the late M. J. Aylward, of Woburn, Mass., died November 29, after a lingering illness, dropsy being the cause of death. The deceased was only 29 years of age and had been associated with his father and later his brother in the greenhouse establishment at Woburn, where roses were a specialty. Mr. Aylward was a stockholder in the Boston Flower Exchange and was well liked by all who knew him. Funeral services were held from his sister's home December 2 to St. Patrick's church, interment being in St. Mary's cemetery, Malden. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including a number from friends in the trade. W. N. C.

Wickliffe, O.—Nick Bowen has bought A. Walker's greenhouse.

Waltham, Mass.—Louis J. Reuter, who was the "Son" of the firm of S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., Westerly, R. I., which went into bankruptcy in March, 1918, has entered the wholesale florists' trade and will supply a general line of plants and bulbs as well as other stock. He expects to open an office in Boston in the spring.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

MUSHROOMS.

The Temperature for Spawning.

I have had the best results in spawning when the temperature of the beds was 85 to 90 degrees, but I have also spawned beds as soon as made and they have done splendidly. On the other hand, beds in which the heat failed to rise above 70 degrees have given heavy crops, but they are longer in starting to produce. Under favorable conditions I have had mushrooms appear in three weeks, but on one occasion, when I had practically despaired of a bed, it started to crop heavily after eighteen weeks. On the average, however, beds start to yield within six weeks and continue to bear for three or four months, much depending on how they are cared for. A person of too nervous a temperament should not grow this crop.

Of late the imported English Milltrack spawn has done indifferently, probably owing to its being so long in transit. This type of mushroom is preferred on the markets. The Pure Culture spawn of Lambert and one or two other specialists is good and always begins bearing ahead of the Milltrack variety.

Planting the Spawn.

The spawn is broken in pieces the size of a large English walnut and planted nine to twelve inches apart each way in the beds, about two inches deep. The manure is left loose over the spawn for about eight days, when the bed is well firmed and a coating of two inches of pasture loam is spread on the surface and well pounded. It is well to keep the beds as dark as possible and free from sunlight and draft. They must not be made near heating pipes; neither must they be located below benches through which much air passes, unless some precaution is taken to keep the currents of air from the beds.

The beds need watering occasionally and warm water, of a temperature of 100 degrees, should be applied. Scatter some dry loam over any small mushrooms before watering. Watering should always be considered a necessary evil, but I have found an occasional spraying with warm water beneficial.

Mushrooms should never be cut, but carefully twisted around and the resultant holes carefully filled. In marketing them, boxes holding four pounds each find special favor, but baskets also are used. Many small growers will be able to dispose of their entire crop at retail or at hotels, which use large numbers.

There is no royal road to success with mushrooms, but cleanliness is of paramount importance. Mushrooms are a nutritious food and in these times the demand for them is large. Given the manure, suitable places for beds and a good market, many country florists might well attempt their culture.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE Editor's Desk has been adorned with a vase of cornflowers cut in the open November 23 by Frank Winans, Petoskey, Mich. He says he has been cutting in quantity all through the autumn.

SOME idea of what the influenza did for, or to, the florists in cities adjacent to the army training camps is shown by the report from Louisville that during the height of the epidemic there were eighty-eight deaths in one night at Camp Taylor.

THE Christmas number of the Rotarian, widely known as the organ of the body from which it takes its name, carries a full-page advertisement by the Associated Rotary Florists, telling all Rotarians to "send flowers for Christmas." The advertisement explains how it may be done by telegraph.

GEORGE F. STRUCK, East Orange, N. J., announces that he severed his connection, November 30, with the Heatherhome Seed & Nursery Co., of which he was one of the organizers. Mr. Struck is widely known in the trade, first as a traveler and later as a member of the Knight & Struck Co. He will not be connected with the florists' business in the future.

COLLECTIONS in the trade were better in November than for many months, but it can not be said that the same was true of the trade's collections from the public; the increased speed with which money has circulated in the trade has been due to increased retail sales, particularly those for cash, rather than to improved collections for the smaller florists, most of whom still are without definite collection systems.

THE average florist finds that in the easy times of old he wasted enough to represent a pretty fair profit.

THE florist who takes no cognizance of accounts that have passed the due date sooner or later finds himself where he can not meet his own bills as due.

THE Editor's Desk has been decorated for several days with a fine vase of anemone-flowered and single chrysanthemums grown by Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind.

THE Florists' Hail Association is in admirable condition; every claim thus far presented this year has been paid and there is a balance of $5,000 for subsequent losses, besides $45,000 in the reserve fund.

AFTER nearly five years, the steamer business soon will come back to New York retailers in volume far greater than ever. It will give another tremendous impetus to the rapidly developing transfer order system represented by the F. T. D. and the Pink Section of this paper.

THE florists who have established reputations as prompt pay will profit by it now. With many lines of stock far short of the demand, the slow payer, the man who "flies off the handle" when asked to settle an overdue account and the one who seeks an excuse for a kick may expect to see the men who pay on dot get first call on the merchandise.

WHERE THE PICKING'S GOOD.

There is a saying current with our boys in France that "the place to get doughnuts is where they're bein' passed." It is just another way of indicating that the number and variety of advertisements in The Review constitute an attraction for the buyers. Like this:

We are sold out of cinerarias, thanks to The Review.—B. E. Constien, Upper Sandusky, O., December 2, 1918.

Our 5-inch cyclamens are sold up; again the little classified ad in The Review did the work. —Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind., December 2, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

THANKSGIVING BUSINESS.

It is no news to say that Thanksgiving made a new record in the trade; that it would do so had been foreseen from Victory day.

The report is unanimous that the florists' business never profited by the observance of Thanksgiving as it did this year. Every available flower was called into use. That the increase in sales was not greater was due solely to the fact that supplies of stock were inadequate to meet the demand. Individual increases in sales were in accordance with the individual's supply of stock and his idea of what the public would stand in the way of prices. Flowers never fetched the prices they did this Thanksgiving. While it may be that some buyers were deterred by the prices, there were plenty who were willing to pay whatever was asked. While values generally were close to what the trade has become accustomed to call Christmas prices, it seems generally to have been true that more flowers could have been sold at these prices or even somewhat higher prices. With the supply short and no price cutters in sight, flowers seem to be worth what one is pleased to ask for them.

The trade has special reason for thanksgiving. While florists came through the war in better shape than most other lines of so-called luxury trades, there have been few lines that have been benefited more promptly or to a greater extent by the caving in of the Central Powers.

NONESSENTIALS IN DEMAND.

The weekly review of general business conditions by the Dun commercial agency shows that the florists' trade is not the only one of the so-called nonessential lines which has been stimulated by the ending of the war. Says Dun:

Retail business in the last two weeks has been gaining momentum steadily until it is now as large as or larger than ever before was known, with prospects that these conditions will continue through the holidays. Although it is rather early for the heaviest Christmas rush, shops are crowded. The change in the character of the buying is most noticeable and many lines, such as evening clothes and the more expensive grades of wearing apparel, knick-knacks, toys and others of recently much exploited "nonessentials" have come into their own with the removal of restrictions, governmental and conscientious.

The trade improvement seems to be general in the central states. The large mail order houses have done in November a business twenty-five per cent or more in excess of that for the corresponding month last year. One of them reports an increase of 100 per cent in the sales of pianos. These gains are especially significant because the "nonessential" business of these establishments normally is rather small in proportion to the whole.

Orders to wholesalers for immediate delivery are ahead of last year, but there is still noticeable a slight disposition to hold off on future commitments. Money is plentiful, with signs of approaching easiness for the first time in many months. Collections are uniformly good.

It speaks for a big winter's business for all florists who are able to supply the demand.

CHICAGO

The Market.

Remembering that the Thanksgiving business in 1917 was unusually good, it still seems to be well within the facts to sum up the Thanksgiving business of 1918 as double that of last year. It is a record the like of which never has been known in the Chicago market.

It really is a matter for more than passing remark that the largest houses in the market should have been able to double their Thanksgiving sales. They did. One house reports that for twelve consecutive business days its sales approximated $5,000 per day in cut flowers and greens alone, over $100,000 in the month. These are figures which seem almost incredible to the older generation of florists, but which show how wonderfully the Chicago market has grown and how important it is to those in the trade over a wide radius in the central part of the United States.

The report of the Thanksgiving business of the Chicago market really is a record of the trade activities in the whole central part of America, for an enormous volume of shipping was done, reaching almost every town from Winnipeg to the Rio Grande and the far southeast. The fact that prices were the highest ever known at Thanksgiving seemed to have no effect whatever on the demand from out of town. With the out-of-town florist it seemed not a question of price, but of the ability to secure flowers. The city buyers had a hard time of it. The majority of them "shop." They go from house to house and buy where they can get the best stock for the least money. Those who place the bulk of their business regularly with certain wholesalers had the same consideration given to the man out of town, but the "shopper" in many cases was told that all the stock in sight was "sold," reserved to fill orders from regular customers. The retailers do not complain of any lack of business for Thanksgiving, but many complain of their inability to secure stock and of the fact that the prices were so high they could not make their usual margin of profit.

There was a large supply of flowers in the market, but probably not more than in recent years, which shows the increase in sales to have resulted from the higher average prices; that and the cleaning up of practically all the odds and ends, stock that has no great value in a market that is well supplied.

It might be said that there was a shortage all along the line. There was nothing of any consequence left unsold; one or two houses had a little more stevia than they could place, and a few had some yellow pompons left, the latter being the most abundant flower. Chrysanthemums were not so plentiful as usual, the Thanksgiving varieties having been cut a fortnight early this year in many cases. Carnations were nowhere near equal to the demand and brought Christmas prices. The longest roses were more nearly equal to the demand than were the medium and shorter grades. Violets sold better than at any time this season. Sweet peas do not yet cut much figure. White flowers, of course, were least in request, but there were ready buyers for everything, making the greatest Thanksgiving clean-up ever known in this market.

At variance with the usual experience, there has been no let-down since the holiday rush. Shipping demand continues to absorb all the stock coming to the market, especially roses and carnations, and prices are holding right up. It is apparent, not only that business is good all through the country, but that chrysanthemums are well cut out, just as they are here.

The retailers complain they cannot even get all the good boxwood they need to make funeral wreaths and that galax is so short they have to hunt for it.

The November Business.

November goes on record as much better than the month ever before has been in the Chicago market. Just how good it was in individual experience seems to depend on what the individual had for sale, rather than on the general condition. Some of the wholesale houses report the increase was fully up to the October increase, while others did not make so good a percentage of gain as in the preceding month. Anyone who had stock had a splendid November business. The month started well, with the momentum of the big demand in October. In the height of the chrysanthemum season there was some weakening in prices, but no decrease in the daily aggregate of sales, and as Thanksgiving approached the market stiffened after a fashion never before known in this center. The Thanksgiving prices were those ordinarily charged at Christmas and that the values were logical is shown by the fact that there was nothing left unsold and that prices have

November Weather.

November was an unusually favorable month for the growers. The mean temperature was more than 4 degrees above normal, making the month one of the warmest Novembers on record; only three times in the history of the weather office has the month's average been higher. The percentage of sunshine was forty-nine, the month usually giving only forty-seven per cent of the possible amount. Only twice in the month was there a killing frost, and it was not until November 22 that there was freezing temperature.

Various Notes.

It is reported that Ernest Eriksson, who has been grower for A. H. Schneider at Oak Park, has leased the Martin Radtke place in Maywood and will start in business for himself as a plantsman.

Peter Reinberg once more has demonstrated that he puts the public interest ahead of personal gain. As president of the board of county commissioners Mr. Reinberg vetoed the action of that body in raising the salaries of its members. His action was taken in spite of the fact that the board also raised the president's salary from $7,000 to $9,000 per year. When it came to the test, only one other member stood with the president and the increases were carried in spite of the president's statement that the county needed the money for much more urgent other uses.

J. T. Caulfield has sublet to a druggist the store at 811 East Sixty-third street, previously occupied by the Woodlawn Floral Shop. S. Y. Bloom, whose flower store is in the next block east, says he has not lost any sleep over the news.

D. D. P. Roy arranged last week to enter the employ of the American Bulb Co.

Anthony Batels now has the greenhouses at Shermerville previously operated by F. F. Scheel. They are planted principally to carnations, the chrysanthemums having been cut. The stock is being sold by A. T. Pyfer & Co. Mr. Batels is not a florist, but is an extensive landowner in the vicinity, a horticultural enthusiast and said to be of the belief that he knows how to run a commercial greenhouse establishment.

Winterson's Seed Store last week arranged for a considerable shipment of bulbs by express from New York to enable it to finish filling fall orders.

J. C. Nielsen, southern representative for Poehlmann Bros. Co., has opened permanent headquarters for his firm at Birmingham, Ala., where a line of supplies will be shown and a small stock for emergency uses carried. Mr. Nielsen will make his residence in Birmingham and travel through the south.

George C. Weiland is elated over the record-breaking Thanksgiving business he did at his Evanston store. The finishing touch of happiness was added December 1, when he was presented with a new baby boy. Mr. Weiland now has five sons and a daughter.

Phil Schupp says J. A. Budlong has experienced thus far an unusually good season with Double White Killarney, choice stock having brought as high as 20 to 25 cents, a price never before obtainable for this rose.

N. J. Wietor, who brought out the new pompon, Liberty Loan, reports that it was a big success and an extremely good seller.

O. J. Friedman says he had an unusually good trade Thanksgiving day, in spite of the bad weather. This was due to the location of Mr. Friedman's store, which has two entrances, one being on the famous Peacock alley of the Congress hotel; the people frequenting this place are good corsage buyers. Mr. Friedman received a large number of good orders for the funeral of one of the owners of the Congress hotel.

Miss L. A. Tonner has returned from Baconton, Ga., where she has been looking after her own as well as her family's interests in pecan groves.

After having several weeks' rest, John Mangel's beautifully colored ducks are back on exhibition again in his Palmer House window. The ducks are one of his big assets in attracting the passing public.

George Kasper, proprietor of the store on the west side which bears his name, and also connected with the Batavia Greenhouse Co., has received word from his brother, William J. Kasper, who is in the service in France. He tells of his many experiences and of queer sights. From the tone of the letter, which was written near the close of the war, it is evident that the people on this side knew more about what was going on than did the fighting boys. Mr. Kasper was associated with his brother in the retail store before going into the army.

Carl Ickes, of the Ickes-Braun Mill Co., reports that his concern, like others which have been held down by war conditions, is flooded with inquiries and it now looks like a banner year in 1919.

At Morton Grove, Poehlmann Bros. Co. made the first cut of poinsettias November 27.

The Florists' Club holds its monthly meeting tonight, December 5, at the Randolph hotel. Officers for 1919 are to be elected, without, it is said, a contest. There is to be a lecture on business systems by Hodgson Jolly, whose system of interesting his audience is understood to be described by his name.

A few days before Thanksgiving Edward Mallinson, manager for the Fleischman Floral Co., displayed in the window two large baskets containing choice fruits. The baskets were decorated with several varieties of orchids and other fine flowers and were staged on a black velvet background. The result was that the store force was kept busy making up these baskets for Thanksgiving and they brought a good price.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., says that the greenhouse heating department is unusually busy on estimates and inquiries since hostilities have ceased and he predicts that it will be a big task taking care of orders when the next season opens up.

Visitors.

One of last week's visitors was Louis Hartung, who has been in the florists' business at Two Rivers, Wis., for forty years. Because of the expected fuel restrictions and the belief that he is entitled to a rest after so many years of service, he closed his place this autumn and was on his way, with Mrs. Hartung, to Atlanta, Ga., where they will spend the winter. If the place of 6,000 feet of glass is not sold by spring they will reopen it then. Their son, Norbert E. Hartung, is in France.

S. W. Pike, of St. Charles, Ill., spent December 2 in the market. He has had an extremely busy summer, but his look of contentment is the result of the knowledge that his houses are filled to their capacity with stock for what he believes will be the best season he ever has experienced.

Warren G. Matthews, Dayton, O., was in the market early this week, buying stock, and the roll of bills he employed in some of his deals indicated his continued faith in the old saying that "money talks."

Wm. J. Hembreiker, of Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, Ill., paid a visit to the local market the early part of this week.

Sam Graff, of Columbus, O., came here to look the market over and left some large cut flower orders.

Edward Amerpohl, of Janesville, Wis., was a visitor in the market this week.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The condition of the local wholesale cut flower market last week was good or bad, depending on the point of view. Retailers would call it bad, as there was not an overabundance of roses and carnations and prices just previous to Thanksgiving were extraordinarily high. For the growers, however, the market was good, the returns for their stock being greater than usual. Business for the holiday was exceptionally good, and as chrysanthemums were in larger supply than in any previous year, the large demand for these flowers was satisfied. There was a great scarcity of roses, carnations and other seasonable flowers, with the exception of mums, and prices were high.

The shipments of chrysanthemums were large and some big blooms of Eaton, Chadwick, Golden Wedding and other late varieties brought as high as $5 per dozen. The best Bonnaffons sold for $3 per dozen. The supply of pompons also was large. Carnations brought the highest prices at Thanksgiving time in years, $10 to $12.50 per hundred being asked for good stock. At that the demand was larger than the supply November 27 and 28. Roses, too, were held at unusually high prices. There was a good supply of Easter lilies at $2 per dozen. Violets, sweet peas, valley and orchids were not abundant and brought high prices. A good supply of stevias and calendulas was in the market. Greens also advanced in price, the supply not being plentiful.

Thanksgiving Business.

Business for Thanksgiving day was reported the best in years by florists from all parts of the city. The only drawback from the retailers' standpoint was the high prices. But the demand principally was for mums and blooming plants and both of these were in adequate supply.

In the west end F. C. Weber, Otto Sander, Joseph Witek, F. H. Weber and John Boerm had all they could do, and Miss M. Newman, George Waldbart and the Ayres Floral Co. reported the usual heavy rush of business for the day.

In the north end the Mullanphy Florists, Bentzen Floral Co., Pieper Floral Co. and Tower's say they were swamped with business, as much funeral work was coupled with the Thanksgiving call.

The downtown florists, of course, did the largest business, and all the stores were crowded the days before Thanksgiving, while the call on the holiday was excellent. Martin Seeger, of the Mullanphy Florists, and Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, both say the demand was much larger than in previous years, with prices about double the normal.

Fred Foster, the Riessen Floral Co., George Berner, Ostertag Bros., C. Young & Sons Co. and Sanders' Gardens all cleaned up their stock and say they could have done more business had flowers been available.

The florists in the south end also report extra good business, the Eggeling Floral Co., Windler's Flowers, the Schoenle Floral Co., the C. Bergstermann Floral Co. and C. Beyer having all they could take care of. Mrs. F. W. Bruenig, A. Meyer and W. H. Kruse, too, had a splendid business in cut flowers and plants, as did Mrs. M. L. Pelletier and the Diemer Floral Co.

Various Notes.

A joint meeting of committees from the Florists' Club, the Retail Florists' Association, the County Growers' Association and the Wholesalers' Association was held November 26 at the headquarters. L. Jules Bourdet was chairman and J. J. Beneke secretary. The meeting was held to make arrangements for a victory meeting and banquet and after considerable discussion it was decided to appoint a committee of five to have charge of the affair, which will be held December 10. The committee is as follows: A. H. Hummert, H. G. Berning, J. J. Windler, W. A. Rowe and A. Lurie. The committees appropriated $400 to defray the expenses. The meeting and banquet are for every florist in St. Louis and vicinity and invitations will be mailed. The banquet will be held at one of the leading hotels. There will be no charge to those receiving invitations.

Hugo Werner, of Werner Bros., Clayton, reports a visit from the stork, which left a boy last week.

W. A. Rowe, Phil. Goebel and the Meier brothers were some of the fortunate ones who had heavy cuts of chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving.

Charles C. Young, president of C. Young & Sons Co., and Oscar Ruff, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., are sick with the influenza. Mr. Young is confined to his home, but Mr. Ruff was taken to a hospital November 27. Last reports say that both are on the road to recovery.

There will be a meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club at the headquarters, 1312 Pine street, December 12, at 2 p. m. All members are urged to be present.

At the meeting of the Retail Florists' Association, held November 25 at the Palms, it was decided to hold sessions every two weeks during the winter. President J. J. Windler announces that all retail florists are invited to attend the meetings of the association.

Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, was a recent visitor.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held its first indoor meeting of the season December 4. It was the annual meeting and officers were elected.

The Market.

Thanksgiving, November and chrysanthemums have gone, leaving the market bare. The change from plenty to scarcity is the more marked because there was more business just before Thanksgiving than there has been since. While there will, of course, be some late chrysanthemums for the winter, they were closely sold, the wholesalers getting everything in that was fit and selling all they got. There is nothing ready to fill the gap. Carnations are only in moderate crop, while roses are not expected to come in plentifully until toward Christmas. Violets have fallen off in numbers, while the miscellaneous flowers, usually so important at this time, are arriving in small numbers.

Under these conditions, prices have advanced. As they advance it is noticed that the lower grades are preferred to the upper and the lower-priced varieties are preferred to the higher-priced. For example, roses with short stems sell much better at high figures than do fancy roses, while both Beauties and orchids are in oversupply.

Pompons are holding out with some growers. There is little bouvardia to be seen. Both the green and variegated stevia are coming into town and there are a few Paper Whites, some yellow daisies and some pansies.

The chrysanthemum season just closed has been remarkable. Despite the fact that war conditions prevailed, prices have been higher than for many years and they have been well sustained. There was really no depression from overproduction at any time. This was due partly to there being fewer grown, but mainly to the choice of varieties. There were more late and midseason varieties grown and less of the early sorts, although in fairness it must be said that the season found an extraordinary market for early sorts, owing to the epidemic. Prices were at their lowest during the first week of November and at their highest during the last week. An exception to this may be found in some of the sales during October, which, quality considered, rivaled those of Thanksgiving week.

Reconstruction.

We have reached a most interesting period in the history of our business. The government has ceased to check production through curtailing fuel and withdrawing labor, and conditions are likely to improve slowly.

How to meet the present conditions is a serious question. So serious is it as to cause a wide difference of opinion as to the best course to pursue. So wide is this difference of opinion that producers are divided into two camps—those who believe it is best to go slowly and those who believe it is best to go ahead at full speed. The former, and by far the larger body of growers, both of plants and cut flowers, made their arrangements on the basis of the fifty per cent fuel order of last spring. When that was changed in the fall, they had not the labor or the stock ready to operate their entire ranges at once. They believe it better to run part of their places at a profit than to risk a loss of the whole, and they will wait and watch.

The other and smaller group of growers are willing to take a chance. This group includes a few plant growers and more growers of cut flowers, of whom many are rose growers. They have secured fuel of some sort and expect to get more. They have met the labor prices somehow and are confident that the market will reimburse them for their extremely heavy outlay. This confidence has been greatly strengthened by peace.

The wholesalers as a body are inclined to agree with the second group of growers, to which view they naturally incline. Here again opinion is divided. "If the market holds," and "If prices do not have to go too high," are the qualifying statements.

Results will be watched with keen interest.

The Bulbs at Dreer's.

When it became known that Henry A. Dreer, Inc., had for a second time closed its store in order to get out its bulbs on time, people were not surprised. The bulbs were nearly four weeks later in arriving than last year. If it was a good thing to do then, it probably was an even better thing this year. So when the store reopened, after two weeks' work behind closed doors, and the smoke had been given time to clear away, a descent was made on 714 to learn something about bulbs. Perhaps descent is not the word; ascent would be better, for George D. Clark, who has the bulbs in charge, is on the fourth floor. The smoke had evidently thoroughly cleared, as Mr. Clark was found cleaning hollyhock seed. He kindly stopped to talk bulbs. Here is what he said: "We received pretty nearly all our bulbs and we have sent them all out except a few Paper Whites. They were in fine condition and, generally speaking, we received what we ordered. The volume of business was about the same as last year; a little smaller in the number of bulbs, a little larger in the amount of money, but you must remember that both last year and this year were decidedly below 1916. It has been our plan to order conservatively. Bulbs are highly perishable; it is not a good plan to have too many.

"Soon after peace was declared I wrote regarding Lilium giganteum. I felt so much cheered by the ending of the war that I departed from the usual business form and said, 'Now we have the Kaiser Kanned Kant we have some bulbs'? The answer was discouraging: 'It is too likely they will be frozen in transit in winter.' So it appears we shall have to do without. Of course, there are some lilies here and there are said to be a great many in Canada."

At the Adelphi.

The December meeting of the Florists' Club was held in the Hotel Adelphi December 3. This is the second move the club has made since its home in Horticultural hall was lost. The club met for a year in the Grand Fraternity building, but it seemed too vast and unhomelike, so S. S. Skidelsky's suggestion of meeting in a hotel is now being tried. J. Otto Thilow delivered the postponed address on "The Florists' Business in Wartime." It proved a far happier topic than would have been possible had it been delivered at the time originally proposed.

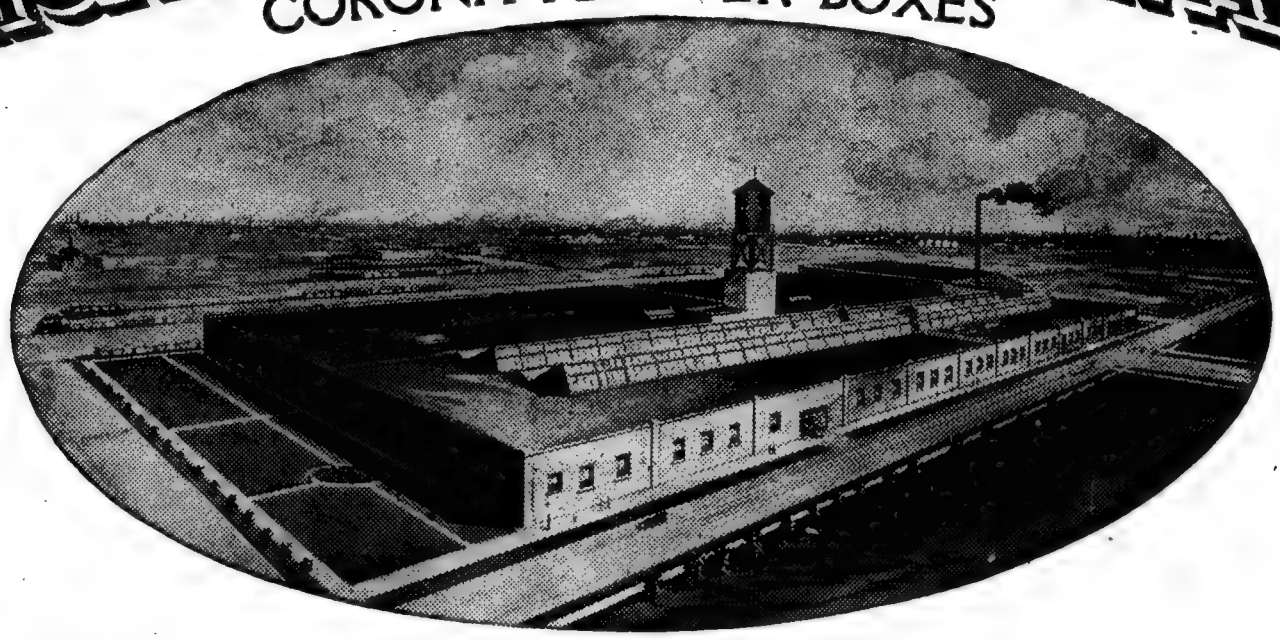
Various Notes.



The Henry F. Michell Co. has received something like 300 additional cases of bulbs from Holland by a steamer supposed to have been sunk by a mine in the English channel. They all will be distributed this week.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have received invoices of immortelles from Marseilles that were paid for last July and have been lying at that port ever since. Mr. Bayersdorfer thinks the immortelles may be here this week. The quality and variety are unknown.

The M. Rice Co. states that November, though short on days, was the best month in the history of the house.

Plans were made by the Henry F. Michell Co. November 29 for reconnecting that half of their greenhouses at Andalusia that were cut off when the fifty per cent fuel order was issued by the government last spring.

James M. Thoirs received the sad news November 25 that his son, Raymond C. Thoirs, had been killed in France October 4.

Henry C. Geiger left for California December 4.

John Upton, formerly with the Joseph Heacock Co., at Roelofs, has been stationed at Laredo, Tex., since he entered the service eighteen months ago, a disappointment because he wanted to go overseas, but some troops were needed within reach of the Mexican border.

Harry O. May, of Summit, N. J., was here November 29.

A prominent retailer says that there is more good stock on the place of the Robert Craig Co., at Norwood, than on any other place in this country or abroad.

A number of private greenhouses that were to have been closed will be operated, with the easing of the coal situation.

The window of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is rich in glorious croton colors.

The reappearance of Charles H. Grakelow at the City Business Club brought out a hearty welcome to the member who had been reported lost to them, owing to influenza.

Irvin Rosner relieves Mrs. Drew-Bear of much of her buying for the London Flower Shop, Ltd.

BOSTON.

The Market.

From the growers' point of view, Thanksgiving business was satisfactory. Prices were high on all flowers and practically everything sold up clean. Retailers were in a less fortunate position, as the extremely high prices militated against good business and, while they had large sales, they would have been much larger if flowers had been less costly. Roses made higher prices than ever before known here for Thanksgiving. Current quotations were at the rate of $1 per inch of stem per hundred. Carnations sold splendidly. All the best flowers averaged $8 per hundred, with some specials higher. The lowest average of other grades was $6 per hundred. There was a shortage of violets, good singles easily realizing $2 per hundred and doubles $1.50 to $2. Chrysanthemums never sold so well and they brought double last year's prices, Bonnaffon being the greatest seller.

Yellow marguerites sold at from $1 to $4 per hundred and there was an excellent call for pansies, snapdragon, callas, lilies, stevia and other flowers. Among the choicer offerings, cattleyas were plentiful and sold up to $75 per hundred. There was a moderate call for plants.

Since Thanksgiving prices have declined, but there is little surplus stock arriving. Roses sell for the most part at $4 to $16 per hundred; carnations, $4 to $6. Violets continue scarce and singles have made as high as $2.50 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are becoming fewer and some of the blooms show signs of old age. Prices continue good, however. A few sweet peas are seen and pansies are of excellent quality. Stevia is abundant and a few Paper Whites are seen. Callas are selling remarkably well. Some fine bouvardia is coming in. Cypripediums are in good supply, but cattleyas are much less abundant and high prices are likely to prevail throughout December.

Various Notes.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, has had a successful season with chrysanthemums and his receipts are double those of a year ago, with a fair number of flowers still to cut. He has a grand lot of cyclamens this year and the greater proportion are already sold for Christmas.

I have never seen as fine pansies at this early season as E. J. Rogean is handling for Osgood Bros., the Everett specialists. Individual flowers measured November 30 were three and one-quarter inches across and these large flowers have great substance and come in a fine variety of colors.

While the high prices of flowers affected in some degree the shipping trade, Joseph Margolis, of H. M. Robinson & Co., says that his firm did a heavy Thanksgiving business and looks for a record Christmas demand.

Henry Quint, of Boyleston street, states that in spite of high prices and a great shortage of help, he took in more cash than ever before at Thanksgiving. He is handling fewer bulbs than usual this season, owing to their late arrival.

George H. Noyes handled good carnations from W. D. Howard and S. J.

was excellent and kept all hands busy.

The fine open weather experienced throughout November proved excellent for the sale of bulbs for outdoor planting and stocks at all the seed stores now are practically exhausted.

Welch Bros. Co. reports a satisfactory Thanksgiving business, although shipping orders would have been larger but for the high price of flowers.

John I. Gale, of Tewksbury, is a successful grower of yellow marguerites in winter and for some weeks has been cutting quantities of flowers which have sold as high as $4 per hundred. The supply of this popular flower promises to be much reduced here this winter.

Robert Capers, son of Thomas Capers, of Wellesley Hills, who served for some months with the American army in France, has been invalided home and is at present ill with double pneumonia in a hospital at Newport News.

November proved to be warmer than normal. The mean temperature was 41½ degrees against 34⅘ degrees in November, 1917, which proved to be an exceptionally cold month. Precipitation was extremely light this year. The first snowfall occurred December 1.

Among new corporations listed here during November is the L. J. Reuter Co., plant brokers, with present offices at Waverley, Oak road, Waltham. The new concern will deal in all kinds of plants and supplies, specializing in trees, plants and bulbs. L. J. Reuter, head of the new firm, is the son of the late S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, R. I. He recently was with Peirce Bros., Waltham, and is well known to the local trade.

Various Notes.

Superintendent George W. Burke, of the Bureau of Parks, and Foreman John W. Jones, of Schenley park, contributed the floral decorations for the public Thanksgiving service held in Syria Mosque, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Tropical plants were used in profusion, with quantities of specimen chrysanthemums from the Phipps Conservatory.

Mrs. Alice Gastovich, the widow of Richard Gastovich, died November 25, in the Presbyterian hospital, where she was taken November 21. Mrs. Gastovich had been with relatives in Bethlehem, Pa., following the funeral of her husband and had just returned to Pittsburgh to resume her duties with the Ludwig Floral Co. when she was attacked with influenza, which rapidly developed into pneumonia. The funeral services were held November 28 in the chapel of Schellhass & Sons. Owing to the death of Mrs. Gastovich, who had been with the firm more or less during the last five years until her marriage two years ago, and other deaths affecting members of the staff, the Ludwig store has been characterized by a spirit of gloom for several days and friends of the family have come in to help out with volunteer service. Miss Mathilda and Miss Margaret Baldinger, who have long been identified with the staff, buried their brother, William Baldinger, November 28, as the result of a paralytic stroke following influenza. While not directly identified with the trade, he was the son of the late Henry and Philomena Baldinger, well known floral pioneers of this section, the former having died last year. Mr. Baldinger, who was 36 years of age, lived with his sisters on Federal street, north side, where the funeral services were held November 28, the interment being in the South Side cemetery.

The Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania met November 19 for the first time in two months, the October session having been canceled owing to the ban on public gatherings. Secretary Anthony Aloysius Leach presided in the absence of President William Allen, superintendent of the Homewood cemetery, the attendance being smaller than usual owing to illness and the stormy weather. There was no formal program, but Mr. Burnet contributed a splendid varied display of vegetables grown under his supervision on J. Denniston Lyon's country estate at Sewickley Heights, while from Benjamin Franklin Jones' neighboring farm were exhibited a number of gorgeous chrysanthemums grown by William Thompson, Jr.

Anthony W. Smith, Jr., has sufficiently recovered from an attack of influenza to enable him to return to business. Frank J. Zak, of the Smith staff, has just returned from his semimonthly week's trip through the western section of the state in the interests of the firm. Mrs. Pearl Gardener, Miss Mary Shearer and Miss Alice De France are recent additions to the designing force upstairs.

George E. McCallum returned November 24 to the Municipal Pier, Chicago, having been home on furlough over the national holiday. Mr. McCallum, who was one of the first influenza victims in the states, having been attacked on reaching Chicago, has meanwhile gained twenty pounds in weight.

The condition of Michael Kronis continues favorable, following a serious operation in Mercy hospital November 29. Mr. Kronis has been in indifferent health for the last year and was ill for three weeks, but his physicians, family and friends now hope for his ultimate recovery. His business interests are being looked after by his two brothers, John and Nicholas Kronis, and Spiro Kaps, a cousin. J. H. Seaman, who has been for several months with Randolph & McClements, has returned to his former position at Mr. Kronis's East Liberty Alpha Flower Shop, on Penn avenue.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE War Industries Board, while urging that waste be eliminated, has canceled all paper restrictions except on newspapers; the seedsman may do as he will with his catalogue.

CHARLES F. GUELF, representing the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., spent the week end in Chicago, recuperating from the strenuosity of the Wisconsin Canners' convention at Milwaukee.

VISITED Chicago: H. A. Johns, president of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia.; Joseph Edmundsen, of the California Seed Growers' Association, San Jose, Cal. Mr. Edmundsen is contracting for 1919, principally onion seed.

GEORGE TEGELAAR, of Drevon, Tegelaar & Co., Marseilles, France, who makes his home and headquarters in Chicago, has arrived after having been marooned for months at Marseilles because of his inability to secure passage to the United States.

THE indications are that the exporters of French and Dutch bulbs will do much less than the usual amount of traveling to the United States this winter and spring. The houses which have American branches will seek to book orders by correspondence.

CABLES of inquiry from Japanese exporters of lily bulbs seem to indicate that there are quantities of bulbs in storage at Yokohama, held in anticipation of the removal of the present importation restrictions of our War Trade Board. If the bulbs can be brought in they will be extremely welcome.

THAT the price of onion sets will be advanced when shipments are begun after January 1 is the assertion of A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago. Growers in and about Chicago say that the warm weather this fall has caused a considerable loss through sprouting, which makes for higher prices on good stock.

C. O. WILCOX, who has represented the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, in southern territory during the last nine years, has resigned and will be connected with Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville. His connection with the Barnard company ended November 30. He has just returned from a southern trip and reports that business in that section is excellent.

J. BOLGIANO & SON, Baltimore, Md., have added to their force Thorburn A. Bixler, in the field seed department. Mr. Bixler comes from an old line of seedsmen, being named for his great-grandfather, J. M. Thorburn, who founded the house of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York city. For a number of years Mr. Bixler has been connected with the wholesale field seed trade.

THE Great Western Seed Co., Hamilton, Mont., will pay $150,000 to the farmers of Bitter Root valley this season for seed crops. The company has rented a warehouse along the tracks of the Northern Pacific railway and installed a seed cleaner. The capacity of the warehouse is from 500 to 1,000 bushels of seeds a day, according to the cleanliness of the seed. This company is operating a simi-

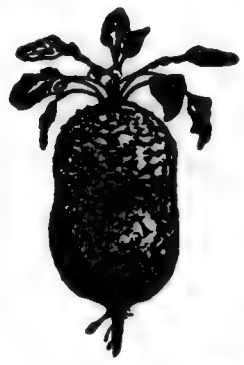
CANNERS—SEEDMEN.

Meetings of the state canners' associations are keeping the seed salesmen on the jump.



The convention of the Minnesota Canners' Association was held this week at the Radisson hotel, Minneapolis, the dates being December 3 and 4. The New York State Canners' Association met the same days at the Powers hotel, Rochester, N. Y.

After two postponements because of the ban in Indiana on public gatherings, the Indiana Canners' Association will hold its convention at the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, December 12 and 13. The last postponement was to December 4, but this was changed to the later dates.

Chicago will entertain the annual convention of the national association, which will be held at the La Salle hotel, beginning January 20. This meeting will draw representatives of all the large seed houses to Chicago, but there will be no exhibits this year. The association decided to bar exhibits during the war and peace came too late for the plans to be changed.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Wisconsin Canners' Association, in Milwaukee, November 26 and 27. "Everyone reported that business is excellent and that all are preparing for a big season next year; consequently, all at the meeting were happy," reports one of those in attendance. Among the seedsmen present

CHRISTMAS GREENS.

Shipments of Christmas greens have begun to arrive in Chicago and with their appearance dealers are in a position to say what the condition of the market will be for the holidays.

M. S. Smith, of the W. W. Barnard Co., sums up the condition as follows:

There will be hardly enough lycopodium to go around.

Practically no good holly will be in the market, but there will be some inferior stock.

Mistletoe, which comes by express, will be in normal supply.

Small evergreens in tubs already are being displayed in some stores.

AUSTRALIAN GRASS SEED.

Grass seed exports from Australia to the United States in 1917 were more than triple those of 1916, the annual report of J. I. Brittain, U. S. consul general at Sydney, shows. The exports in 1917 were 143,182 pounds, valued at $36,602, as compared with 40,493 pounds valued at $12,380 in 1916. Australia's imports of seed from all countries showed a slight increase in 1917 over 1916, the values being $1,403,518 in 1917 and $1,346,872 in 1916.

THE NATION'S SEED SUPPLY.

[This is the seventh installment of an extract from the monograph on "The Seed Supply of the Nation," by R. A. Oakley, agronomist in charge of seed distribution, Bureau of Plant Industry. The first installment appeared October 3.]

Vine seeds, so called, are domestic-grown and their production is fairly well scattered over the United States. The important vine seeds are those of muskmelon, cucumber, watermelon, squash and pumpkin. Most of the muskmelon seed comes from the Arkansas valley in southeastern Colorado. Cucumber seed likewise comes from this section and from the northeastern states. Watermelon seed comes from Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Squash and pumpkin seed come from Nebraska, Wisconsin, Michigan and other northern and eastern states. With the exception of squash, vine seeds are secondary products, since the crops producing them are grown for other purposes. The supply of seed is sufficient for our needs, as is normally the case.

Until recently much carrot, beet and parsnip seed was imported, but now our needs are fairly well supplied from our own crops, which for the most part are grown in California. Some seed of these vegetables, especially of carrots, is exported, but the exportable surplus is small. Because of their relatively high food value, and the fact that two years' growth is required by them to produce seed, the seed supply of these vegetables has been watched with considerable interest. the time required for seed production by transferring stecklings to Cuba and Porto Rico for winter planting has been considered, but this course is not deemed practicable as yet.

Tomato and Lettuce Seed.

Much commercial tomato seed is obtained as a by-product from the canning of tomatoes and the making of catsup and other tomato products. In some cases the reverse is true, and the seed is the main product, while the tomato pulp is sold to food manufacturers. The wholesale price of tomato seed has advanced greatly in the last year, but the cost of labor, more than the size of the tomato crop, determines the price and the quantity of seed.

California produces lettuce seed and the supply is rarely in doubt. Lettuce has little real food value, but, like radishes, it is found in all gardens and is on the market throughout the year. The seed requirements, therefore, are large.

A great many other vegetables, such as celery, parsley, okra and collards, are grown, but we are able to produce enough seed of these to meet our own needs without special difficulty.

The high prices that obtain for vegetable seed doubtless will stimulate the planting of a much larger acreage for seed in the future than even that of 1917 and this should not be discouraged. On the other hand, these prices will tempt inexperienced growers to engage in the industry, with a financial loss to themselves and without profit to the country. This would be a real economic waste and should be avoided.

Other countries, notably Japan, are encouraging the production of vegetable seed, but as yet they have not materially affected the market here.

Summary and Outlook.

Never before in the history of our country has the question of seed supply been so vitally important and never has it been so necessary that all legitimate agencies engaged directly or indirectly in the production or dissemination of seed be utilized efficiently for the national good. It is not the time to break down any feature of the great seed industry organization, since there are no means at hand effectively to replace the tested and proved parts of the machinery. Individual interests must expect to suffer, but they must be protected to the extent of obtaining from them the greatest possible measure of efficiency.

Temporary seed shortages have developed under new economic conditions and they may continue, but farmers and seedsmen are resourceful and they may be expected to find ways and means to meet not only the needs of this country, but also those of other countries which may be dependent upon us.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Thanksgiving proved to be a bumper occasion for the florists of this city and vicinity, the volume of business reported being far in excess of that for similar days in several years. There was much to be thankful for and money was plentiful and the demand greater than the supply of A-1 stock. The long period of mild weather had given the growers much uneasiness on account of the early maturing of Thanksgiving stock, which caused a shortage in some lines.

As it was known several days in advance that the usual stock was inadequate for a greatly increased demand, prices took an upward tendency early in the week. Providence has always made much of chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving and the queen of autumn held full sway on its throne of glory and brought the best prices ever known here, ranging from $1.50 to $8 per dozen wholesale for single blooms, while sprays and seconds sold at correspondingly high rates.

Various Notes.

Nathan Max, of San Francisco, arrived November 28 and is stopping with his brother-in-law, Joseph E. Koppelman.

Charles Macnair is recovering from an attack of influenza which has confined him to the house.

Timothy O'Connor was a business visitor in New York and vicinity last week.

Macnair, Florist, furnished the handsome large basket of white chrysanthemums presented to the newly elected High Priest of Providence chapter, Royal Arch Masons, at the 125th anniversary November 23.

The store of Vose the Florist, Main street, Woonsocket, is now being conducted by Linda V. Foster, of Cumberland Hill, according to her statement filed with the city clerk's office.

W. E. Barrett & Co. distributed turkeys to their employees for Thanksgiving, following a custom of several years.

At the November meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society a communication from the Park and Garden Club of Flushing, N. Y., asking that action be taken on a resolution calling for the renaming of roses now bearing names of German origin was laid on the table, the sense of the meeting being that to give new names to old roses would cause much confusion among horticulturists and that, should such action be brought about, the roses would be catalogued as "So-and-So," formerly "Such-and-Such," and this would not result in the elimination of the German names.

D. W. McCoid has decided to close his greenhouses on Halsey street for the winter. W. H. M.

St. Paul, Minn.—Ivan Tucker intends to build two greenhouses here in the early spring, of a combined area of 10,000 feet. He will grow mums for the first crop.

Flint, Mich.—H. H. Evans, who does business as Evans the Florist, with greenhouses at 417 East Eighth street, owns a piece of property four or five miles north of the town of Lake Worth, Fla., on which he is thinking of starting the growing of asparagus and gladioli for northern markets.

SEC'Y YOUNG'S CORNER

TO CLUB SECRETARIES.

The officers of the various florists' clubs and societies are reminded that if their organizations can qualify for representation on the executive board of the Society of American Florists, evidence of qualification in accordance with By-law 2, Section 2(a), must be in the hands of the secretary before January 1, next. It is necessary, under the by-law, that a complete list of membership of an affiliating organization be presented, together with a certified copy of a resolution passed by the body expressing a desire for such representation.

John Young, Sec'y.

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The Christmas Advertising.

Nearly every mail now brings to the secretary's office requests, accompanied by cash in various forms, for deliveries of flowers at Christmas in different parts of the country. Many, of course, are from soldiers in France. If our publicity is working to this extent abroad, what may we expect it is doing here at home? Our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is taking hold better even than we expected. And our Christmas advertisements in the magazines are doing just what we intended they should do—they are influencing the public to consider floral offerings as most acceptable and desirable Christmas gifts.

It may be stated once more that eight magazines of national circulation are carrying our Christmas message. If we can judge by indications, this advertising will result, for florists, in an enormous amount of business, which without it would not be produced. And yet hundreds of florists who will share in this increased business seem to be unable to make up their minds that it is to their own interests to subscribe to our publicity campaign fund, so that we can complete our plans for the present year. Most subscribers of amounts of $100 or more are amazed to think that in spite of an improved demand for flowers, resulting from our efforts so far, there is an apparent unwillingness on the part of many florists to shoulder even a small ratio of the expense. A quarter of a dollar a week seems an insignificant sum, but we should be glad to enter up subscriptions for it just the same—less if anybody thinks he cannot afford that much.

The Increase in Business.

Those among our subscribers who have watched closely the progress of our campaign declare that there can be no doubt about the fact that business has been increased from fifteen to thirty-five per cent over what would have been the aggregate this particularly lean year.

The best way to get direct benefit from our magazine advertising is to connect with it locally by running in local newspapers, under a florist's own name, an electrotype which is, as nearly as possible, a counterpart of the magazine advertisement. Our promotion bureau, at 1170 Broadway, New York city, supplies these electrotypes at cost. The Christmas electrotype is now ready. Send $1 and it will be promptly mailed. With proper use it will demonstrate to you better than anything else the value of our campaign. It is a sure winner. The hundreds of florists who have used the electrotypes previously sent out are all back again for the Christmas production. They know its value, for they have determined it by experience.

We have a little pamphlet describing all our aids for direct advertising. Anyone who has not received a copy should drop us a request for one. These aids are designed especially to assist the trade to get the full benefit from our advertising.

been beneficial to the growers who were anxious to hold their stock for the Thanksgiving trade. Business this year was encouraging and quantities of stock were disposed of for the occasion at prices that compared favorably with those of last year. Of course, chrysanthemums were the most popular and plentiful flower, and, as far as can be learned, sufficient stock arrived to take care of needs. It included a good grade of Bonnaffon, Turner and Yellow Turner, Golden Chadwick, Harvard, Chieftain, Maud Dean, Rager and Enguehard. There was also a good supply of pompons, which are always good sellers for this event. Both potted and cut mums, as well as pompons, were greatly in demand and, judging from reports from the different stores, the better grades of chrysanthemums were the best sellers. There was a good supply of roses on hand and the demand was good in all grades. As is customary at holiday times, funeral work was also in fair demand and this took care of the shorter-stemmed flowers, especially in roses. All shades were in good supply, except white, which at this time is not plentiful. The rose stock on the whole is well grown and is clean and pleasing in appearance. Callas, although not plentiful, are seen and sell nicely. Easter lilies are not overplentiful, while the demand is good. There was a fair demand for violets for the holiday. Good stock arrived and most of it sold at holiday figures. The supply of carnations is slowly increasing and the stock moves well. The demand for valley is small, while that for orchids during the last few days has been good. Snapdragon and mignonette are seen, but only in small quantities. Small supplies of bouvardia and sweet peas are noted. Calendulas are in fine condition, but not plentiful. There is a splendid assortment of blooming plants. They consist of begonias, cyclamens, primulas, cherries, pompons and chrysanthemums. All kinds of greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Charles H. Vick has been selected to serve on the grand jury, which is now in session. Arthur A. Barry has been chosen as trial juror, while the following florists also are serving on the jury: Edmund R. Fry, Henry E. Rogers, of Spencerport, and Alfred H. Heberle, of Brighton, N. Y.

Albert Younge, of the H. E. Wilson greenhouse store, has just received an interesting letter from Corporal Lester G. Brown, who was formerly in the employ of this firm. The letter, which was dated November 10, states that he had been in a hospital for two months as the result of being badly gassed and also wounded. He received a shrapnel wound in the arm and a bullet through the heel. His gas mask was punctured in five places by bullets, which resulted in his getting gassed. His voice at time of writing was gradually coming back to him. The hospital from which he wrote was near the Alps and close to the border of Switzerland.

News has reached the relatives and friends of Private Charles Gow, who has seen much active service overseas, that he expects to be home in Rochester by Christmas, accompanied by an English bride. Just when he was married has not been made known. His many friends are anticipating his safe return.

Now that the Thanksgiving business is over, the florists have turned their thoughts towards Christmas. Many of the stores are displaying pretty baskets of prepared ruscus, artificial flowers and lycopodium, which are beginning to sell well for use in hospitals, etc.

Advertising surely pays. It is gratifying to the florists who advertised in the local papers in this city. Several of them carried good-sized ads for a week previous and the results were well in advance of what they had hoped for.

George T. Boucher's sedan automobile was stolen from the front of his store November 27. It was recovered by the police the next day, the thief having abandoned it in Lyons, N. Y.

James Vick's Sons report a satisfactory bulb business, considering the lateness of the season at which the bulbs arrived. Their seed orders on hand for early spring delivery are large. The outlook for the coming year is hopeful. H. J. H.

Rohrer's and Barr's.

The Lancaster county florists enjoyed a visiting tour November 21 to some of the establishments bordering the city of Lancaster, calling first at Henry D. Rohrer's. Bonnaffon mums occupied six houses at this range. They were cut throughout the month of November and in quantity for Thanksgiving. Beds of Seidewitz and Dolly Dimple also are grown and are well liked. Six houses are devoted to carnations. Matchless and Supreme are the only varieties grown. A house of sweet peas is beginning to bloom. Benches of cyclamen and Primula obconica in 5-inch pots are in fine shape. Many thousands of Primula malacoides in 4-inch pots are showing buds and give promise of a wealth of beauty.

The party called next at the range of B. F. Barr & Co. The section of rose houses here, where all the best varieties are grown, is in exceptionally fine shape, full of vigorous young growth, the picture of health. Of late mums Mr. Barr grows Nagoya, Golden Chadwick, Patty, Bonnaffon and many of the finer varieties of pompons. Several beds of mistletoe will make grand blooms for mid-December sale. The carnation houses are looking well. Ward, Matchless, White Enchantress, Harry Fenn and Benora are the leaders. In the houses where a general variety of stock for cutting was grown, calendulas, stevia, daisies, both yellow and white, violets, myosotis and an exceptional bed of Buddleia asiatica were noted, also some wonderful sweet peas. Mr. Barr sells his entire cut through his downtown store and he is to be congratulated on the fine appearance of his stock as a whole and individually.

Mr. Barr showed with a good deal of pride a bunch of twenty-five orders from his store manager, P. K. Murphy, who is with the A. E. F. in France, for flowers to be delivered for the boys in service to their friends in Lancaster at the Christmas holidays.

Joseph Clerico is the genial and able grower in charge of Mr. Barr's greenhouses.

Nagel's and Kohr's.

A call at Rudolph Nagel's showed mums practically cut out. The early varieties were disposed of at prices never before heard of, owing to the recent epidemic. Beds of mignonette, myosotis, marguerites, calendulas and sweet peas are promising. His white sport of Yarrawa is in bloom, with four blooms to a stem. A yellow sport of Chrysanthemum Early Frost also is well thought of.

The last call of the day was made on Enos W. Kohr. His houses of Ward, Alice and Matchless are in extra fine form. He has been cutting since September and will have a heavy cut for the holidays. Mr. Kohr stands close to the head of the list of Lancaster county carnation specialists.

Club and Other Notes.

At 7:30 the club met in B. F. Barr's store, President Elmer J. Weaver presiding. A reading of J. E. Pollworth's paper, "The Commission House of the Future," recently printed in The Review, was followed by a discussion in which the members participated.

Maurice J. Brinton, Christiana, gave a talk to the members along general lines on making a profit in our business and stopping leaks. Mr. Brinton has the happy faculty of imparting to others an appreciation of the nobility of the florists' business.

The Market.

Thanksgiving business was excellent and the local florists were exceptionally busy. During the influenza epidemic, which, we are thankful to state, struck Bridgeport more lightly than some sections of the country, the stores were more rushed than they have ever been in recent years. A number had trouble in getting enough flowers to meet the demand for funeral designs, especially in the early weeks of the epidemic, when dahlias were about the only flowers to be obtained. Now, however, the disease has about spent itself and the fewer deaths have reduced funeral work, although some florists still report a great demand for large designs.

which there is a large demand for flowers. Prospects are bright for a good business and it is confidently expected that the demand for cut flowers and plants will be larger than ever before. Money appears to be plentiful, as there has been a great deal of overtime work in the local factories, and it remains with the florists to improve their opportunities. Judging from reports, all are making great preparations.

Various Notes.

James Horan & Son now have an exceptionally attractive store. A new building has been erected on the old site and they moved into it from their temporary quarters the week before Thanksgiving. The decorations are in light gray and the flowers show well against this background. As the cases and fixtures are new throughout, the general effect is pleasing. They will have little trouble in disposing of the fine stock which is daily seen in their store.

The Park Garden & Flower Shop has been cutting a good supply of mums and they met with a strong demand. Chadwick was of a better quality than usual and made a gorgeous show. This firm has two large houses devoted entirely to carnations this year.

James E. Beach reports that several large service flag designs and an immense police commissioner's emblem were among the numerous pieces made recently. Mums were at their best at this establishment and there was a great demand for them. Although the Julius Reck had trouble obtaining flowers to meet the large demand for funeral orders. He reports that his son, George Reck, of this firm, is stationed at Fort Monroe, Va., and his other son, John R. Reck, is a First-Class Sergeant in Motor Car Company 312, now in France.

Robert Hawkins looked forward to Thanksgiving business with a great deal of interest, as he believed it would be bigger than ever before, and he was not disappointed. Funeral work still keeps all hands rushing.

The New York Florist had an attractive window display last week. The store was filled with a splendid assortment of all varieties of flowers.

Gus. F. Herthal, of the West End Florist, reports a good business and expects it will be better than ever, now that the war is over.

Owing to the coal shortage, he has closed all of his houses for the winter, with the exception of the conservatory, which is located over the store. Mr. Munro also has greenhouses and a retail flower store at New Haven. The Washington Trust Co. purchased the property October 22 at a master-in-chancery sale. W. H. M.

Fire, starting in the boiler room, destroyed the service building, fifty-two feet long, and one connecting greenhouse, 16 x 52 feet, at the establishment of H. E. & C. W. Krebs in the evening of November 25. Luckily the night was still, and the bucket brigade that was formed to fight the blaze saved the other boiler house, the two large barns and the garage, which were only fifty feet distant from the burned buildings. The heating plant was put out of commission, but in two days' time was going again and the crops in the greenhouses did not suffer much, although the temperature dropped to 28 degrees. The

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Beyond a report of the Thanksgiving trade, there is not much to be said of the market condition and Thanksgiving trade was not what the majority expected it to be. Whether people were frightened off by the high prices or not, the florists are not agreed. Some say that they did not expect it to amount to much, but this statement was not well founded. Expectations in general were for a record-breaking day. This it was not; so it was disappointing.

It is evident that flowers are priced too high for the general public. Many of the florists are trying to hold their trade by making a smaller percentage of profit. The consequence of this policy almost anyone can imagine. It will be impossible for them to stay in business any length of time. Already a large proportion of the trade have learned to use artificial flowers. The flower supply has been exasperatingly short since asters went out of season. Now, since mums are gone, it will be worse, unless stock is shipped in from other points. F. P. A.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Andrew S. Meikle has sold the property on Green place, consisting of a 12-room house and approximately 3,000 square feet of land, to the Eastern Home Building Association.

Gunners' Mate John Allan, U. S. N., has been home on a visit to his father, John T. Allan. He has made seven round trips across the Atlantic.

James Boyd has received word of the safe arrival overseas of his son, David Boyd, of the Marine Corps.

Oscar Schultz was a member of the committee of arrangements for the annual memorial exercises of Newport Lodge of Elks at the Opera House December 1. W. H. M.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

OUTLOOK BRIGHT ON COAST.

James A. Brown, manager of the Brown Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Cal., has just returned from an automobile trip through the five northwestern states, and is enthusiastic over the prospects for both the florists' and seed business in that section.

"Besides the extra business caused by the influenza epidemic, florists say the season has been good," reports Mr. Brown. "They are all looking for the best season they ever have experienced. While in the northwest I booked orders for 1919 deliveries of Freesia Purity and tulip bulbs and sweet pea seed far in excess of my expectations. Gladiolus bulbs for immediate shipment also were in good demand. This must show that everyone in that section of the country looks for excellent business next year."

Mrs. Brown accompanied her husband on the trip, which was over the Siskiyou, Cascade and other mountain ranges.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The florists all proclaim Thanksgiving business this year almost double that of any previous year. Although there was a shortage of stock locally, relief came through shipments of mums and roses from San Francisco, which arrived in fine condition. Prices received for all kinds of stock assured the retailers and wholesalers a prosperous holiday trade. The only thing likely to arise to defeat this expectation is the difficulty in getting enough stock to meet the expected heavy demand.

Various Notes.

The Hollywood Gardens have just got through cutting a heavy crop of roses.

Rosaia Bros. are cutting hundreds of fine orchids, which came in handy for the Thanksgiving trade. They report a good demand for this popular flower, both wholesale and retail.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop reports a thorough clean-up of stock for Thanksgiving.

W. S. G.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There never has been such a shortage of stock so early in the season as this year. Mums were over early, owing to heavy rains and wind storms, which ruined much of the late stock. Carnations are higher in price than is usual at Christmas and stock is difficult to obtain at that. Telegraph orders continue to pour in to the wholesalers from the east and middle west and ten times the amount of stock available could be sold. Roses also have shortened up again and there is nothing to take their place. A few sweet peas are coming in, but they are all snapped up by the retailers for local business. There has been a little reduction in funeral work, but it still is the mainstay of business. Doubtless many out-of-town florists were disappointed in not getting their orders for Thanksgiving filled, but the stock was not to be had at any price and wholesalers could do nothing. The greens situation is improving and a fair supply is in anticipation from the south, supplemented by local stock, both wild and cultivated.

Storms Work Havoc.

The winds that sometimes sweep over southern California are apt to be of great severity. We had a visit from King Boreas last week, in fact, and as a result many fine trees were uprooted and considerable damage was done otherwise. Heavy rains accompanying the wind storm left the soil soft and mushy and in the nurseries rows of trees and even shrubs were blown over. In the San Fernando valley the wind usually is worse than elsewhere and this time was no exception. Northeast of the city also, in the section between Ontario and Riverside and in San Bernardino, there was a regular sand storm that made travel difficult and dangerous. Many of the cloth and lath structures used for flower growing were badly damaged and in some instances leveled to the ground.

Flower Show in Doubt.

The Liberty fair grounds in Los Angeles suffered badly in the storms, many of the structures being blown down and others injured. Owing to another postponement of the opening, the committee in charge of the flower show felt that it was impossible to pull off the show this year and resigned. Unless a new committee is appointed, which is unlikely, there will be no flower show.

Various Notes.

Arthur Gleave, of Santa Barbara, made a flying trip to this city last week.

S. Murata & Co. have put on a new Dodge delivery car.

The H. N. Gage Co., Montebello, is showing a nice line of small flowering stock, such as primulas and begonias of various types.

All the retailers report Thanksgiving business satisfactory; there was no unusual activity, but a good, lively demand. More business could have been done if stock had been more plentiful.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The day before Thanksgiving found the local flower market in a good condition. Large stock was scarce and prices were firm, although quotations on roses and chrysanthemums were no higher than usual for the season. For instance, good American Beauties could be had for $3 per dozen and good chrysanthemums for $2 to $2.50 per dozen, whereas a year ago the best Beauties reached $4 per dozen and mums $3. Roses selling for $1.50 the week before were advanced to $2 and other prices were increased on a similar scale. There was a fine cut of roses, including Russell, Ophelia and Beauties, but the demand was sufficiently strong to assure a close clean-up for the holiday, especially as out-of-town shipments early in the week were heavy. Cold and rainy weather had a tendency to shorten up the supply of chrysanthemums, but there was some nice stock to be had, two of the best varieties being Helen Frick and Appleton. Carnations were still on the short side of the market. Miscellaneous outdoor stock has dwindled down to marigolds and cosmos, both of which continue to sell well. Violets constitute an important item, the demand being ample to clear the supplies daily. Paper White narcissi are a welcome addition, the first offerings for the season having put in an appearance last week. Poinsettias, both cut and potted, show up well and the demand leaves nothing to be desired. The same may be said of cyclamens. Other flowering plants are conspicuous by their absence, with the exception of a limited supply of nice heather plants and cockcombs. Receipts of California red berries are light. They are missed by the trade, as they usually meet a big demand at the holiday season for decorative work.

Various Notes.

Mr. Wagner, who was with B. M. Joseph, Grant avenue, before enlisting in the Merchant Marine several months ago, has obtained a furlough until the first of the year and is in his old position again. His associates are glad to welcome him back for the holiday rush. A. Cuneo has resumed his duties as buyer, after being home for over a week on account of his family all being down with the influenza. The way business is going this week, he looks for Thanksgiving sales to show a nice increase over those of last year.

Frank Lichtenberg, of Los Angeles, Cal., has been spending a few days in the San Francisco bay region, looking over the stock situation with a view to placing orders for Christmas.

M. C. Main, manager of the Seabright Bulb Co., of Santa Cruz, Cal., visited the Golden Gate city early in the week, accompanied by Mrs. Main.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports a banner Thanksgiving business, and looks for December to be one of the best months in the history of the florists' business. The world at large, he says, has much to rejoice over, and there is bound to be a good deal of entertaining, home adornment, etc., calling for liberal expenditures for flowers. His firm filled large shipping orders for violets, greens, roses and chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving, which would indicate that conditions in the outlying territory were favorable for a fine holiday business. Local buyers also have ordered with a freedom indicating confidence in a big holiday demand. Among the orders here was a large one of Russell, Ophelia and Beauty roses, white and pink chrysanthemums, violets and narcissi, to be shipped to Los Angeles.

The heavy rain November 23 stopped chrysanthemum shipments for a day or two at the headquarters of the United Flower & Supply Co., but the flowers dried in time for many to be shipped to outlying points for the Thanksgiving trade. Large orders for violets were filled also. In fact, holiday business generally was excellent, according to officials of this firm. Potted poinsettias and cyclamens sold especially well locally.

Domoto Bros. are well satisfied with Thanksgiving business, having cleaned up closely on all the stock they had to offer.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., has no complaints to make about business, as his force was rushed getting out Thanksgiving orders for violets, roses, chrysanthemums and other seasonable stock.

C. Kooyman sums up the stock situation and business in the few words: "Flowers are scarce and high, but the demand leaves nothing to be desired."

Mr. Francis, of the Francis Floral Co., has just brought out a line of pastel pottery, with a view to doing away with the use of crepe paper and mats on Christmas plants. After much experimentation and careful study he has succeeded in getting colors to blend perfectly with the different holiday flowers. He is still supplying a big demand for his novelty creations in lotus and money plants. When the embargo is removed on lotus, he plans to supply other florists with his specialties, but until that time he feels compelled to conserve his supply for his own trade.

The Art Floral Co. enjoyed a big Thanksgiving business. P. V. Matraia is gratified that his force has all recovered from the influenza before the holiday rush.

F. C. Jaeger, of F. C. Jaeger & Son, said Thanksgiving business started off with a rush and he looked for sales to show a nice increase over last year's.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. put in a handsome Thanksgiving window display, which caused many pedestrians to halt in their course up and down Powell street. Walter Hoff has just returned to duty after being home sick for ten days.

When visited the day before Thanksgiving, Podesta & Baldocchi were rushed getting out orders, indicating a banner holiday business, and much the same condition prevailed at the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., on Kearny street.

Avansino Bros. bought heavily for Thanksgiving and early sales gave promise of a close clean-up.

The Cottage Gardens Nurseries has been granted permission by the California corporation commissioner to sell 3,000 shares of its capital stock for cash or in cancellation of indebtedness, and also to sell 850 shares of its treasury stock at par.

The hearing of the contest to establish the heirship in the estate of John Kelly, former gardener for Leland Stanford, who left an estate of $200,000 to charity, is under way. More than twenty heirs from all parts of the United States and Ireland have appeared to claim relationship to the deceased, whereas Mrs. Caroline Davis, in whose care he was during the latter part of his life, says he told her he did not have an heir in the world. The former gardener amassed his fortune loaning money to state employees and in speculating in bonds, stocks and swamp land certificates.

G. A. Nehrhood, of Paso Robles, Cal., reports that he has ordered for himself and others in that district a total of 67,000 almond and fruit trees for planting the coming season.

George H. Hecke, California commissioner of horticulture, has called a convention of the county horticultural commissioners of the state to be held in Sacramento December 9 and 10, for the discussion of proposed legislation to be brought before the state legislature at the coming session. M. M.

The Market.

The flower stores are well supplied with stock, especially mums. There are roses, also, and some orchids. The stores all wore a festive aspect last week and every florist seemed rushed with orders for decorations and the general trade.

Various Notes.

Clarke Bros. had an exceptional window display of beautiful baskets filled with fruits, garnished with orchids and mums of all sizes. Their display of pompons was unique, no other store having them.

Martin & Forbes Co. had an attractive display and Max M. Smith used potted plants and mums with good effect.

Carl A. Starker, of Jennings Lodge, reports that his sweet pea crop promises to be good this year, the vines being exceptionally vigorous. He has cut only a few bunches, his principal crop coming on after the holidays. He finds the demand heavy on smilax and asparagus. He has a new seedling pompon, a single apricot-colored variety, which has received favorable comment.

Zimmerman Bros. are proprietors of 50,000 perennials in 400 different varieties, grown at their gardens. Their business is increasing as the public is being educated to the value of perennials for cut flowers for various uses. There are four different kinds of soil in the gardens and in the last ten years they have been trying out perennials from all parts of the globe. One of the brothers is located at Los Angeles, where he grows such plants and seeds as require a warmer climate. This firm claims the most complete collection of perennials, of both home and foreign introduction, on the pacific coast. Many of the newer varieties have proven to be excellent for cut flowers and they intend making a specialty of all such varieties as soon as their merits have been tried out in the gardens. The decorative type no doubt is the most satisfactory for this purpose, with the addition of a few of the cactus and hybrid varieties and most of the newer, improved collarettes. The latter type is the favorite with them for making artistic and elaborate displays. They also are the most easily grown.

E. H. White and E. A. Shephard, of the White Floral Gardens, report that although the frost has killed the dahlias and other such plants throughout the city, their gardens continue to bloom, the blooms being better at this late date than at any other season. However, they are hoping for a heavy frost to enable them to start lifting the tubers. Their dahlias were planted this year the latter part of June, which was later than ever before, but they came into their prime just when the blooms were in the greatest demand. This firm has a number of promising varieties for cut flowers of their own raising, as well as some giants for exhibition and garden display. But it will require another year or more of testing before they are ready for introduction. The soil at their gardens is especially adapted to the growing of dahlia tubers, being deep, with just enough gravel to give it perfect drainage. H. K.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The Thanksgiving trade this year surpassed all records of previous years for the same holiday, although the florists were handicapped by a scarcity of cut flowers, particularly chrysanthemums, upon which the trade always depends for this holiday, and by stormy weather Thanksgiving day, which reduced transient trade to a minimum. Insufficient supplies were supplemented by the fine line of blooming plants offered, which included handsome Cincinnati begonias, cyclamen, Primula obconica and chrysanthemum plants. Prices of mums ranged from $4 to $6 per dozen. Pompons were of better quality than the larger mums and the supply was wholly inadequate. They brought $1.50 per dozen. Roses, represented by Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, Ophelia, Sunburst, Shawyer and Columbia, sold for $3 to $6 per dozen, while the shorter grades brought $1.50 and $2. Carnations were even shorter in supply than roses and brought $1 and $1.50 per dozen. There was a heavier call for corsages for Thanksgiving than in former years. Funeral orders poured into the retail establishments November 29 and kept everyone hustling to procure stock. A number of weddings Thanksgiving week necessitated further activity in order to obtain supplies. Greens, like other florists' stocks, are scarce.

Various Notes.

A handsome wedding decoration for both church and house was executed by the Freese Floral Co. Thanksgiving day and bouquets and baskets were furnished.

David Vesey has returned home, following the signing of the armistice, from Washington, D. C., where he enlisted in the motor transport corps. Mr. Vesey was admitted to the bar of the Supreme court before leaving Washington, as he is a graduate of the law school of the University of Michigan.

"The heaviest demand yet experienced for Thanksgiving day," is the report of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, who could not begin to take care of the demand for flowers. This firm had excellent orchids, roses and mums, and a fine crop of lettuce and tomatoes, which also found a ready market.

Funeral work for out-of-town patrons increased substantially during the last two weeks, on account of the spread of the influenza epidemic throughout the state, 2,200 deaths having been reported in Indiana in one week.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a record Thanksgiving trade this year. Corsages and blooming plants sold well here and a large number of funeral designs and blankets were sent out of town the latter part of the week.

The New Haven Floral Co. had a fine supply of blooming plants with which to supplement the supply of cut flowers for Thanksgiving and reports excellent receipts for the holiday. Cincinnati begonias here were of exceptional quality.

Edgar Wenninghoff reports great difficulty in obtaining chrysanthemums and carnations with which to meet the Thanksgiving demand, although he had an exceptionally good supply of roses and blooming plants of all kinds.

Preparations for Christmas are well under way at the store of A. J. Lanternier & Sons. Baskets of ruscus and other Christmas stock harmonize well with their patriotic window decorations. Thanksgiving trade here showed a big increase over any previous year.

An excellent crop of roses and chrysanthemums was cut for the Thanksgiving day trade by F. J. Knecht & Co., although this firm could fill only a part of the orders that came its way.

George W. Doswell & Son made a specialty of cyclamens, begonias, obconicas and other blooming plants for the holiday, in the absence of sufficient cut flowers with which to supply their customers. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

It is the general opinion among nurserymen that there is to be at once the greatest demand ever known for ornamentals.

Osborn G. Austin, proprietor of the Beacon Hill Nursery, San Diego, Cal., has bought the nursery department of the Harris Seed Co., of that city, of which he has been manager for the last five years. He has enlarged the business of this department considerably and is growing much of his stock at Encanto, where he has extensive grounds. He handles the bulk of the fruit tree business of that section, as well as the landscape work. He has a large shipping trade as well.

SHORTAGE OF NURSERY STOCK.

Demand Exceeds Supply.

"We can not remember in the history of our concern any year when we have experienced so general a shortage of nursery stock as this year," writes B. Loss, sales manager of the Jewell Nursery Co., Lake City, Minn. "One can hardly point to a single item in the fruit line which is not unusually scarce. When such is the case here in the central west, where the fruit planting does not measure up to that of the east or west, we can imagine that conditions are even worse in those sections. Apples, which for several years have been a drug on the market, at present are more than treble the normal price. We do not consider that this shortage is due to any extent to increased consumption. We think it is caused rather by under-propagation.

An Optimistic Outlook.

"When the war commenced, we anticipated a shortage of labor and conditions similar to such as those experienced in Europe and we laid our plans accordingly. We presume that every other nurseryman in America did the same thing and some of them went further than we, and this, we think, accounts for some of the shortages. Last spring we were certain that at the end of this business year we would find ourselves with an immense surplus of ornamentals in all varieties, but, exclusive of shade trees, we are stripped this year even of shrubs and perennials more completely than we have been for a long time. We have a few shade trees left, but we commence to think that they may be good property yet and we are not at all anxious to clean up these.

"Looking forward, we have every reason to believe that 1919 is going to be a splendid year for the nursery business, not particularly in sales, because 1917 sales were a record, but because expenses will be less. There is every reason to believe that the sales will measure up to those of 1917, taking it all in all, and we feel optimistic over the prospects for the coming season and immensely thankful that we have been able to go through the war seasons, not as we expected, but infinitely better."

THE NURSERYMAN'S CHANCE.

End of War to Bring Prosperity.

With the return of peace, and the release of experienced nursery labor from military service and the factories doing war work, a period of exceptional prosperity is in prospect for the nursery trade of the United States. Such is the belief of Alfred E. Robinson, vice-president and general manager of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., Lexington, Mass.

"There is a general feeling in the nursery trade that the demand for high-grade ornamentals will exceed the supply the coming season," says Mr. Robinson. "Roses for outdoor planting are practically all in the hands of the larger growers and will be distributed at an advance of fifty per cent over last year. Imported roses will cut a small figure in the market this year. Deciduous trees and shrubs are still plentiful, although there is by no means the surplus of two years ago. The scarcity of labor has affected the plantings quite materially, especially in sections adjacent to the larger cities and manufacturing towns producing war materials. Good evergreens are in brisk demand. Rhododendrons and other broad-leaved evergreens heretofore imported from Europe are practically out of the market, but with improved conditions abroad, sufficient stock will be available for spring delivery. There is a perceptible shortage of fruit trees and small fruits as compared with a year ago, and prices are ruling from fifty to 100 per cent higher.

Nurserymen Fortunate.

"Nurserymen in general have not suffered from war-time conditions nearly so much as was anticipated. Sales in most sections have been normal. Lack of experienced help, however, has made it difficult to get orders filled with the usual degree of promptness. As a rule retail orders have been smaller, owing to the falling off of plantings on public parks and large estates. There has, however, been a noticeable increase in orders from the laboring classes, made possible, no doubt, by the higher wages received.

"There is a decidedly optimistic feeling among nurserymen as to the coming year. With the end of the war and the return of competent help, the labor situation will improve and plantings which have been held up for two years will doubtless be resumed. With the free circulation of money and the prevailing higher prices of nursery stock, things are looking pretty good for nurserymen."

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK BRIGHT.

While the season of 1917-18 was not so good as expected because of the shortage of help, the outlook for the next three years is bright for the nursery business, declares J. W. Griesemer, proprietor of the Hopedale Nurseries, Hopedale, Ill. Help will be easier to obtain, prices will be better and the demand will be excellent, says Mr. Griesemer.

"The season of 1917-18 was not what we had hoped it would be," says Mr. Griesemer. "Owing to inability to get enough help to do the planting, many large buyers had to cancel their orders. This season, however, the prospects for getting help are much brighter and I look for a reduction in the high wages the nurserymen have had to pay.

"All fruit stock in this section is in extremely short supply and none of the nurserymen I know about have a surplus in any of the fruit items. The many nurseries near Bloomington, in Stark county, have no surpluses at all and several have turned down even retail orders for fruit stock this fall. Apple and peach trees are especially scarce, while small fruits are in better supply.

"In ornamentals there is a fairly good supply throughout this section. Prices are advancing steadily, as they should. For the last five years there has been no material advance until now, while the cost of production has more than doubled during that time.

"My advice to nurserymen is to place their orders now for stock needed in the spring, as prices surely will advance on both ornamentals and fruits, especially the latter. I fear that there will not be enough apple and peach trees to supply the demand next spring.

"Prospects for increased business next season are excellent. Orders are larger, while there is a scarcity everywhere. The last five years have been nightmares to nurserymen, but the outlook is splendid for the next three years, as it takes that time for stock to grow."

PROTEST IMPORT BAN.

At the conference of the New England members of the National Association of Gardeners, held at Horticultural hall, Boston, November 22, J. K. M. L. Farquhar was asked by the chairman to speak on the effects of plant import restrictions on American horticulture. After telling of his several visits to Washington to protest against the proposed restrictions and the evident disposition of the Federal Horticultural Board to put the proposed restrictions into force, Mr. Farquhar stated that American nurserymen are already growing plants, some of them of better quality than the foreign product, of varieties that it was believed a few years ago could not be produced in this country, and that in time other varieties would be produced. The speaker agreed that while it might even be a good incentive to increase production among American nurserymen, the time limit of the plant importation restrictions should be extended to give American nurserymen an opportunity to prepare to meet the demand for their stock that will be occasioned by closing the doors to foreign plants.

Leonard Barron, of New York city, said that he had been endeavoring to discover just how American nurserymen stood on the question of plant importation restrictions, and that his investigations proved that they were somewhat divided on the matter; that he was disposed to believe in the long run it would be a good thing for American nurserymen, though he believed that more time should have been given them to prepare against the restrictions. In the discussion which followed, it was claimed that if American nurserymen would turn to the cultivation of our native plants, it would be possible to develop truly American gardens. The opinion prevailed, however, that until the nurserymen can furnish such plants, there should be some modification in the restrictions on foreign plants, and the secretary was instructed in a motion, duly carried, to learn if it is not possible to have some action taken to have the proposed restrictions deferred for at least three years.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business for Thanksgiving was good, but there was not enough stock to supply the demand, as there was a good deal of funeral and wedding work at the time. The stock of plants was good, however, and plants were used in place of cut flowers in many instances.

Roses and carnations are improving rapidly, as the weather is bright and cool, but there is a shortage of all grades. Prices of flowers and plants are higher than formerly and still they seem to sell as readily. We have had no snow as yet.

Various Notes.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann reports a severe shortage of plants and cut flowers. She has had to refuse many orders of late for this reason.

Karl Zeidler has been cutting a nice lot of roses and carnations, but the demand is so heavy that they do not go far to fill requirements. He has disposed of one crop of lettuce and is replanting for another crop. He also had to refuse many orders for Thanksgiving for lack of stock to fill them.

Royston & Fenton have had many calls for cut flowers, all of which they turned over to other florists.

Emil Niednagel returned November 30 from the Officers' Training Camp at Camp Taylor. E. L. F.

The Market.

Business is excellent. The demand is strong; in fact, it is far greater than the receipts can satisfy, the latter being short. As a result of the short supply and the heavy demand, prices have advanced to a point that is in some cases higher than the usual prices that rule at Christmas time. The demand from out of town is heavy.

Roses are not plentiful and all that do come into the market clean up quickly. The same is true of carnations. Easter lilies and callas are in fair supply and sell readily. Snapdragon has again made its appearance and proves a welcome addition to the supply in the market. Violets are selling well. Stevia cleans up from day to day. A few chrysanthemums may be had. They are not large, but bring top prices. Among other offerings are sweet peas, lily of the valley, orchids, baby primrose, wallflower and forget-me-not. Greens are in fair supply and meet with a good demand.

Various Notes.

To the list of florists' boys from this city and vicinity who are in military or naval service should be added Edgar (Pete) Jackson and Ray and Walter Eck.

Death from sickness overtook Jens Christian Peterson, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, of this city, while he was in the service of the United States and stationed at Camp MacArthur, Tex. His body has been brought here for burial. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson and family have the sympathy of their many friends in their bereavement.

Miss Helen K. Walke, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Walke, passed away November 29 at the age of 19 years. The trade sympathizes with Mr. and Mrs. Walke in their bereavement.

Samuel Batson, of Kalamazoo, Mich., has begun again to ship his cut of baby primrose, wallflower and forget-me-not to L. H. Kyrk. These flowers have been cleaning up on sight and all that Mr. Kyrk sees of them is when he takes them out of the boxes and packs them up at once.

C. E. Critchell has been getting some excellent snapdragon from W. C. Schaefer & Co. They are the first of the season and are proving an excellent addition to Mr. Critchell's stock.

The William Murphy Co. has been getting in some excellent sweet peas that have sold on sight.

E. G. Gillett cleaned up on an excellent lot of boxwood last week. It sold as quickly as he got hold of it.

Among recent visitors were Milton Alexander, representing a ribbon house of New York city; Joseph Marks, representing A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, Ill.; S. F. Purllant, Winchester, Ky.; J. W. Rodgers and G. Reiniger, Dayton, O., and G. A. Beckman and Mr. Burns, Middletown, O. C. H. H.

Hartford City, Ind.—The Hartford City Floral Co., which has been operated by Robert N. Henley and Henry B. Henley, hereafter will be known as Henley Bros. Both gentlemen are graduates of the floricultural department of the University of Illinois, 1912, and have been in active greenhouse work ever since. They have six houses of pelargoniums, of which they will make a specialty for the trade.

The war is over and there is joy in every home; your customers will want fine plants to decorate their festive boards and to make presents. The Market.

With Thanksgiving day over, the market is getting back to normal. There was a scant supply of mums on hand for this holiday, but all the florists report good business. Roses were in good crop and sweet peas and violets were to be had. Everyone reports one of the best Thanksgiving weeks on record. In fact, the commission houses were sold up and orders had to be turned down. In former years it was only the uptown stores that noticed and made preparation for this holiday, but this year business has been good throughout the entire city. Indeed, many florists who never expected to do any business for Thanksgiving were surprised at the calls they had for flowers. If flowers are a luxury, it seems the people have money to buy them anyway and they are going to indulge in luxuries. Carnations are getting better each week and, while the supply is hardly equal to the demand as yet, some of the finest I have ever seen are coming to the market. Sweet peas are still on the short side, but are becoming more plentiful and are of better quality each week. Violets are beginning to come, but as yet they are of poor quality. Everyone reports business as being good; in fact, everyone I have interviewed says that business is far above the average.

Club Meeting.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its regular meeting November 25. Barely a quorum was on hand and the small attendance started a discussion as to why there were not more of the boys present. It developed that many had to do their own firing and had no time for club meetings.

Prof. Corry, of the Maryland State Agricultural College, was present and made a plea for the florists to take part in the Southern Commercial Congress Exposition, to be held in the Armory, December 9 to 14. The club, last spring, promised the management to make an exhibit, but afterwards, on account of war conditions, the exposition was called off and none of the florists had made any preparation for it. Owing to the lateness of the date and the scarcity of flowers, it was decided that it would not be good policy for the florists to take any active part. This, I think, is a great misfortune, for, while the florists are absolutely right in their decision, yet this exposition is going to be a big affair and it seems a pity the florists should not have a part in it.

Various Notes.

The death of Mrs. Mary J. Thomas is noted in the obituary column.

George J. Muhly, of the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co., has a full line of samples of the Keystone Quality florists' supplies and is ready to start out. In fact, he already has done business that is surprising, especially in red roping, which he has in big supply and of a fine quality.

WHAT WILL PRICES DO?

Price restrictions on bituminous coal may be removed by the Fuel Administration within two weeks. Fuel Administrator Garfield said November 29 that he hoped to cancel the price regulations not later than the middle of December. Present prices, as fixed by the Fuel Administration, range from $2.35 to $4.95 a ton at the mines.

Dr. Garfield said it may be possible to abandon the zone system of distribution of bituminous coal by the middle of December, but that action to this end will be taken only after consultation with the Railroad Administration.

The Fuel Administrator said he could not "take his hands off" the anthracite situation until winter is over. This was taken to mean that the government will continue its control over anthracite coal until the end of the coal year, April 1, and that the Fuel Administration will continue to function until that time.

GAS FOR STEAM SYSTEM.

In using gas for fuel, would any more gas be needed for steam radiation than for a hot water system? My place is piped for steam and I have been thinking of using gas for fuel, so as to save labor and prevent the accumulation of soot on the glass. My boiler is a 6-section cast-iron McLain. R. K. S.—O.

If the amount of radiation is such that it is not necessary to heat the water above 160 degrees for hot water heating, the hot water will be found considerably more economical than steam, with the water heated to 212 degrees or more. With hot water under pressure, however, there will be no advantage over steam when the water is at or above the boiling point. To heat with hot water, it probably will be necessary to make a considerable increase in the amount of radiation, and the flows and returns should be larger in a hot water than in a steam plant.

Using gas as fuel will not only be much cleaner, but will result in saving the labor required for firing and the removal of ashes when coal is used.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

The scarcity of cut stock has been continuous since early in October. The market here is still a stiff one. Mums retailing at from 25 cents to $1 each find quick buyers. Roses at $5 per dozen also move quickly. Carnations are conspicuous by their absence. In small quantities they bring $1.50 per dozen.

Funeral work throughout October and November was more than could be handled by the trade. Oak sprays, crotons and artificial flowers were used extensively in order to meet the demand.

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

THE CUSTOMERS' INTEREST FIRST—Is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business.

The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horsepower). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell policy to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL
"THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY"

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

Kroeschell Boilers Save Labor and Coal

Anderson Floral Company, Lebanon, Tenn. No. 4 Kroeschell heats entire place

The boiler arrived all right in first-class condition and has been in place and working fine for over a month. We are very much pleased with this boiler for it is doing what we thought it could not do in the way of saving labor and fuel.

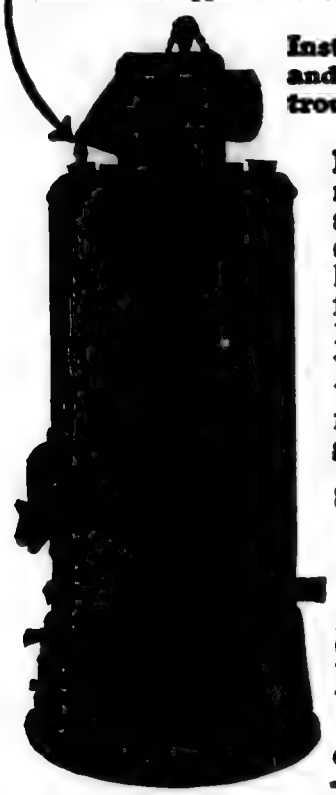
We have no trouble in heating the houses with this boiler, and we find that it sure will hold heat much longer than the old boiler.

We are well pleased with the shaking grates as they save time, work, and much coal

We thank you very much for the care and attention that you gave our order, and we assure you that same was appreciated very much.

Thanking you again, and at the same time wishing you the joys of the season, we are

Yours very truly,



[Signed] ANDERSON FLORAL COMPANY,

As a whole, October was a banner month as regards the volume of business, having surpassed December, 1917. November has run close to October.

Thanksgiving business, as reported by members of the trade, was the best on record. There were not enough mums to go around. Pot plants moved freely in the effort to cover the shortage of mums.

Various Notes.

Some attractive windows for Thanksgiving were noted. That of Mrs. J. B. Freeman was vivid with gold-colored cornucopias and attractive plant baskets. A dinner decoration for a local club by Mrs. Freeman was elaborate and original in conception. Recent weddings also have called for more or less outlay for floral effects.

The Market.

As anticipated, the demand for flowers for Thanksgiving day was greatly in excess of the supply. A complete clean-up of all salable stock is reported and the shortage is estimated at twenty-five per cent of the demand. Mums naturally occupied the stellar role for the occasion and, despite the unusual prices asked and the apparent abundance of supply, were sold out completely by November 26. The demand centered on the larger sizes, which resulted in early exhaustion of the available supply. In consequence, the small and medium sizes assumed values beyond their intrinsic rights and the burden of the condition that resulted was placed on the eleventh-hour purchaser. Prices ranged from $2 per dozen to $6 for specials, with the popular call at $3 and $4. Pompons won a place in diversified demand that is prophetic of a sharp contest in the years ahead for an equal if not superior position in public favor with their relatives of grosser proportions. Absorption of the supply at 75 cents per bunch satisfied but fifty per cent of the demand and not a single salable bunch was to be seen the morning of November 27.

Roses and carnations were equally balanced in supply and demand. Carnations sold easily at $6 per hundred and roses at $6, $8, $10 and $12. The call for adiantum was strong and other decorative material met with a satisfactory demand at good prices.

Various Notes.

John Kirchner, of Cleveland, accompanied by his son and chief aide, Norman Kirchner, paid a characteristic visit to this market last week and, before the dust created by the speed of their arrival had subsided, had consummated terms covering their season's requirements from here and were off again, homeward bound. Mr. Kirchner reported business as being far beyond normal and states that from all appearances this condition will continue for the rest of the season.

Strange things find their way into the average greenhouse. The range of diversity runs from stray cats to dead soldiers. The Lakeview Rose Gardens perhaps can claim the distinction for novelty in this respect, as the latest find there was a real honest-to-goodness bomb of true Bolshevik character. Planted in a most advantageous position for facility of functioning, adjacent to vital steam mains, it created considerable commotion among the employees of Latin lineage. It consisted of a fair-sized bag of blasting powder, wrapped with three thicknesses of galvanized tin and equipped with a fuse two feet long. The fuse has burned down two inches and was extinguished by some benign agency. Otherwise—well, "all's well that ends well."

The Market.

The market is an active one. A large volume of business keeps all stock cleaned up daily.

Thanksgiving day was a great success so far as demand was concerned. "Say It with Flowers" seemed to be the good word, but a deficit in supplies prevented returns from being what they should have been. All available stock was quickly disposed of and many of the retailers were compelled to close early. Stock was of good quality and brought excellent prices.

Chrysanthemums are practically out of the market. A few late varieties of the large types remain and make from $3 to $6 per dozen. The spray types are gone. Carnations are in good demand and moving rapidly at $5 and $6 per hundred. Roses are coming in, but are consumed so quickly that they do not reach around. Ophelia, Russell and Columbia are the most in evidence. Roses range in price from $3 to $25 per hundred. Lilies of all types are short. Easter lilies are practically out of the market, with rubrums almost gone. Callas are available at from $15 to $20.

The last ten days have finished the sweet peas, the dark, cold weather causing them to drop their buds. Good stock has been bringing $1.50 per hundred, while fancies make $2. Violets have been in limited supply. Calendulas, mignonette, bouvardias and pansies complete the assortment.

Various Notes.

The Crownhill store of the Pahud Floral Co. was compelled to close its doors because those in charge were all sick with influenza. Charles Pahud was the only one who escaped and he has been busy at the downtown establishment.

A. F. J. Baur was at Cleveland December 2, to meet with the board of directors of the American Carnation Society to make arrangements for the carnation show to be held there in January.

C. C. Thomas, of the Circle Flower Store, will make a short business trip next week to secure Christmas stock.

Fred Backmeyer, formerly a florist with A. Wiegand's Sons Co., but now in another line, has been detained here on account of the influenza ban, and will help Mr. Greene, of Hensley's Flower Shop, through the holidays.

The December meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, December 2. E. E. T.

THE PLANT MARKET.

First one reason, then another, has been assigned to explain the continued activity in the trade. At first it was the higher wages paid in war industries, then it was the "flu" and then the joy of victory. Whatever the reason, the condition remains the same; everything offered finds eager buyers. There is a strong demand for every item of stock at prices that guarantee sound prosperity for the flower business. So it is that the advertisers in the Classified columns of The Review are flooded with orders which quickly clear up their supplies. Like these:

Please cut out our ad of cherries, as we are all sold out already. Some class to the Classified ads!—James Frost, Greenville, O., November 27, 1918.

Kindly discontinue all our ads. I am afraid I cannot fill all the orders I have received for Japanese iris.—H. G. Norton, Perry, O., November 25, 1918.

Please discontinue our snapdragon ad at once, as we are swamped with orders.—Schmidt & Meine, Youngstown, O., November 25, 1918.

Kindly discontinue all our ads, as we are sold out.—Frank A. Wagner, Tiffin, O., November 29, 1918.

Kindly cut out my ad for snapdragons. It sold my snaps for me in short order. I am sending money back every day, for orders received from all over the country.—F. E. Selkregg, North East, Pa., November 26, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

DUTCH HYACINTHS.

Last year our Dutch hyacinths were received and planted in flats for forcing so late that they made little growth, just enough for the covering of the buds to break slightly. We put the flats in a cold cellar and covered them with three or four inches of sand. The sand and water worked into the broken sheath and a good many rotted, some partly and some entirely. We anticipate the same trouble this year and are wondering if we could leave off the covering of sand. Would the growth they make in the cellar be harmful?

G. F. S.—Mo.

It is not necessary to cover hyacinths with sand. This or some other covering helps to keep the soil damp and gives the bulbs a chance to send up their growths in the dark to lengths which cannot be reached when plants are in full light. Darkness itself will draw up bulbs. If you watered the sand after applying it over your hyacinths, this would account for some of the spikes rotting. Better leave off covering of any kind until your bulbs have had several waterings. Then, in lieu of sand, cover them with fine coal ashes, which make an ideal covering for bulbs. Hyacinths which are well started when potted would be better if not covered with either sand or ashes. It is otherwise with tulips and narcissi. C. W.

Valuable Aid in Transplanting

Following is an extract from a letter from Hull Brothers, of Waymart, Pa.:

"Perhaps we feel the value of the System of Irrigation most while setting the plants, as we can get the soil in the very best shape for quick, thorough setting, then water them gently afterwards, and they start off nicely."

Who's Your Teacher? —experience or observation?

Every old-timer in Chicago could have been a multimillionaire if he had only bought up outlying property and held it. Perfectly simple—yet only a few did it. But they or their descendants control the huge Chicago real estate markets of today. It's easy to look back and see where you could have made big money, but it takes real head-work to see it and do it in time.

Now is the time to get busy to be in time for the big time JUST AHEAD. Don't be a cracker-box philosopher twenty years from now and tell the bunch of Has-beens and Never-has-beens in the cross-roads grocery store how you might have been a rich man—one of the king pins in the greenhouse world, if you'd only built the RIGHT kind of a house IN TIME to be ready for the rising tide of prosperity that hit the country after the World War. Profit by past experience, but DON'T WAIT for experience to teach you. USE your powers of OBSERVATION.

Every branch of industry is preparing to handle a greater volume of business than ever before dreamed of. The florist trade—your trade is no exception. It is now entering a new era—an era of growth and expansion beyond all previous hopes. It has proved its stability, its permanence—the fact that it is essential. Now for the reward! You showed grit, you showed endurance—you showed your faith in the future while you were taking the gaff of the war strain—now don't let neglect and procrastination rob you of your due.

You have been backing American soldiers, sailors and marines—now buy American greenhouses—they'll WIN for you JUST AS SURELY as the American boys did in France. The American boys possessed a something that carried victory with it. The American Greenhouse—the AGMCO—possesses the superior points in design, construction and manufacture that carry with them commercial SUCCESS FOR THE GROWER.

WHOLESALE GROWER OF CUT FLOWERS

Rear, Side and Front Views of the Baur & Steinkamp New Carnation, No. 414.

Our No. 414 will henceforth be known as "Ruth Baur." We will disseminate this beautiful new carnation in the season of 1919-20. Orders are being booked now, to be filled in rotation as booked. The variety has been certificated wherever shown and in our estimation is one of the best carnations ever offered to the trade. Its good points are:

The most beautiful shade of clear light pink, between a flesh and a rose pink.

A fine stem that always holds the bloom erect.

A splendid size, equal to the best commercial sorts.

A form which is just about ideal.

A substance that has carried it in fine condition from Indianapolis to Boston.

A freedom of growth and bloom that will be a delight to the grower.

Has never shown any tendency to split the calyx and comes as near grading 100% perfect blooms as anything we know of.

The price will be $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Come and see it growing. You will be pleased with its general excellence.

See last week's issue for prices on standard varieties. We root them in large quantity.

James F. Rychlik, Florist and Grower, Painesville, Ohio, writes:

CHRISTMAS

Where Ingenuity Will Win

PROVERBIALLY the most uncertain of all special flower days, Christmas this year presents a different and wholly new problem. It is a problem individual in character, as the same solution may not apply in different cases, but it is a problem in which we have a common interest for the reason that the correct answer, found by each individual, will result in the greatest advance the trade as a body ever has made.

This year's special Christmas problem comes from the fact that the demand for stock undoubtedly will exceed all previous records, by some percentage undeterminable in advance, while the supply is short all along the line—how short we do not know, as the peculiar conditions make for widely varying reports.

There is no shadow of doubt that the demand will be unusually great; that it would be something phenomenal if only the trade had the stock to permit of normal prices, and the assistants to make easy selling, was made apparent by the tremendous business done at Thanksgiving. But a year of war and pressure on the industry has put us where, as a class, we have neither the stock nor the help to take full advantage of the opportunity.

Under the circumstances, the resourceful man will win.

There is a saying, particularly among the older generation of florists, that it always is either a feast or a famine in the flower business. Right now we have the world's record feast of business and famine of flowers. Not that there are no flowers, for there are many flowers, but that the demand never before has so far exceeded the available supply. Demand has grown amazingly, while production has been reduced.

To what degree the supply has been cut down by the pressure under which the trade has labored for the last year no man can tell. A few fortunate florists have been able to run their places exactly as usual, but the majority have suffered more or less, principally because of labor shortage, although severe weather last winter, fuel restriction orders by the government, the cessation of plant imports, transportation difficulties and the high cost of many necessary supplies all have influenced the production of stock for Christmas.

On the whole it does not seem that production has been reduced so much as demand has increased. There was a temporary shortage of stock last winter, but as soon as milder weather came market conditions returned to someing approximating normal. There was enough stock to meet the needs of a summer business in many places rather better than usual and autumn was marked by no uncommon circumstance until the wave of influenza brought a rush of funeral work which swept the country bare of flowers. Since then everything has been selling clean and there has been a call for more. Peace brought a boom and Thanksgiving a volume of sales seemingly limited only by the possibility of getting flowers and not at all affected by the rising prices, while the wholesale markets continued to stiffen and advance as chrysanthemums went out and early Christmas buyers made their appearance.

The production of Christmas plants never has equalled the trade's ability to sell them, but it has been large enough in recent years to affect the value of cut flowers, the prices of which, at wholesale, are governed absolutely by the ages old law of supply and demand. This year, however, flowering plants are, if anything, less plentiful than cut flowers and they exercise no influence at all on the values of other articles. Foliage plants also are in small supply. The popular Christmas greens are affected by the lack of labor and the preconceived idea that transportation would be uncertain. Even lines of manufactured accessories are less extensive and diverse than usual because of the influence of war.

Opposed to this condition of relatively short supply, which seems to be general in the principal centers, there is a demand which, were it not restrained by the scarcity of material, would exceed the greatest previous records. How far prices can be carried upward without causing an injurious reaction, no one can say. It probably varies with each florist's clientele.

But it is plainly evident that the florist who makes the most out of the big holiday demand will be the one who displays the greatest ingenuity, the man who can make his stock go farthest. It will be a great success for the florist who can make attractive arrangements with little material—in a word, for the man who can mix art with merchandise, thereby increasing the quantity.

Florists proverbially are resourceful; face to face with necessity they, as a class, rise to the emergency and acquit themselves with credit to the profession and satisfaction to the public. Forewarned, as we are this Christmas, wonders will be accomplished.

First of all, of course, reliance must be placed on the supply houses, for baskets, ribbons, ruscus, frieze, greens, etc. With these accessories flowers may be made to go much farther than they do when abundant. When flowers are plentiful many flower stores, especially those catering to the transient trade in the larger cities, sell nothing but cut flowers, loose. These are the ones which will be hardest put to it to find stock this season.

The stores which will show the best records of sales and profits will be the ones which habitually do most of their business with flowers arranged instead of loose; they can make them go farther and can charge for the arrangement as well as for the stock. It has been proved time after time that the public comes to the florist for decorations, not necessarily flowers, but any pretty arrangement that is bright and cheerful. Such good sellers can be devised by any experienced florist with a minimum of material and of a character to appeal to his special class of trade. Get busy now and prepare for a record demand—sell cut flowers to those who will pay your price, but have something else you can push and which will relieve the shortage.

"CONSIDER THE LILIES"

COLD STORAGE LILIES.

I planted my cold storage giganteum lilies October 5 and they are now from four to eight inches high and nearly all are showing buds and will be too early for Easter. I have not had previous experience with cold storage bulbs. What can be done to lengthen the stems of these plants without blasting the buds? H. H.—Ill.

The lilies mentioned would, of course, be much too early for Easter. Cold storage stock always lacks the strength of fresh bulbs. Do not attempt to keep your plants cool or you will stunt them and probably blast most of the buds. Keep them warm; 60 to 65 degrees at night. To lengthen the stems, shade the house, or the part of it where the lilies are growing. By keeping them shaded and having a warm, moist, growing atmosphere, you can draw up your stems materially. C. W.

FORCING LILIUM SPECIOSUM.

I have on hand 100 bulbs of Lilium speciosum roseum and rubrum. I do not know if they are cold storage stock or not, as I have never forced any of this kind of lilies. I would like to know how to treat them to get them to bloom this winter. J. P. C.—S. C.

There are no fresh bulbs of either speciosum or auratum lilies coming this season from Japan and you probably have cold storage stock, although some home-grown bulbs are procurable. It is late now to start speciosum for winter blooming. If started in August it can be flowered for Christmas. If potted and started now it should be placed in a moderately cool house, kept at 45 degrees to 50 degrees at night. Later the night temperature should not go above 55 degrees, as speciosums will not stand hard forcing like giganteums or longiflorums. It will be spring before your plants will flower if started now. There is no special difficulty in forcing cold storage speciosums, but care must be taken to water moderately until the pots are well filled with roots. C. W.

CANDIDUM FOR EASTER.

Please tell me how to handle candidum lilies so as to have them in time for Easter. J. C.—N. Y.

Keep your plants in a coldframe until the first week in January. If you pack leaves between the pots, it will prevent them from being broken by the action of frost. Expose the plants to some frost before housing them. Start them in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees and never give them more than 55 degrees at night, if you want flowers of good size and substance. Keep a sharp lookout for green aphis; a weekly fumigation will keep your plants clean. Your plants may need some moving around to time them exactly, but it will pay to go to this trouble, as lilies will be scarce next Easter and are sure to command high prices. Remember that you cannot force candidum as you would longiflorum. With warm treatment the flowers will be only half the size of those grown cooler and they will be lacking in substance besides. C. W.

CALLAS DAMPING OFF.

On account of the scarcity of bulbs this season, we planted a double supply of callas. Our plants are beginning to bloom and are strong and healthy looking, but are damping off so badly that it is necessary to throw some of them away daily. We planted one or two bulbs in 7-inch and 8-inch pots. We thought the trouble was due to too much water, so gave them less, but there was no improvement. The temperature is not too high, as we have not had the steam on for winter as yet. We have given the plants a dressing of bone meal, spaced them apart and tried everything we can think of, but without success. Any suggestions will be followed. J. U. M.—Miss.

I am inclined to think that the bulbs of your callas may not have been sound, even though they appeared so when potted. Calla bulbs partially diseased will throw up strong growths and sometimes later will act as yours have done. Your cultural treatment seems to have been all right. Callas like a good supply of water and, given good drainage and pots full of active roots, there is little likelihood of their being overwatered. Do not give too heavy topdressings of bone meal. For a 7-inch or 8-inch pot, two tablespoonfuls once a fortnight will suffice at this season. An overdose would help to cause damping off and must be guarded against. A night temperature of 55 degrees suits callas to a nicety and if the pots can be stood in single rows around the side of a house where they can get lots of sun, danger of damping off should be materially lessened. C. W.

THE RETAIL FLORIST

INCREASING BUSINESS.

Undoubtedly the most interesting information secured by the questionnaires sent to the members of the F. T. D. in advance of the meeting of the association in Cleveland October 8 and 9 by Secretary Pochelon were the figures showing the amount of incoming and outgoing telegraph delivery orders handled by some of the prominent firms. The figures they submitted covered a year's telegraph delivery business and are as follows:

BREITMEYER'S SONS, DETROIT.

Orders sent....	1,526	Aggregating....	$ 6,246.00
Orders received	1,046	Aggregating....	4,901.00

JOY & SONS, NASHVILLE.

Orders received	1,500	Aggregating....	5,000.00

REDONDO FLORAL CO., LOS ANGELES.

Orders sent....	200	Averaging.....	$ 5.70
Orders received	400	Averaging.....	5.84

MAX SCHLING, NEW YORK.

KNOBLE BROS., CLEVELAND.

Orders sent....	....	Aggregating....	$ 2,342.00
Orders received	....	Aggregating....	1,486.00

An analysis of the figures will show the extent to which the telegraph delivery business has grown since the F. T. D. was organized ten years ago. However, the retailers of the country now appreciate what the telegraph business means to them and more and more are going after orders of this kind. There are now 419 florists in the United States, Canada, Great Britain and the Hawaiian Islands represented in the Pink Part of The Review. This is a growth of twenty-six during the last month and more are coming in each week.

When, as is shown by the figures quoted above, a concern can add from $3,000 to $25,000 per year to its gross business by getting after the telegraph delivery business, it is worth while to do so.

FOR A MORMON FUNERAL.

The death recently of Joseph Fielding Smith, president of the Church of Latter Day Saints, commonly called the Mormon church, called on the florists of Salt Lake City to furnish many elaborate funeral pieces. Among them was the huge wreath shown in the accompanying illustration. It was ordered by telegraph by an eastern florist and was made by the Bailey & Sons Co., Salt Lake City. The wreath was six feet high.

INDIANA ASSOCIATION.

December Meeting.

The December meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held December 3 at the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis. Although the attendance was small, an unusual amount of business was transacted with a good deal of pep. Three new names were proposed for membership: W. Ray Stevens and E. L. Sanderson, of Richmond, Ind., and W. E. Lummell, of Purdue University. H. Worth and Paul Janisch were elected to membership.

Since the next meeting will be the first of the new year, which is always celebrated as a home-coming and banquet, it was decided to make the January meeting this year unusually attractive. A flower show is always a feature at this time. Anyone in or out of the state having a new dissemination is cordially invited to exhibit at this time. Introductions will be given careful consideration and judgment by competent judges and publicity by the various trade papers. President Bertermann appointed the following committee to take charge of the floral display: John Hartje, William Roepke and Herman Piel. Anyone desiring to exhibit can make shipments to any member of the committee, President Bertermann or A. F. J. Baur.

As this was the last meeting in 1918, an auditing committee comprising the following was appointed: E. E. Temperley, William Roepke and Mr. Lewis. The matter of increasing the dues was laid over until the next meeting.

The question of establishing an experiment station at Purdue University was reopened. President Bertermann saw no reason why Indiana should not be benefited as other states have been by such courses in Cornell University, the University of Illinois, Amherst, etc.

Professor Lummell, of Purdue University, believes it possible to establish such a course at Purdue, but thinks the heads of the school must be educated up to the need of such a course and the governor and state legislature impressed with its importance if anything really worth while is to be accomplished. Professor Lummell said that he was himself wholly in sympathy with the project and he could speak also for Professor Greene, director-in-chief of agriculture at Purdue.

An incident showing how some of the other heads were being converted to this line of thinking was related by the professor. Three years ago enthusiasm had been worked up by some of the faculty for a chrysanthemum show. It being a rule that the college be closed on Sunday, it was necessary to obtain permission from the dean to exhibit the blooms that day. Although not fully approving, the dean could not withstand the pleading of the interested parties, and finally allowed them to keep open the conservatories. The show was a great success and received merited publicity by the various newspapers throughout the state. The following year another, larger show was given. Last fall, owing to greater activities along other lines, it was decided not to exhibit. This was discussed with the dean, who acquiesced and suggested that when the large blooms were open an item be inserted in the paper to let everyone know that the school was open to visitors. It is Professor Lummell's idea that if one neutral man can be made to see the value of this work to the university, others can be made to see it and an adequate appropriation obtained through the efforts of the State Florists' Association of Indiana.

Secretary Steinkamp brought up for approval the staging of a chrysanthemum show in November, 1919. The desire was also voiced to have the Chrysanthemum Society join with the state association in this meeting. By that time all our boys now in the service would have returned and a jollification on a larger scale could be held to express gratitude to and appreciation of these boys who have fought our battles for us. Mr. Steinkamp's suggestion was unanimously carried. President Bertermann appointed the following committee to work up this project: O. E. Steinkamp, Joseph Hill, Glen Moore, Fred Dorner, Professor Greene, Professor Lummell and Irwin Bertermann.

CHRISTMAS PLANTS

A REVIEW OF THE STOCK.

An Optimistic Outlook.

A victory and peace Christmas cannot fail to boom the sale of the florists' products. In 1917, with our country at war, trade was surprisingly good, but everything points this year to a brisk demand, better prices and a bumper holiday business. Growers have suffered from trade stagnation and unprofitable prices for a considerable time. Those who had courage to plant as usual are feeling happy now, as prices this fall have rarely been equaled, and it is a satisfaction to see the growers coming into their own. The bogy of fuel shortage is less acute. We have had a comparatively mild season up to the early days of December, which has helped to conserve fuel, and it is hardly likely that we shall have so severe a winter as a year ago. Everything considered, there is much cause for thankfulness, and the feeling of optimism now prevailing is bound to be justified.

Wrapping Plants.

It may seem hackneyed advice, but it will bear repeating, to say that Christmas may be mild, but more probably will be severely cold and everyone handling plants must provide an abundance of newspapers and other wrapping material. The cost of paper is higher than a year ago, but it would be poor policy for anyone to endeavor to economize on wrapping paper. Selling a plant is not difficult as a rule, but packing it up properly and delivering it free from frost is an entirely different proposition. Be sure to wrap all orders up thoroughly and do not forget that it is just as important to keep the roots warm as the shoots, so be sure to protect the pots well. Use tissue paper or cotton wool for gardenias, orchids, valley and other choice flowering plants, not only to prevent bruising, but to give additional warmth.

Cyclamens.

The most popular Christmas plant this year seems to be the cyclamen. It will have little competition from azaleas as compared with the past, and it is the most satisfactory flowering plant for the average home. Its foliage is tough, its flowers possess much substance and do not fall off like those of begonias or geraniums, and with moderate care it will flower for weeks, if not months. I have heard the remark made at stores that it did not pay to sell flowering plants which flowered a long time, as it tends to limit purchases, but is not a customer who has secured such a plant more likely to come again than one whose purchase goes to pieces within a few days? Keep the cyclamens in a light position in the store. The flowers will soon draw up and become leggy if kept in a dark place. They do not require much heat and are better at 40 degrees than at 60 degrees, provided they are not in a draft. Do not worry if white and light colors do not sell like reds and deep pinks; there is a market for cyclamens for many weeks after Christmas.

Begonias.

Begonias will not stand up in store or home like cyclamens, but they have always a big sale, as they carry such a profusion of flowers. Lorraine at one time had the field to itself. It still sells well, but Glory of Cincinnati has proved itself a superior variety and for some years has sold more heavily than any other begonia. For one thing, it is a much better house plant than Lorraine. The supremacy of Cincinnati is soon to pass, however, to Melior, which makes a more shapely plant than Cincinnati and is of a better color. Mrs. Peterson, with its bronze-like foliage and darker flowers, will sell in increased numbers this season. Gloire de Chatelaine is an all-the-year-around bloomer of simple culture and will bloom longer in the home than any of the Christmas begonias. Any grower can handle it and it can be sold profitably at a lower price than other sorts named.

The rich, large-flowered English types of winter-flowering begonias are not commercial propositions yet on a large scale, but they are coming into favor rapidly and, once their culture is better understood, they will come into prominence rapidly. They can easily be sold at prices far ahead of all other begonias. Some day we shall get a scarlet begonia of the Melior type. There is a fortune in prospect for the grower who produces it.

Azaleas.

Azaleas will be conspicuous by their rarity this Christmas. There will be some left-overs from previous years, carried along by wide-awake growers, who will make good money on them this year. Anyone with a batch of Mme. Petrick in flower is to be envied. It is certain that all azaleas offered will be eagerly bought up. Unless our entomological experts fail in their efforts to exclude all nursery stock with soil attached to their roots, azaleas are likely to be more of a memory than anything else in future years, and, by the way, will not these same entomologists be out of a job, some of them, at least, if they succeed in placing their law on the statute books? Azaleas and all hardwooded plants with fine, hairlike roots must never be allowed to suffer from dryness. It will mean at least a loss of flowers and sometimes death to the plants, in addition, so be sure that you carefully watch such plants, and if, when you tap the pots with the knuckles, there is a clear, bell-like ring, soak the pots in a pail of water.

Poinsettias.

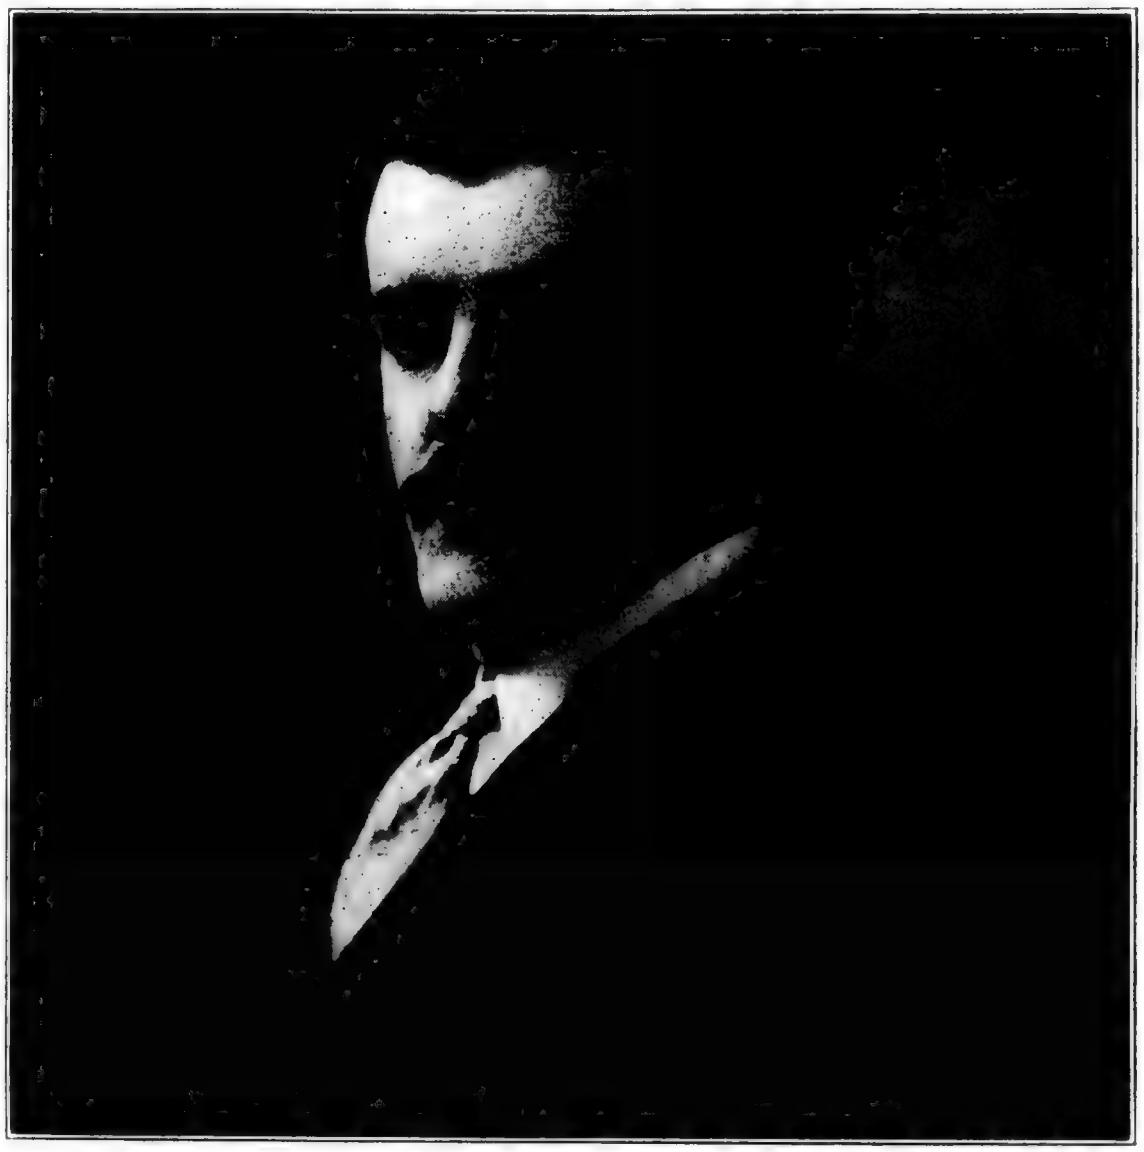
The most brilliant of all Christmas flowers is the poinsettia. It is not so easy to grow as some other plants for the holiday season, and, being more susceptible to cold than almost any other plant, it needs careful wrapping when the temperature is low. It is dangerous to move poinsettias from a warm to a cool house. Let the temperatures be reduced gradually or you are sure to lose a good deal of foliage and a poinsettia minus leaves reminds one of a Scotchman with attenuated kilts; neither is attractive. Probably poinsettias will sell sluggishly if the weather chances to be severe at the holidays. People fight shy of them when we have such climatic conditions. So if you seem likely to be long on plants, cut off and sell the stalks, but do not fail to sear the cuts either with boiling water or hot cinders to stop the bleeding, or the bracts are sure to flop. It is best to wrap some soft paper around the foliage of each stalk and merely leave part of the bract exposed before placing in water, and do not place them in as low a temperature as you would cut carnations, roses or mums. I find they keep best when the thermometer holds about 50 degrees.

Berried Plants.

We are not dependent on European importations for our small berried plants for Christmas, although we shall miss the handsome English hollies, aucubas and skimmias of other years and these latter we cannot produce at home. However, we shall have an abundance of berried solanums, or Jerusalem cherries, which are of the easiest possible culture and rarely fail to fruit abundantly. This plant appeals to the buyer of moderate means and makes a bright and attractive Christmas plant. You need not worry about your solanums, even if they should be exposed to a little frost, as it will not harm them. Then, for those with larger purses, we have the ardisias, and what wonderful keepers they are! Their foliage and berries both, even under careless treatment, will persist for months. Otaheite oranges with ripe fruit make a splendid holiday plant and if, as occasionally happens, the plants at the same time have one or two flowers open, it enhances their value, for who can resist the delightful odor of orange blossoms? All the fruiting plants will keep well in a temperature just clear of freezing.

Primulas.

The primula family is one of importance at Christmas. We have three principal varieties, P. chinensis, P. obconica and P. malacoides. The Chinese primroses drop their flowers more easily than obconica and malacoides, are brittle and for that reason are practically in the discard. They make a splendid house plant, however, and will bloom for months if kept moderately cool. P. obconica continues to frighten some retailers, who absolutely refuse to handle it, as its foliage poisons some people. This is regrettable, as obconica as now seen is wonderfully improved in size, color and substance, as compared with a decade ago, and it comes in extremely rich colors. It is a good plant for store trade and is especially good in window boxes. P. malacoides, a glorified baby primrose in appearance, has come rapidly to the front of late. It is by far the most graceful of all the primroses and can be had in fairly good bloom in December. To see it at its best, however, we must wait a month or six weeks, but malacoides, especially the dwarf bright pink forms, is a grand acquisition. Be sure to water it carefully and pour the water in at the sides and not in the center of the pots. If water is poured over the crown it is likely to cause damping off; therefore, guard against this carefully.



Hard-Wooded Plants.

Hard-wooded plants, apart from azaleas, help out the variety of Christmas offerings. Chief among these are the ericas, especially E. melanthera, always dependable and a wonderful keeper, provided its roots do not become dry. This erica is of easy propagation and can be produced abundantly at home. Other heathers, including the long-tubed French hybrids, will be obtainable in small lots and appeal to critical buyers. Then we have the camellias, which have come into their own in great measure again. What more attractive holiday plant could there be than a camellia with several open flowers and buds showing color to follow? Be sure to protect all flowers well when packing up, as camellia petals are easily bruised.

Euphorbia and Orchids.

Euphorbia jacquiniæflora in pans, several plants together, makes a grand Christmas plant. Only a few growers understand how to propagate, grow and flower it properly. It will never be a cheap plant, but is a brilliant and attractive one and the flowers last a long time fresh. Cypripedium insigne and the golden Sanderæ are most satisfactory holiday plants and, as everyone knows, the lady slippers have great lasting qualities either cut or on the plant. Other Christmas orchids are but few; some late Cattleya labiata and a fair lot of the smaller-flowered but showy C. Percivaliana are practically all we shall have in the way of plants from the orchid family.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

PHILIP F. KESSLER.

PHILIP F. KESSLER, president of the New York Florists' Club for the ensuing year, is well and favorably known to the trade in New York. Mr. Kessler celebrated his forty-fifth birthday at the meeting of the club November 11. He was born in New York city. Conceiving a liking for the florists' business, he eventually went to Bridgeport, Conn., where he served an apprenticeship with John Reck & Son. Returning to New York, he became connected with the New York Cut Flower Exchange, soon being appointed manager. In 1905 he embarked in business for himself. He has built a large and prosperous trade entirely through his own efforts. He is a hard worker, generally to be found at his post at 4 a. m., and continuing there until evening. Possessed of a cheerful disposition and charming personality, he has endeared himself to a host of friends. He is happily married and the proud father of three daughters and two sons.

Colored-Leaved Plants.

Colored-leaved plants in mixture make handsome combinations, or they look well associated with ardisias. Such plants as crotons, pandanus, dracænas and marantas, with various ferns, are salable either separately or associated in baskets or other receptacles, and of these we have, fortunately, a good supply. A mixture of the brilliant-colored crotons alone is fine. There are some who do not like colored-leaved plants, but to many of equally good taste the beautiful leaf variations and shades will prove as attractive as flowers.

Novelties.

There will be little in the way of flowering-plant novelties for Christmas. At Easter we can look for some new roses or shrubs at least, but the number of midwinter plants is more restricted. Some chrysanthemums will still be obtainable, also geraniums, but bulbous flowers, apart from Paper Whites, will be extremely few. There will be some pink spiræas from cold storage and some white marguerites. To those who want lilies, but will not be able to obtain them, nicely flowered pots of callas, especially Godfrey, should appeal. Pots and pans of fragrant freesias will be more numerous than a year ago and will make up in some measure for the scarcity of valley.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

PAPER WHITE NARCISSI.

It is evident that flowers will be scarce and dear the coming Christmas and it behooves the small country grower to produce all the flowers he can at home. Paper White narcissi are among the indispensables. They are of easy culture and can be flowered over a long season. Be sure to have a good-sized batch coming along for Christmas. White is not a Christmas color, but the Paper Whites are a necessity in bouquets and for all design work.

If you have an ample supply of bulbs, why not plant some in bowls containing a few stones? They will make acceptable Christmas presents and can be sold at comparatively low prices. If you grow your Paper Whites in flats, it is a simple matter to advance or retard them. A cold cellar will hold the bulbs in flower for a number of days in good condition.

POTTING MATERIAL.

Freezing up weather usually comes in December, occasionally earlier. It is not a pleasant task endeavoring to secure supplies of loam and other potting essentials with ice and snow on the ground and adequate supplies of loam, leaf-mold, rotted manure, sand, sphagnum moss and peat should be placed under cover now. If they are in a frostproof shed or cellar, all the better, but at all events let it be where it is not exposed to the weather. Of course old loam from the benches is available for certain purposes and answers well, but it is not equal to what is called virgin loam for many plants.

STEVIAS.

The most useful of winter-flowering plants, stevia, is one that the country florist can ill afford to be without. It is possible to cut flowers by the middle of November and I have had them as late as March. Nothing proves so dainty and effective in floral work as stevia. It is true that customers sometimes expect to have a spray or two of stevia and Sprengeri thrown in when buying a few carnations, but apart from this it nets the average grower as much money per square foot as anything else he grows. In order to have a late supply, a number of plants should be kept in a cold house where the temperature is kept just above freezing.

PROPAGATION OF BOUVARDIAS.

The pure white, sweet-scented Bouvardia Humboldtii propagates easily and quickly from soft-wood cuttings. If one or two old plants are well headed back, rested a short time and then started up in heat they will give an abundance of nice succulent cuttings, which root almost as easily as heliotropes. Other varieties of bouvardia, while they can be increased in the same way, are more satisfactorily propagated by means of root cuttings. Take the thicker roots and cut into short lengths (one-half inch is ample) and place them on a cutting bench where there is a good bottom heat. Just cover with sand, water well and give a soaking from time to time. In a few weeks there should be an ample supply of little shoots appearing, which can later be potted off.

J. R., Okla.—If you will address the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., you may be able to obtain a bulletin containing information on the means of counteracting the effects of alkali in the soil.

A. J. Z., N. Sow the schizanthus seed now; earlier would have been better. Sow the verbena seed in February.

W. L. P., Pa.—Since you do not say anything about your treatment of the oxalis and do not state which of the 400 or more species you are growing, it is impossible to determine why the buds drop off. The oxalis, as a rule, needs a light, sandy, well drained soil and a warm, sunny position.

REMEDY FOR RUST.

Will you kindly state what is the best remedy for carnation rust? W. B. M.

To get rid of rust, you should first of all produce conditions that are favorable to the proper development of your plants. It is possible at this time of the year to eliminate the harmful conditions which prevailed during the summer and which are responsible for the appearance of the disease. The extreme heat of last summer was undoubtedly responsible for much of the rust, which seems more prevalent this year than usual. Keep the temperature even and around 50 degrees at night, with a reasonable rise during the daytime. Do not spray too frequently, but water freely at the roots, if the plants are well established. Paint a steam pipe in each house with lime and sulphur. Do not be stingy with the steam on mild nights. Run at least one steam pipe and open the ventilators a trifle to keep the temperature at the proper point. We are urged to conserve fuel and we should do so on every occasion, but conserving fuel does not mean merely to burn less. It means to make every pound of fuel produce a maximum in whatever commodity you are producing. If, by burning a few pounds more of fuel, you can increase your output or the quality of your output, probably you will be economizing.

Spray your plants heavily with Bordeaux mixture. This is the best preventive of rust that I know of. It is safe to use and will guard against all kinds of fungous diseases. If your carnations are in crop, you might confine the spray to the lower part of the plants, so as to disfigure the foliage along the flower stems as little as possible. A. F. J. B.

BORDEAUX IN DRY FORM.

Will you please give us information regarding the use of Bordeaux mixture which has been supplied to us in dry form? We wish to use it as a spray on carnations to prevent stem-rot. We do not know the right proportion of water to use with the dry Bordeaux mixture. O. G.—Okla.

We have had no experience with Bordeaux in dry form, preferring to apply it as a spray. You should be able to obtain instructions as to proportions from your source of supply, and that would be the safest plan. In the ordinary liquid Bordeaux mixture there are supposed to be four pounds of stone lime and four pounds of sulphate of copper to fifty gallons of water. If you know the ingredients of the dry material, you will know how to mix it with the water. A. F. J. B.

THE GOLDEN MEAN IN FEEDING.

Please tell me how often to feed carnations. Is there anything more effective for this purpose than bone meal? W. B. M.

If your soil was good when the carnations were benched, not a great deal of feeding will be needed. At this time of the year the sun has little strength and the growth is liable to be soft, so any kind of feed that contains much nitrogen might cause the blooms to become soft and lacking in keeping quality. Bone contains a good deal of lime, which would act rather as a deterrent. An application now should be sufficient until late in January, when the sun will be gaining strength, and sheep manure, dried blood or a light mulch of rotted manure then will be in order. Avoid heavy applications of fertilizer while a heavy crop of blooms is being cut, or splitting of the calyx may result. A. F. J. B.

MUMS AT FAIRVIEW.

While there was an exceptionally large production of mums for Thanksgiving this year, the scarcity of other stock held prices up to figures double those of a year ago and the growers reaped a harvest. The large supply was due principally to the fuel restriction order, which led greenhousemen to stock the houses they intended to close with mums. The wiseacres in the trade predicted a glut and were pleasantly disappointed.

One of those who got in on this mum prosperity was W. Bruce Clinger, proprietor of the Fairview Greenhouses, Milton, Pa. Mr. Clinger had a house 38x200 planted to white and yellow William Turner mums exclusively and had a wonderful crop. The accompanying illustration shows the house after some of the blooms had been cut. They were produced by James Oberdorf, superintendent of the Fairview range. The mums were grown two and three blooms to the plant in second-year soil. Mr. Clinger says he finds that the yellow Turner is a much stronger grower than the white, is more admired and finds a ready sale at good prices, both wholesale and retail.

The Fairview Greenhouses were established in 1914 with 15,000 feet of glass. During the four years the range has been doubled in area, showing that business has been excellent. A general line of cut flowers and plants is grown.

Mr. Clinger is one of the fortunate Pennsylvanians who burn soft coal, so that he was benefited by the recent order of the U. S. Fuel Administration, which lifted the ban from the consumption of bituminous coal in greenhouses. The Fairview Greenhouses will be run at capacity this winter. Mr. Clinger says business has held up well during the war and he predicts a profitable future for the trade.

A HOTHOUSE POLITICIAN.

A Chicago newspaper sketches in brief detail the life of Peter Reinberg, recently reëlected president of the Board of County Commissioners of Cook county, in which Chicago is located, recalling the days of his boyhood labors as a salesman of garden truck, when he was up with the sun and worked till all hours of the night. Mr. Reinberg's father's establishment was on the site of his own greenhouses, at Robey street and Foster avenue. After the youth had been a truck gardener for himself for some time he built three greenhouses for lettuce and cucumbers. He saw the commercial future of flowers and made additions to his range for the floricultural branch. He continued to add to his range for a matter of twenty years, until he had glass covering more than twenty-five acres. By this time lettuce and cucumbers had made way for roses and carnations and at one time Mr. Reinberg was the happy possessor of 125,000 American Beauties. A rose which he originated was named Mrs. Marshall Field. The paragrapher concludes his little skit by remarking:

"You have heard of pothouse politicians, but of only one hothouse politician. He is Peter Reinberg, recently reëlected president of the County Board."

LETTUCES.

Now that we are approaching the shortest days, with a minimum of sunlight, lettuces need careful attention. It is true that they can be grown in a low temperature, but such lettuces are tough and not to be compared with those produced in a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. The writer prefers 46 to 48 degrees for a midwinter minimum. Avoid a too close atmosphere, even on cold days. Give the plants some ventilation, unless the temperature is abnormally low. It is especially necessary not to keep ventilators closed for too long periods when we have long spells of sunless weather, often accompanied by snow. Any moisture in the hearts of the plants is liable to cause rot during such periods, but if heating pipes raise the temperature to 55 degrees, be sure to ventilate.

Another point to guard against is sun-scald on the edges of the leaves. This is most likely to occur where lettuces are grown cold and a clear, sunny day follows several dark ones. If the house is left closed too long, trouble is bound to develop. It does occur in even the largest and most modern houses, more particularly on that finest of all forcing head lettuces, May King, but the avoiding of extremes of temperature and careful ventilation will prevent it for the most part. Watering is a necessary evil, especially at this season. Be sure to do it early in the day and when the skies are clear. Usually a soaking at planting time suffices for a lettuce crop, provided the soil is deep and contains plenty of humus. In raised benches more water is a necessity.

Continue to make sowings of seed. It will be found best not to cover the seed with any loam whatever. A light dusting of fine coal ashes, I find, makes an ideal covering and prevents damping off. It is just as good for tomatoes as lettuces. There has been an improved demand for Cos or Romaine lettuce in the big markets and prices on these have been better than for the cabbage or tennis ball type of lettuces. Paris White Cos and Trianon have each done well under glass.

RHUBARB.

Where rhubarb roots were dug up before freezing weather occurred and stored in a shed or cellar, it is a good plan to start a batch of roots now. They are best if grown where it is tolerably dark. The stalks then take on the pleasing pink color we see in winter. Small lots may be forced below a greenhouse bench or a space can be partitioned off in a cellar, the warmer the better. Roots should be covered with loam and soaked with water. Then keep them as dark as possible.

ASPARAGUS.

Like rhubarb, asparagus can be successfully forced below the bench of a warm greenhouse. Spread the roots out flat and cover them with loam. The plants start into growth quickly and it is possible to cut the stalks in ten to sixteen days, according to the season. Where a special mushroom house or cellar exists it will prove ideal for forcing rhubarb, asparagus, seakale and Witloof chicory, all of which are better if grown in the dark during the winter. None of these roots are of any value to save after forcing, but as all are easily produced from seed this need not act as any deterrent to their being forced.

TOMATOES.

Tomatoes proved to be a well paying crop this fall in spite of the fact that more florists grew houses of them than ever before. These plants are now just finishing. I have never found midwinter tomatoes a profitable crop. To succeed well they need a temperature of 60 degrees at night, a somewhat restricted root run, a dry atmosphere and artificial pollination. I remember that nearly thirty years ago midwinter tomatoes wholesaled from $1 to $2 per pound and they sold as high as $2.50 in the late 80's, but we do not get any such prices nowadays. The small or medium-fruited sorts are the only ones adaptable for winter forcing. Of these there are a number of sorts, including Comet, Carter's Sunrise, Lister's Prolific, Stirling Castle and others. Any of these are also suitable for sowing now for a spring crop, a period when tomatoes realize better prices than in midwinter and when they are much more cheaply produced.

CAULIFLOWERS.

There is no better forcing cauliflower than Kronk's Forcing Erfurt. It can be planted twelve by fifteen inches apart in the beds or benches. Cauliflowers like a rich soil and when in active growth an abundant water supply. Seed should be started now for a spring crop. They should be pricked off into flats when they have made their second leaves and should be dug out with a nice ball before they become too crowded in the flats. If, perchance, you have no bed at your disposal when they need removing from the flats, put them in 3½-inch pots for a short time. Be sure not to allow them to get matted with roots before benching, or they are sure to make small, button-like heads.

Henderson, Ky.—W. O. Connell is building a greenhouse and expects to grow plants and flowers. Indications point to a good Christmas trade here in cut flowers.

BEGONIAS IN THE SOUTH.

Where large plants of begonias of the Lorraine type are wanted for next year the cuttings should be started now. Select medium-sized, healthy leaves, leaving about an inch of stem, and insert in the sand, leaving lots of space between the leaves. Large leaves may be subdivided, the same as the leaves of the Rex begonias, but the result is not always satisfactory, as many of them damp off. They can be split up the stem, thus making two cuttings out of one leaf, with better results. Where only a limited quantity is grown for home sales, the cuttings are better put in flats or pans, so that they can be moved as required. The night temperature should be kept not less than 60 degrees. Though the cuttings will root in about three weeks, it is well to leave them in the sand some time longer before potting them off in a light mixture of soil, sand and leaf-mold. A little care is needed in watering after they are rooted to prevent the leaves damping off, before the cuttings begin to stool out from the bottom. These plants require a great deal of care here in the south during the summer months to get nice plants that will sell at the holiday season. With careful watering, shading, frequent stirring of the surface soil and keeping the foliage dry, good plants may be grown, though not always of a certainty. I believe there are many other holiday plants that will give better returns, but well grown begonias are attractive to the better class of buyers. L.

ROSES IN THE SOUTH.

Propagating roses seems to be a branch of business that is neglected by many growers, who depend on buying their young plants each year instead of growing them on their own places. There is no difficulty in rooting them during the late fall and winter months. Clean sand, firmly packed on a clean table in a house that can be kept at a regular rose temperature of 56 to 60 degrees at night, is the groundwork of success. It is not at all necessary to have bottom heat, although it may be a big help. What is more important is that the cuttings be absolutely healthy, with no trace of black spot or other fungoid disease. When these are present the cuttings are almost sure to drop their foliage and become nearly worthless. Two-eyed cuttings from flowering wood or heel cuttings from selected blind wood both make excellent plants, with little to choose between them. Give them lots of room in the bed, spray each fine day and give enough water to keep them fresh and plump. Shade during the day and maintain a buoyant atmosphere by correct ventilation and in about thirty days they should be rooted enough to pot. The hybrid teas that show a tendency to sleep during January should be put in the sand first. They root much more readily now than later. L.

THE BOYS WHO DID THE TRICK

Florists Return to Old Places.

With President Wilson and the other American delegates in Europe for the peace conference, the allied armies advancing into Germany to occupy the territory agreed on by the armistice, and the American soldiers rapidly arriving in this country, many members of our trade who were in the training camps in this country and with the forces in France and Belgium at the close of hostilities, are going back to their peacetime jobs. Secretary Baker announced December 7 that the casualty lists were far from complete, but he expected that they would be in a short time. As the florist-fighters return to their places, let The Review know. When news comes of misfortune to any of the brave young men of our trade who were in the fighting, let The Review know about them also, for its "Khaki and Blue" page.

Harry E. Guerinot.

It is with regret that we report the death of Harry E. Guerinot, formerly of George T. Boucher's force, Rochester, N. Y. Private Guerinot was one of the first boys to be sent away from Rochester and was in training at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. It was after strenuous training that he underwent a series of three operations and received an honorable discharge. He enlisted again at a later date and after a short sickness of pneumonia passed away in Pittsburgh, Pa., a few days ago, at the age of 27 years. He was a member of Rochester Council, Knights of Columbus. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Dr. A. J. Guerinot and Dr. George W. Guerinot. He was given a military funeral and interment was in Holy Sepulcher cemetery. H. J. H.

George E. Schlicht.

George Schlicht Reaches France.

George Schlicht, for ten years employed by the William Scott Co., Buffalo, N. Y., is now in France with the American Expeditionary Forces. Mr. Schlicht joined the army March 26 last and trained at Camp Dix, N. J. His regiment sailed for France sometime in June. Mr. Schlicht had charge of the cemetery work for the Scott company.

Sergeant I. F. Matson.

Samuel Matson, of Newport, R. I., has received a letter from his son, I. F. Matson, telling of his promotion to the office of sergeant in the Oriental detail of the Twenty-first Field Artillery, now in France. Young Mr. Matson enlisted one week after the United States entered the war, going overseas in March, 1918. Soon after arriving in France he went to a radio school, where he remained a few months, later taking charge of the wireless at headquarters.

While at the headquarters, Sergeant Matson had some thrilling experiences. Once while communicating with an airplane, shells fell all around him, and with one extra loud crash his set went dead. A shell had struck the pole supporting one end of the aerial, carrying it away, and the wires were cut by pieces of the flying steel. He had it fixed up in a short time, however, and went on with his work. Before joining the colors he was in the employ of Gibson Bros., Newport, R. I., but at the time of his enlistment he was employed by Charles Uttley, artist florist of Harrisburg, Pa. W. H. M.

Pittsburgh Patriots.

Reports received by Pittsburgh florists of relatives and employees in the service overseas and in camp and munition work include many names. A gold star on the service flag now stands for Lieutenant Benjamin Detchon, a nephew of J. W. and B. L. Elliott, who is reported killed in action. Other members of the same family in the honor roll are young Barton W. Elliott, who is in a hospital in France, and Rhea F. Elliott, who has returned from the Officers' Training Camp at Camp Lee; a fourth member of this patriotic family is Thomas McKee Elliott, a brother of Benjamin and Barton, who is returning from Camp Joseph E. Johnson, Fla.

Peter Matsukes, who left his work as manager of the P. R. R. flower shop at East Liberty station to engage in munition work, later enlisting in the motor corps, has returned to his accustomed pursuits and opened a flower shop in the Henry W. Oliver building, Pittsburgh.

Ralph F. Pinner, of the Ambulance Corps, who has just left a hospital in France; A. C. Stowes, recently commissioned sergeant at Camp Jackson, S. C., and E. Clarke Stiles, now in France and lately promoted to the office of second lieutenant, are other Pittsburgh boys in the trade who are expected home soon.

Patterson Promoted.

One of the first young men to be taken to Camp Grant, Ill., by the draft was Kellogg M. Patterson, formerly connected with The Review. Mr. Patterson went to the camp as a private, but it was not long before he was a first sergeant. This got him a chance at the officers' training camp, from which he emerged a second lieutenant, assigned to the depot brigade, which is composed of the raw recruits. Some months since Lieutenant Patterson was sent to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and more recently was transferred to Camp Pike, Ark. Incidentally he was promoted to a first lieutenancy. A recent letter from Lieutenant Patterson says: "John Poehlmann, Jr., is down here some place and August Poehlmann's son is in the training camp here. H. V. Swenson came down here, but was sent to Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex. There seems to be no hope of getting across from this camp, but we are all hoping some luck will hit this way and give us a chance to get across. The weather is great here and it makes up for the heat we had last summer, when we certainly missed old Lake Michigan. There are some fine florists' stores here, Tipton & Hurst having a mighty attractive place."

Kittanning, Pa.—Under the name of Chula Vista Floral Co., James E. Schreckengost and E. Lorinda Schreckengost grow cut flowers, vegetable plants and bedding plants, also fruits and poultry.

SHIP FLOWERS BY AIRPLANE.

In these days of reconstruction I would like to suggest the use of airplanes in getting out shipments of flowers to the big markets in record time. Flower shipments at the holidays are valuable and perishable, but not heavy. Flowers worth $1,000 could easily be rushed into Chicago in an airplane in less time than otherwise. In the case of places where transportation facilities are not adequate, airplanes would be a great help. Harry A. Dubuis.

HOLIDAY PRICES.

Prospects for Christmas look rosy to me if I can only get all the stock I need and prices are not inflated too much. If they are it will only hurt the trade, instead of boosting it. We want more flower buyers. Keep the prices so that there will be only a legitimate profit and we can make more customers—the more, the merrier. I would sooner make my money out of a thousand customers than out of a few, even if I did the same amount of business. Publicity is what I want, and the more customers I have, the more I get talked about; and that means more business. There is a great future for the live florists if they will only pull together and fill every order they get, large or small. They mean more orders later, if they are filled satisfactorily. A satisfied customer is the florist's best asset. A happy Christmas to all.

A. R. King.

CHAYOTE.

I am trying out a vine new to most florists. Last spring I saw chayote vine seeds advertised at 30 cents each. I sent for one and planted it according to directions. Later I shifted it into a 50-pound tub and when it commenced to send out shoots I built a trellis six feet high and three feet wide at the top for it. It soon covered the trellis with vines and then I cut it back. In September it commenced to blossom and to set fruit and now I am getting 10 cents apiece for the fruit. The plant is unusually prolific. It is claimed for it that in the second year it will bear fruit by the hundred, and I believe it. I have moved the tub into the greenhouse and it is still setting fruit. We fried the fruit like eggplant and find it delicious. It does not taste like eggplant and cucumbers are not in the same class with it. I do not see any bugs on the vine. Chayote is an item that is going to be a big paying proposition for the greenhousemen. Once eaten, it will always be wanted. It is a food for the epicure.

H. W. Peterson.

UNDERSELLING NOT POPULAR.

We have had a great deal of funeral work in the last two months, but other business does not amount to much. We think The Review is doing a good work in urging the florists to increase the prices of flowers. How can a retailer make anything when one of the largest flower stores in a nearby city sends out circular matter for Thanksgiving advertising choice carnations at $1.50 per dozen, while wholesalers in the same place are asking the florists $8 and $10 per hundred for the same flowers the same day? We have also to pay express on shipments, stand breakage, pay packing charges, put the flowers in a cut-flower box, with ferns and wax paper, and deliver them, after procuring the stock in the first place.

Another trouble is the competition of the department stores. The 5 and 10-cent stores are selling Paper White narcissus bulbs of good size at two for 5 cents. We have to pay 2 cents for them and then do the handling, wrapping, etc., on a margin of 6 cents a dozen.

We hope you will keep after the florists who are always trying to undersell their competitors, not considering whether or not they make anything.

Charles H. Gelven.

TROUBLES OF SMALL GROWERS.

We are at the end of the mum season and prices have been good, the demand having been excellent because of the number of deaths from influenza and the consequent call for funeral work. We have had much trouble with red spider on Seidewitz chrysanthemums. I was taken unawares, as I had never seen red spider to know it before. However, I am aware now that we had them for several years and did not know it. We lost some plants several seasons ago and blamed the spraying with nicotine, which apparently burned them. This year I quit the nicotine when the buds showed, but the same trouble appeared. Then I discovered the spider. We commenced to spray with water, but it did little good. Seeing that the plants would be destroyed anyway, we began using Black Leaf 40, one teaspoonful to one gallon of water, directly on the half open blooms. While it did not kill all the spiders, it seemed to check them somewhat. The only variety badly affected was Seidewitz. Marigold and Bonnaffon were in the same house, but were troubled little. Is Seidewitz more troubled with spider than other varieties? What is the best method of keeping them away, or destroying them after they are present?

Our plants also have been troubled with what I believe is called aster "yellows." The buds come damaged and do not develop into good blooms. In one lot, started early in the greenhouse, nearly three-fourths were lost, running into several thousand flowers. The later ones were not so much affected, but we lost nearly one-half our crop during the season. I have read in The Review at some time that greenhouse-grown are more affected than outdoor-grown plants, and it seems so in our case. What is the trouble and what can we do to remedy it?

What are the best white and yellow mums to come in with Seidewitz?

I am planning to grow some early mums outdoors next year. This is my plan: I have several hotbeds, heated by hot water. I use these in the spring for vegetable plants and for flowers. I plan to fill them with mums and when they are coming into bud put up a temporary frame three feet high, or less, and use the regular sashes to cover, then to close the sides with muslin when cold weather comes and heat if necessary. I think Bonnaffon, Chieftain, White Chieftain and some other early dwarf varieties would grow well this way.

Chrysolora with the crown bud discarded and the terminal bud taken was grand with me, but with the crown bud left they were almost worthless.

A JUBILEE CONVENTION.

It was suggested by J. F. Ammann, president-elect of the Society of American Florists, that, as the January meeting of the American Carnation Society in Cleveland would be the first national assemblage of florists after the cessation of hostilities, it would be an excellent plan to make it an occasion for the general expression of joy throughout the trade. This is a capital idea, into the spirit of which every red-blooded trade-member will enter heartily. Sixth City florists are a unit for it and already are making preparations in their well-known enthusiastic manner for a record-breaking gathering.

Although carnations have been decidedly low in production during October and November, due to late benching and the enforced conservation of fuel, there is now a general awakening, evidenced in quality as well as quantity, and there is reasonable certainty that the stock will be in prime condition for showing by the latter part of January. Undoubtedly, express service will be bad, as at present, but the society has evolved a plan that will offset effectively this unfavorable condition. Prevailing higher prices will prove no detriment, but will serve to enliven the interest of growers and increase their desire to exhibit. And as the better values can best be maintained by offering the public a distinctly high grade of flowers, perhaps never before were introductions of superior merit more worthy of earnest consideration.

The war, with its multitudinous privations, is over and a new business era is dawning. The boys will soon be home to take up the arts of peace with the same energy with which they embraced the arts of war. Let us all rejoice and give vent to our emotion at the annual convention of the American Carnation Society, in Cleveland, January 29 and 30, 1919. Mac.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Because of a short supply, the market has shown great strength for a week or more. With the chrysanthemum supply lessening daily, there does not appear to be sufficient stock in other lines to fill the gap now painfully apparent. Already demand and supply are on equal footing and it is evident that any increase in the demand will result in a shortage of stock, which may continue throughout the season. Prospects, therefore, for a plentiful supply of flowers at Christmas are slim. It is said that plant growers have anticipated an unusual demand for plants this Christmas, due to a scant supply of cut flowers, and have depended less upon Easter prospects, preferring to use up their coal supply in the main for the earlier possibility. With the fuel restrictions now withdrawn, there will surely be no shortage of plants for Easter, as plenty of quick-maturing stock is available for growing on, and Easter is more than four months away, occurring in 1919 as late as April 20.

American Beauty roses in the special grades have declined a little in price since Thanksgiving, the finest now bringing $60. The quality in all grades is good, and arrivals are heavy enough for the demand. Other roses are plentiful, but move well with little effort. The reds seem to be in greatest request, and command higher figures than the others.

Carnations are in better supply, but arrivals still are light. Some fancy stock of the variety Mrs. C. W. Ward brings as high as 10 cents. Flowers from late-planted stock are short in stem, but they clean up nicely at substantial prices.

Gardenias are in better supply and the best grade brings $9 per dozen. Cattleyas are in good supply and prices are mounting, $1.25 per flower now being asked for the best. Cypripediums bring $1.50 per dozen, for the ordinary insigne variety, but the newer variety, Sanderæ, is in greatest demand and moves easily at $2; it is being used largely in corsage bouquets.

Lilies are plentiful and, with the ordinary demand for them, are likely to remain so; it is understood that there are some large stocks of bulbs in cold storage. Lily of the valley remains scarce and its quality poor.

Violets are shorter in supply than in previous seasons, consequently prices remain above the average. Good specials bring $1.50 per bunch. Many of the growers in the violet section have gone out of business, which accounts for the lighter supply.

Chrysanthemums are still in evidence in all grades, but arrivals are light and a quick clean-up is possible. There is a good movement in a variety of other flowers in fair supply, such as calendulas, mignonette, stevia, bouvardia and sweet peas.

Careful buyers are already trying to cover for Christmas requirements, but there seems little disposition on the part of wholesalers to come down to settled prices.

The Nursery Stock Embargo.

There was a meeting at the S. A. F. offices, 1170 Broadway, December 6, at which were represented various interests affected by the nursery stock embargo expected to go into force shortly, to discuss the situation and consider steps which might be taken in an effort to obtain a modification of the embargo. It is understood that while nothing definite was arrived at, certain preliminaries for action were arranged. There were present: J. D. Eisele, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; James McHutchison and C. B. Knickman, New York; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and John Watson, Princeton, N. J.

Club Meeting.

The December meeting of the Florists' Club was held in the Grand Opera House building December 9. About 175 of the more than 500 members were in attendance. President Charles Schenck occupied the chair and, as it was election night, the proceedings were made as brief as possible, but, notwithstanding, the hour of adjournment was late.

Three visitors were formally introduced: Z. D. Blackistone, president of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C.; B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., and F. G. Sealey, Rutherford, N. J.

C. H. Totty detailed the work of the S. A. F. committee which represented that society at the recent congress inaugurated by the United States Chamber of Commerce. He impressed upon all present the fact that the florists were recognized by the greater industries as being an organized trade body through their society and in consequence the committee was given authority to create a section of the congress which should include various industries more or less allied. The proceedings of the congress, he said, had been fully reported in the press, from which it could be deduced that one of the most important objects of the gathering, which included a representation of 450 industries, was a suggestion to be made to the government that it take its hands off general business and let general business reconstruct itself. The discussions of the florists' section were largely relative to the fuel problem, and the restrictions covering importation of plants. Of the latter Mr. Totty said that even importations of orchids are to be prohibited, the bulk of which have no soil accompanying the plants. He believes that the club should not rest satisfied with the embargo as at present proposed.

President Schenck thought this a favorable time to impress upon all present that it was the duty of each individual to report promptly to the secretary's office intelligence regarding movements which in any way might act to the detriment or good of the florists' business, so that the influence of the club can be exerted in any direction deemed advisable.

A. L. Miller reported, for the flower show committee, that at a meeting of the committee last week it was concluded that it would not be wise to attempt the staging of a spring show in 1919, for the reason that a suitable building is not available and the possibility of obtaining exhibits in the competitive section is rather slim.

Resolutions on the deaths of Ralph M. Ward, Walter R. Siebrecht, Mrs. Carl Giessler, William Vescelius and William Weber were adopted.

Clarence R. Ankers, Rockville Center, L. I., was elected to membership, and the following were nominated for election at the next meeting: Isadore Landsman, East Thirty-eighth street and Lenox road, Brooklyn; Simon Schneirow, 3917 King's Highway, Brooklyn; Bornatt Klugman, Brooklyn; O. J. Van Bourgondien, Arlington, N. J.; F. G. Sealey, 3056 Perry avenue, Bronx, N. Y., and R. H. C. Bard, Syracuse, N. Y.

The board of trustees, which had been in session early in the afternoon, made a report recommending changes in banks carrying general checking accounts of the club, and regarding the issue of Liberty bonds for which the club had subscribed. The board also recommended that inasmuch as the club is financially able to support headquarters, or an office of administration, a sum of $30 per month be appropriated for the purpose; and it was further decided by the club, after accepting the recommendations in the report, that the secretary be reimbursed for his expenditures for office accommodation during the year 1918. It was the opinion, generally, that the business of the club had assumed such importance that an office of its own had become a necessity.

An application for donations of flowers by florists to be used in connection with celebrations covering the return of our soldier boys, was discussed at considerable length. There appeared to be a feeling that the club members who are systematically contributing flowers to the National League for Woman's Service, which organization is doing laudable hospital work, are doing as much as can be expected; and inasmuch as manufacturers of bunting and other materials entering into patriotic celebrations are not making contributions of their products, there is no apparent reason for sacrifice on the part of florists. A suggestion by Wallace R. Pierson, however, that the club build a floral arch on the day that the return of the most active regiments is celebrated, met with hearty approval, and if carried out we may be sure that it will be a magnificent piece of work, and prove to be a publicity stunt of inestimable value.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Philip F. Kessler; vice-president, P. W. Popp; secretary, John Young; treasurer, W. C. Rickards, Jr.; trustees, E. C. Vick, Percy B. Rigby and A. T. De La Mare. The judge of elections was J. G. Esler; the tellers, G. E. M. Stumpp and H. Weston.

The president appointed John Scheepers, C. H. Totty and Arthur Herrington, a memorial committee on the death of Capt. De Lamar, of Glen Cove, L. I., a stanch supporter of the club's flower show; and John Young, J. H. Pepper and Charles Schenck, a similar committee on the death of Mrs. Milliot, of Yonkers.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed a vase of Chrysanthemum Golden Mistletoe, scored 86 points, preliminary certificate; vase of Chrysanthemum Christmas Gold, small pompon, preliminary certificate.

Teaneck Greenhouses, Teaneck, N. J., staged two vases of Antirrhinum Ruth Brewster, vote of thanks.

Chas. Smith & Son, Corona, N. Y., exhibited two vases of single chrysanthemums, sports of Godfrey, deep pink and bronze, vote of thanks.

R. E. Sealey, Cedarhurst, N. J.,

brought a vase of Chrysanthemum Bright View, preliminary certificate; vase of seedling single chrysanthemum, vote of thanks.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., sent three vases of new chrysanthemums, which arrived in poor shape, so the awards committee expressed the hope to see the varieties again.

S. Van Riper, Dundee Lake, N. J., showed a vase of stevia, vote of thanks.

Gas Masks for Growers.

In view of the probable disposal of the large number of gas masks produced for war purposes by a large establishment in Long Island City, some of the florists are wondering whether the masks would be useful in the work of fumigation where hydrocyanic acid gas is the fumigating agent. It is known that masks have been used successfully in the fumigation of nursery stock, where the process was conducted under canvas tents, and if they could be applied to use in greenhouses, they might afford a measure of safety which under present conditions does not exist and make the use of the gas more general among florists' establishments.

Various Notes.

C. H. Totty and John Young, president and secretary respectively of the S. A. F., returned from Atlantic City December 5, where they attended the big congress called by the United States Chamber of Commerce to consider the problems of trade reconstruction after the war. They report that great enthusiasm prevailed at the different sessions, and that the florists' industry received recognition as being one of no small importance. The main idea of the gathering was to represent to Congress that the reconstruction of industry would be better undertaken by an organization of industries than by departmental committees whose conception of requirements could at best be decidedly limited.

John R. Andre, the well known rose grower, of Doylestown, Pa., has opened a retail store in that town, and is using the various items in the direct aid service of the national publicity campaign.

The Birchland Gardens, Arthur C. Ruzicka, manager, has opened a retail flower store at 12 West Main street, Somerville, N. J.

The Kervan Co., 119 West Twenty-eighth street, anticipates handling a good supply of Christmas trees for the holidays, in spite of restrictions and curtailments connected with quarantines and transportation. Two branch stores in their immediate location will add materially to their facilities for handling their Christmas trade in their different lines.

Visitors during the week included: Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, D. C.; W. J. Stewart, Boston, Mass.; J. D. Eisele, Philadelphia, Pa., and John Watson, Princeton, N. J.

W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, was in town December 9.

HARDY ROSES.

I would like to know the names of the hardiest and best varieties of monthly roses. J. P. H.—Mo.

If you refer to monthly roses of the baby rambler or polyantha types, these are adaptable for bedding purposes. The following are excellent varieties: Clothilde Soupert, Ellen Poulsen, Mme. Norbert Levavasseur, Mrs. W. H. Cutbush, Orleans, Catherine Zeimet and Jessie. The hybrid teas are persistent-flowering and fine for cutting. Here are a few of merit: Konigin Carola, Mme. Caroline Testout, Mme. Abel Chatenay, Gruss an Teplitz, Mme. Leon Pain, Lady Ashtown, Antoine Rivoire, Laurent Carle, J. L. Mock and La Tosca. C. W.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

While the Thanksgiving trade accelerated business among the florists to an appreciable and welcome extent, there has been a material increase ever since the signing of the armistice. There are a larger number of social functions being held and planned and many persons who have denied themselves flowers for home or personal adornment now seem to feel that they have been released from their resolutions not to buy anything unnecessary during the period of the war and are now making lavish purchases.

Indications at present are in favor of a big business boom during the current winter, although the growers will hardly be in a position to meet the demand. A number have closed their houses for the winter and everybody has curtailed benching, because of the shortage in help and to conserve coal.

The stores continue to make splendid showings, with the last of the season's mums. These attained their best at Thanksgiving, but the local crop is practically expended. Prices continue above normal, roses, including all the leading varieties, bringing $6 to $15 per hundred and retailing for $1.50 to $6 a dozen. Carnations are accepted as soon as brought to market at $5 to $6 per hundred, the retail price ranging from $1 to $3 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Willis S. Pino received a large shipment of Dutch bulbs last week.

Alexander H. Johnson, of the Elmwood Greenhouses, who has been in military service since the beginning of the war, has resumed his civilian duties.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, Quidnick, are making a special feature of violet culture this winter.

George F. Rooney, employed at the greenhouses of James B. Canning, Smith street, reported to the police that when he went into the place at 6 p. m., December 5, he saw two men attempting to force open the safe. His appearance frightened the men away.

Eugene McCarron, who was reported on the sick list, is able to be out and around again.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was a business visitor in Boston last week.

E. J. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., reports having good bookings of orders for Christmas delivery.

An attempt was made to break into the house of Louis D. Pierce, Norwood avenue, Norwood, the evening of December 3, while the family were away. The men were frightened away by the approach of neighbors.

Andrew B. Whipple, superintendent of cemeteries of Smithfield, celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday December 4 at his home in Greenville.

Miss O'Connor, of Thayer street, has several wedding decorations for the coming month.

The first of the Christmas greenery made its appearance last week. Many of the churches are preparing for more general decoration for the yuletide than for several years.

Timothy O'Connor was in New York last week, combining business and pleasure.

William N. Crompton, of East Greenwich, was in the city last week looking for holiday goods.

According to this year's assessment just filed with the town clerk of Coventry, the Quidnick Greenhouses are taxed at $25,000, and the estate of Joseph H. Cushing at $34,950. W. H. M.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The last week has seen the market cleared every day. The shortage of stock has made it impossible for the wholesalers to begin to fill orders in full. Many of the retailers give the same report. Both are taking orders to be delivered when the stock to fill them is obtainable. The demand for funeral work is as big as ever. More artificial flowers are being used than ever. Some of the retailers require their trade to take half artificial and half natural flowers for design work. There has been practically no valley in the market for some time and many a bride has carried artificial valley in her bouquet, an exceptionally good article being obtainable. Chrysanthemums have been cleaned up entirely, but a few good pompons still come in. Carnations and roses are scarce, not nearly enough arriving to meet the demand. A few good callas are to be had. Easter lilies have been decidedly short. A good amount of stevia is being cleaned up daily. Asparagus and adiantum are scarce. Beauties and violets are short of the demand.

Various Notes.

L. N. Anderson, of Rocky River, has been cutting fine stevia.

The Daisy Hill Farm has sent in some of the best chrysanthemums and pompons seen in this market this season. Carnations and roses from this place are of the best quality. Some exceptionally fine Ophelia and Hadley have been grown by Paul Backofen there.

The Friedley Co. had the honor of making the first aviation sprays supplied in this city, which were for the aviators from the Glen Martin Co., who dropped them on the grave of their comrade, Lieutenant Russell, who was buried recently at Lakeview cemetery.

Albert Barber has severed his connection with the Jones-Russell Co. and has taken over the three Park Floral shops, at Cleveland, Akron and Youngstown, O., the Jones-Russell Co. still retaining the Taylor Flower Shop. W. F. B.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—W. R. Reisinger says his son is planning to build a larger greenhouse than the one he is operating, the new house to be used for the growing of carnations exclusively.

DOINGS IN DIXIE

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Flowers are less plentiful as Christmas approaches and, if the present demand keeps up, we shall have no Christmas stock at all. But Christmas prices are prevailing now, as follows: Carnations, from $2 to $2.50 per dozen; roses, from $2 to $8 per dozen; chrysanthemus, $6 to $8 per dozen; orchids, $2 each; Easter lilies, $4 to $5 per dozen; sweet peas, $3 to $5 per hundred. Some beautiful cyclamen plants are being displayed and sell at $1.50 to $10 each.

Weather conditions have been ideal for the last ten days, but there is a 100 per cent demand against a fifty per cent supply, and it looks as if it would continue so for the rest of this season. Coal has never been more plentiful. The dealers are actually begging the trade to buy. The "shop-early" spirit has had its effect on the trade, as a great many people are placing their orders and magnolia and immortelle wreaths are moving rapidly. It is hoped they will be all sold before the cut flower rush.

All firms here have been handicapped considerably for the last few days on account of not being able to secure any stock from out of town, and it is really astonishing to see the variety of plant baskets that are used for funerals. This is the only way the florists have been able to get orders out. Bulbs have sold unusually well this year, but the season is over. The growers are expecting to bring in a bumper crop of Paper Whites in the next three weeks.

Various Notes.

The Howell Nursery Co. reports business extra heavy. This firm has orders booked that it will be impossible to fill until next season. Messrs. Dick and Bruce Howell are doing most of the work themselves, with only a few helpers, which makes it hard to get orders filled and delivered on time.

A. H. Dailey is showing some choice primroses and cyclamens and cutting nice roses.

A. J. McNutt is cutting splendid Ophelia and Russell roses, which find ready sale.

Mrs. S. C. Custer continues busy and says prospects are good for Christmas.

A. A. Newson, of the Marble City Nursery Co., reports business good. This firm has a large stock of Amoor River privet.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., is showing exceptionally fine carnations. Stock of all kinds is looking well, but business is so good that it is impossible to accumulate any stock at all, everything cleaning up each night. The concern has been turning out an unusual amount of funeral work, using a great many made-up plant baskets. Roy and Floyd Baum have been discharged from the army and reported for duty at the greenhouses December 9. They say they are going to make things hum. Robert E. Mapes, who was secretary of the Knoxville Florists' Society before going into the army, is hoping to secure his discharge in the next few days. If he gets back, Baum's will have a full force on for the holidays, of experienced help. K. P. B.

MEMPHIS, TENN.

The days of window decorations with real cut flowers seem to be gone for a while at least. It has been impossible of late to obtain enough flowers to supply the sale demand.

Mr. Englard, of the Idlewild Greenhouses, leaves for Chicago this week to buy Christmas stock for the store. The large range at Columbus, Miss., does not supply the normal demand of this firm and, with the extra holiday trade, it is swamped with orders.

Miss Harris, of the Flower Shop, has been in Chicago for some time buying for the shop and shipping daily. Miss Erby says the only way they can get choice stock is to keep a buyer in Chicago all the time.

The force of the Memphis Floral Co., Inc., is on the "flu" list, including the foreman, E. C. Rolf, as well as his assistant, C. Conklin. O. R. H.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market is short of stock of every sort this week and the wholesale houses clean up daily. The little that was left of the chrysanthemum crop was cleaned up Thanksgiving.

Roses coming to the market are of good quality and bring good prices. Some Russells sold for 18 cents, but 12 to 15 cents is the usual price. There seems to be little complaint in the trade about high prices. The florists must have the stock and are willing to pay for it. Carnations are still scarce and, like roses, are of good quality. Sweet peas are getting more plentiful and are of good quality. Violets are still scarce and few are received, as yet, from out of town. All miscellaneous stock, such as mignonette, is still scarce; in fact, there is no line of stock just now equal to the demand.

From present indications it looks as though this shortage might continue through the holidays. This applies not only to cut stock, but blooming plants of all sorts. The outlook for this sort of stock has never been so unpromising as it is this season. In some places where good blooming plants were always to be had, there is nothing to offer. It seems to me the only salvation for the retail people this Christmas will be in made-up baskets of foliage plants. There are plenty of these to be had. It looks like "Hobson's choice" this year for the public, which will have to take what it can get.

This year, above every other, when it seems more than certain that the flower-buying public will be disappointed in its purchases of flowers for Christmas, it behooves the retailers to bend every energy to provide something attractive, something that will catch the eye, so that they may still satisfy requirements with flowers and not resort to substitutes. It would seem that the florists have a much harder proposition to face this Christmas in getting the sort of stock the public has been accustomed to, which it will be sure to want this season, than they have ever had before. Yet I have never known them to fail in any emergency, and feel sure they will meet this one.

Various Notes.

On a recent trip out to Govanstown I stopped to see Andrew Anderson. His roses, while off crop, are certainly in fine condition and it will not be long until he will be having a fine cut. He has a fine batch of poinsettias, which will be right for Christmas.

Out at Erdman & Ulrich's, the first thing that strikes one is the scarcity of blooming plants. This firm has been hard hit by the labor question. It is a most pathetic sight to see one whole range of ten houses standing idle. This range was cut out on account of the fuel restrictions, but Mr. Erdman assured me he was glad it was closed, for it was impossible to get sufficient labor to run the rest of the range. Someone must be putting in some hard licks, for, aside from the question of blooming plants, I have never seen their stock in better shape. The ferns especially are looking fine, as are the crotons. Mr. Erdman said if the labor question did not improve, they were thinking seriously of turning the entire place into ferns, and using women.

An instance which will illustrate the labor situation was related by Isaac H. Moss recently to a little party of florists. A stranger applied to him for work. Mr. Moss asked him the usual question, if he had had any experience in greenhouse work. His reply was, no, but some years ago he had had some experience in growing vegetables. He was a likely-looking chap, so Mr. Moss told him he would give him $3 per day. He replied he could not think of working for any such wages as that, so Mr. Moss told him he would be obliged to get along without his services. One of the hardest things the growers have to contend with is getting a reliable fireman. In many cases they are obliged to look after the fires themselves.

There are located around Baltimore more war industries than near any other large city in the east and, while these are still running full time, it should not be long before some of them will shut down—the ammunition factories, at any rate. This would release a good amount of labor and help the situation. Tate.

Brady, Tex.—Mrs. E. R. Behrens, on rural route No. 1, has three greenhouses and has steadily increased her business until now it occupies all her energies.

Dayton, O.—Rolf Zetlitz, of Lima, O., has purchased the property of the Miami Floral Co., of R. G. Corwin, receiver for the company. Mr. Zetlitz takes possession immediately and will overhaul and replant the place to roses. The planting will include the new Hill varieties, Premier and Columbia. The range will be known as the Rolf Zetlitz Greenhouses. Mr. Zetlitz now operates establishments at Lima and Ada, O.

CANADIAN CORNER

TORONTO.

The Market.

The demand for flowers never has been heavier than during the last few weeks. Ever since the epidemic caused the rapid rise in the death rate, the demand for funeral flowers has exceeded all previous records and now there is beginning to be, in addition to the calls for flowers for the sick and the dead, a demand for happier occasions. It is apparent that social activities are beginning again, after four years of almost total cessation.

The supply of stock is nowhere near so large as the trade would like it to be. While it usually is possible to supply something or other which will meet the customer's need, prices are higher than florists like to charge and it is not easy to turn out work which satisfies the florist.

The prospect for Christmas is for a large demand and a supply much below normal.

Baskets May Come.

As a war measure the Dominion government prohibited the importation of baskets and florists throughout Canada have been unable to obtain new stock from the United States for more than a year. The result has been that every flower store is cleaned out.

Last week the government removed the import restrictions and the trade is making haste to replenish stock. Many orders have been dispatched to supply houses in the principal cities in the United States and efforts are being made to get the goods in time for the Christmas trade. After the holiday rush there will be the opportunity for the manufacturers in the United States to do a large business with the Canadian florists.

Various Notes.

George M. Geraghty, manager of the Dunlop store, is one of those who had a close call with the "flu." He was critically ill, but men of his wiry build and indomitable disposition never give up and Mr. Geraghty again is attending to business, not quite recovered, but on the road to it. When the embargo on the importation of baskets was removed Mr. Geraghty and J. J. Higgins went to Chicago, where they spent several days last week buying supplies for the Christmas trade. They returned home December 9.

WINNIPEG, MAN.

"The 'flu' started here shortly after I returned from the F. T. D. meeting in Cleveland early in October, and it is still going strong," says A. R. King, of the King Florist. "So I had to throw my coat off and work every night and day since it started, letting everything else slide. And some orders I have received were pretty good ones.

"Prospects for Christmas business are excellent. The only drawback appears to be the probability that there will not be enough stock to supply the demand."

Sheldon, Ia. — O. E. Logan grows plants and flowers at his greenhouse for the local trade.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

It is hard to recall any previous season when the wholesale cut flower market was in the condition it is at present. Since Thanksgiving day only a small supply of seasonable stock has been received, while the demand, both local and out-of-town, has been exceptionally heavy. Prices are high and, as all consignments that were received last week had been ordered in advance of their arrival, there was nothing left over. Many retailers, in fact, had to resort to artificial flowers to make up their orders.

While there are a few mums still coming to the market, the season is about over. A few excellent flowers were received at the end of last week and sold at high prices. Carnations established a new record in price, as $15 per hundred was demanded for good stock, while splits sold for $10 per hundred. The few flowers that arrived were sold at sight at these prices. There are some extra fine carnations coming in now, but the supply is about half that in normal years. While roses are a little more plentiful than carnations, the prices on anything good are away up. Some fine blooms of Russell, Ophelia and Columbia were seen, but the big demand cleaned up the market before noon each day. Sweet peas and violets, too, bring high prices and the supply is not adequate to the demand. Calendulas, stevia, Easter lilies, valley and orchids all cleaned up well during the week. Paper Whites are slow in coming and the few that have arrived brought $5 per hundred. Romans are expected for Christmas. Greens sold well all the week. The demand is excellent for galax, smilax and asparagus. There is a good supply of wild smilax in the market.

Various Notes.

The florists' publicity committee held a meeting at the headquarters December 3 to consider the holiday advertising. Proofs of advertisements were presented by the local newspapers. They will be taken up for final consideration at a special meeting to be held December 10.

The officers of the Florists' Club met at the home of President August H. Hummert December 5 and decided to postpone the club meeting and victory banquet until after the first of the year. The action was taken because of the ban on public meetings.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held a meeting at the Eleven Mile House December 4. There was a fair attendance. Thanksgiving business and the prospects for Christmas were considered. The growers say that unless bright weather continues there will be a great shortage of seasonable stock for the holidays.

Oscar Ruff, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., who has been at a local hospital since November 27 with the influenza, is reported to be much improved and was expected to be able to return home this week.

Gus W. Grossart, Adolph G. Fehr and Henry Emunds, of Belleville, all report heavy orders for funeral work. All made several trips to this market last week to secure stock.

Charles Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., has returned to the store after a short illness with influenza. Walter Young is expected home to help out during the holidays.

Arthur Beyer has resigned his position with Grimm & Gorly and has returned to his former home, Rochester, N. Y. Louis Geiger has taken his place.

Raymond Welty now has charge of the inbound freight at the American Express Co. depot.

Louis Frank, recently with the Grand Leader floral department, has returned to his home in New York city. He expects to return to St. Louis when conditions improve.

All the wholesale houses report an exceptionally large call for artificial flowers last week, due to the scarcity of flowers.

Fred Ude, Jr., of Kirkwood, will not make his usual trip to Florida this winter. His two sons, Paul and Martin, are in the army and Mr. Ude will be forced to remain at home.

Alexander Lurie has been appointed assistant to the director of the production division of the U. S. Food Administration in St. Louis.

The American Seed Co. has completed the installation of new fixtures in the retail department of its store at 814 Broadway. The bins are being filled for the early spring business, and Manager Kerr expects that sales will be large.

L. Baumann, who makes his headquarters at the Bourdet Floral Co. store, says that he has had a busy fall season with landscape work.

Charles Beyer has given up his idea of closing the show house facing Grand avenue and it will be stocked with blooming plants for Christmas.

The plantsmen say there will be no surplus of blooming stock for Christmas, as nearly all the supply is sold. This is especially so with cyclamens and poinsettias, but cherries and peppers are plentiful.

Joseph Manda, South Orange, N. J., has in exchange sent a valuable collection of orchids to the Missouri Botanical Garden.

The Sailors' and Soldiers' Home, at Twelfth and Olive streets, was handsomely decorated with flowers and plants last week by the florists' publicity committee. There were window boxes, single plants and Christmas decorations with the S. A. F. slogan, "Say It with Flowers," to please the eyes of the returning sailors and soldiers. The Bourdet Floral Co. and the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. donated the plants. J. J. B.

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY.

To those who are not fitted with the proper preparatory work for the four-year course in college, or those who have attended college but have always wished for a little more education, the Ohio State University, Columbus, O., offers an eight weeks' course which starts January 6. The course continues through Farmers' week. Farmers' week is a week filled with talks and demonstrations by leaders. Special courses are offered for the sons and daughters of florists in gardening, commercial floriculture, fruit growing, soils and various allied subjects.

The tuition amounts to merely the payment of several small fees for laboratories. It is estimated that the course should not cost a provident student over $60. Write for information to B. G. Watson, secretary of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

OBITUARY

Austin F. Tracy.

Austin F. Tracy, father of B. Hammond Tracy, of Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., died December 4, after an illness of four weeks. Mr. Tracy was born in Michigan, where he lived until about twenty years ago, when he came to Massachusetts to live with his sons. In the west he maintained a large dairy farm, well stocked with Jersey cattle and high-bred horses. His stallion, Modjeska, held a record of 2:10¼. When it was the custom to offer prizes at state fairs for the best kept farm, Mr. Tracy was often the winner.

During his life at Cedar Acres he was greatly interested in the gladiolus, and his perfectly kept vegetable garden was of as much interest to visitors as the gladiolus fields.

Although almost 83 years old, he had always been in the best of health, this being his first illness since boyhood. He leaves two sons.

George R. Kinsman.

A veteran grower of western Michigan passed away November 25 in the person of George R. Kinsman, of Muskegon, Mich. Mr. Kinsman was born in Elmira, N. Y., and removed to Michigan in 1856, settling at White Pigeon. In 1864 he enlisted for military service in the Civil war in the Mississippi Flotilla, at Burr Oak, Mich. He married Miss Anna Converse in 1873 and the same year the couple removed to Laketon township. His specialties were gladiolus bulbs and herbaceous plants. Mr. Kinsman was honored by election to various public offices, being well known throughout the community. He was a member of the Muskegon County Horticultural Society, Muskegon Lodge No. 92 I. O. O. F., Silica Grange of Dalton township and the Amos Steele Post of the G. A. R. He is survived by two sons and one daughter. Funeral services were held November 28 under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and interment was at Laketon cemetery.

John Henry Small.

In the death of John Henry Small, which occurred at his residence in Washington, D. C., December 2, the trade loses one of its most distinguished members, as well as one of its most gifted floral artists. Highest honors for attainments in horticulture and for originality and taste in design have been accorded Mr. Small, whose clientele included presidents and high officials of our own and other countries. Descended from a line of English ancestors, among whom have been nurserymen, florists and landscape gardeners who held high rank in their vocations, several of whom having enjoyed the patronage of royalty, Mr. Small had given his life to his work and was an authority in this line. His father, John H. Small I, founded the firm, which now has stores in New York and Washington.

Lansing, Mich.—Charles G. Smith is the principal stockholder in the G. B. Smith & Alpha Floral Co., and also is treasurer and general manager of the Ideal Power Lawn Mower Co., manufacturing apparatus sold by many florists and seedsmen.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Samuel Matson has news from his son, I. F. Matson, telling of his promotion to the office of sergeant and giving an interesting account of his experiences as wireless operator. John K. Sullivan was confined to his home on Hall avenue last week with a severe cold.

John T. Allan and John Mahan are members of the committee of fifty that has been appointed by the mayor to have charge of plans for the city's memorial to its soldiers and sailors who died in service during the war.

Ernest Sisson has accepted the position of caretaker of the Phelps estate at Portsmouth.

Fred P. Webber has returned from North Dana, Mass., where he spent the Thanksgiving holidays with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Putnam Webber.

Timothy Brennan was married a few days ago to Miss Nellie Reynolds at the sanctuary of St. Joseph's church.

Bowen B. Sweet, for many years superintendent of the city cemetery, until a few years ago when he retired, died at his home on Second street, November 29, after a long illness. He was in his seventy-ninth year.

Word has been received that Private Fraser McLeisch, Company B, Ninth Infantry, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McLeisch, is at a hospital in France recovering from machine gun bullet wounds.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

While flowers have been considerably higher in price during the last week, business has been better and the retailers believe that normal conditions will soon return. The growers, too, are more optimistic. The restrictions as to fuel consumption having been removed, a number who had planned to close their houses now are ready to keep them going. Chrysanthemums have passed their prime and are rapidly deteriorating in both quality and quantity. Carnations are of good quality. Potted heather and a few azaleas are in the market.

Various Notes.

Fred W. Wolfinger is on a hunting trip in northern Maine, making the trip there by automobile. Mrs. Wolfinger accompanied him. They expect to return in about a week.

Miss Jennie Rogers, a sister of S. A. Rogers, of the S. A. Rogers Co., and C. Tracy Pierson, of the same company, were married recently at East Orange. They will reside in that city.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Alfred Goldring, of Cobleskill, N. Y., says: "Place me in the list of optimists who believe we are to experience one of the best seasons in our business. We worked up a good stock and then worked on our customers to see the necessity of buying it."

* * * *

J. G. Barrett, of Troy, N. Y., is positive the love for flowers is on the increase, noting that many patrons place orders for regular supplies of flowers for the table, an excellent idea which can be advocated and will be found to use up odds and ends that are not desired alone.

* * * *

A tour among the craft in Albany, Saratoga and Schenectady counties, New York, found all well pleased with Thanksgiving business. In many instances the returns were far ahead of former seasons. It was the general opinion that the various forms of publicity are bringing the reward hoped for. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," stands out preëminently. It was noted, for example, that the evening paper of Schenectady, the Union-Star, in its issue of November 21, devoted considerable space to a glowing editorial upon the work of the publicity movement of the S. A. F., with a strong endorsement of its practicability. Apparently the item in question was inspired, but at any rate it cannot have other than a beneficial effect upon the flower-loving public. If such or similar means are employed, it must materially aid the florists and seedsmen. Commenting upon this topic, E. V. B. Felthousen, of Schenectady, remarked that, had he double the number of chrysanthemums, he could easily have sold all at good figures. Fred Goldring, of Slingerlands, felt that could the florist be found with the requisite foresight and determination to "carry on," there are fortunes yet to be made in the business.

* * * *

H. G. Eyres, of Albany, speaking from the retailer's point of view, said the best day's work for him was when he reduced overhead expenses and was able to increase sales in inverse proportion, finding withal that it is folly to attempt to run a store and greenhouses in a big city, where supplies can so easily be obtained. Samuel R. Hansen, of Troy, who has the office in the showhouse, has contrary opinions. He does a good business at the smallest amount of expense, does not cut prices and finds favor in the eyes of all competitors. A. D. Carpenter, of Cohoes, will have a fine stock for Christmas in both flowering and foliage plants.

* * * *

With narcissi costing so much at first hand, the matter of profitable returns is the cause of much speculation. In fact, if any handler of French or Dutch bulbs, either seedsman or grower, comes out even this year he has cause for congratulation, is the opinion of A. J. Hilton, of Amsterdam, N. Y., who adds that by keeping up the line of succession, so to speak, next season will bring its reward. Easter will be more problematic than Christmas, when the best assortment of berried and flowering plants will be on sale and doubtless the result will equal Thanksgiving. W. M.

IT DOES not require a prophet to predict a profit for the plantsmen this Christmas.

THE trouble with a considerable number of florists, wholesale as well as retail, is that they are afraid they will do some business.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS never brought the trade so much money as they did this season, nor were they ever so heavily produced. Those who were afraid of a glut were needlessly alarmed.

WITH prices where they are this season the retail store men can revise their percentages; it is not necessary to double one's money, or better, when transactions run larger or numerously.

COUNTRY florists transferring orders to retailers in the larger cities should remember that $5 does not buy as much in the big centers as it does in the small towns, especially these days.

IT will be well to remember that the least desirable coal will be the first to fall in price. Many a mine produces such low-grade fuel that nobody will buy it when anything else is to be had.

THE trade frequently has been warned in The Review that the Federal Horticultural Board has every intention of prohibiting plant imports after next spring. If you want to stock up, get busy.

A RETAILER who pays 2 cents for carnations and sells them at 50 cents a dozen has a margin of 26 cents, but when he pays 10 cents and sells at $2 per dozen, his margin is 80 cents. Why fight high prices? Why not go with the market and put the effort on the selling end?

COULD it be that the office at 1170 Broadway, New York city, from which Secretary Young and his staff are conducting the S. A. F. publicity campaign, had anything to do with President and Mrs. Wilson being showered with flowers when they boarded the ship for Europe?

THERE is a shortage of pot plants of practically every kind, a shortage which, compared to the demand, is the greatest in the history of the trade.

A FEW months ago many florists were trying to get out of the business, but now large numbers of people of many kinds are planning to get into the trade.

ONE thing can be said, there is no shortage of red frieze. One wonders how all this cheap, bulky material got here in view of the embargo on many more important items from Japan.

IT PROBABLY will be spring before there are facilities which will permit the expansion of the trade, but in the next two years The Review expects to see the florists' business grow as never before—and The Review expects to grow with the trade.

IT is becoming apparent that there will be great resistance to the operation of the natural laws which otherwise would result in a fall in commodity prices in general, following the end of the war. Florists need not expect cheaper costs of doing business for some little time.

NUMEROUS propagators, cut flower growers, etc., will welcome the approaching quarantine against the importation of plants, but on the other hand are a still greater number whose business will be disastrously affected at once—it may be possible to rebuild on other lines.

OUR boys in France are sending home large numbers of orders for flowers to be delivered to their relatives and friends for Christmas. In numerous cases florists in the service are taking charge of the matter and are forwarding the orders through former employers. Such a one should not be long without employment when he returns, as he has an eye to business.

AFTER three months there probably will be a steady easing of conditions in the trade as supplies of stock increase, but it is improbable that the old laxity in the matter of credits ever again will come into vogue. Some florists may again be willing to take a chance when they find themselves once more with surplus stock, but the conservatives will stick to the terms of settlement established during the time of scarcity.

NURSERYMEN are confident that all the signs point to the approach of an unprecedented sale of ornamental stock, for hardy material for the improvement of home grounds. There is none so well situated as the local florist to develop, guide and profit by this demand. The florist who supplies flowering plants for summer bedding is the logical man to furnish the hardy stock. He need not grow it; there are numerous nurseries from which he can procure good stock.

IN THE florists' trade there should be no attempt to profit by a falling labor market; quite the contrary, the effort should be to maintain or even increase present wages. In years gone by this trade has paid too little to make it attractive to the better class of workers. Under pressure of necessity, wages have risen until they compare favorably with what the same people can earn in any other employment. To charge fair prices, avoid waste and maintain wages will make it possible eventually to attract more efficient workers than this trade has known since it passed the stage where the owner of the place did most of the work himself.

BOMBARDED WITH FLOWERS.

When the President and Mrs. Wilson reached the dock to take the steamship for Europe December 4, lines of yeowomen "bombarded" them with chrysanthemums and roses. Chicago and New York newspapers told of the bombardment in headlines an inch high, while every newspaper in the country recorded the fact.

When King Albert and his queen entered Brussels, the Belgian capital, after an exile of more than four years, they were "bombarded" with flowers.

When General Pershing and the first of the American Expeditionary Forces reached France, and Paris especially, they were "bombarded" with flowers.

Many such incidents that happened during the war could be cited. Motion pictures of sick, wounded and maimed prisoners being repatriated invariably showed the people showering them with flowers.

Bringing to mind the many times flowers have been advertised as the means of showing intense joy or heartfelt sympathy during the four years of the fighting will readily carry a realization of what the war did to popularize flowers.

All of this publicity will be cashed by the trade during years to come.

A LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

"Enough is as good as a feast," we learned long ago. "Too much is too much," one of our advertisers tells us. The supply will meet only a part of the demand, is stated by many of our correspondents. That is why stock advertised in the Classified columns of The Review goes "like hot cakes." The grower has only to let the trade know what he has to offer and the law of supply and demand will take care of his output, as these growers have found out:

Please stop ad. Too much is too much. Profit all going for return postage.—Frost & Spence, Greenville, O., December 5, 1918.

The ad for amaryllis sold all I had this season. —H. W. Peterson, Poplar Bluffs, Mo., December 2, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The first ten days of December probably will go down in the history of the Chicago market as the most unusual ever seen here. The oldest inhabitant does not remember a time when the buyers of flowers have been so insistent and the prices so high. The condition is all the more remarkable because there are large quantities of flowers coming in and being sold each day. It may be that the supply has not been quite so large as it usually is in the first part of December, but it nevertheless represents an important quantity of flowers; if the demand were not extremely good there would be an abundance of stock.

Chrysanthemums were going out even before the Thanksgiving demand arrived and since that holiday there have been comparatively few of these flowers available, with the result that the demand has centered on roses and carnations. The supply of carnations this year is not so great as in previous seasons, but there nevertheless are many fine flowers. Roses seem fully as abundant as in other years, practically all the growers having continued last year's planting with a view to a Christmas crop, just now beginning to come in. Roses are fine and under any normal demand would suffice.

But the demand this year is so exceptional that there has been a runaway market since Thanksgiving, the buyers bidding against each other and pushing prices up day by day. The value of flowers in this market during the last week has been greater than at any recent Christmas, but the higher prices seem only to stimulate the demand; there is no sign of any recession, although the more thoughtful of the wholesalers fear there may be a reaction which will destroy some part of the recent profits.

In a general way it may be said that there are not flowers enough of any kind. Because of the shortage in the items principally sought, everything else sells clean and shares in the big prices. The principal feature of the market is the unusual price for carnations. All last week values rose steadily, until at the end of the week carnations such as ordinarily would be well sold at 4 cents and 5 cents were bringing 8 to 12 cents. In the early days of this week prices have been even stronger, with wholesalers from other markets standing ready to take any stock the Chicago wholesalers did not require for their regular customers.

Roses, too, have been selling at unprecedented prices. While the long, fancy stock is bringing high figures, the greatest advance is in the short and medium grades; these have been selling higher than at any recent Christmas.

All other flowers have shared in the demand. The market has been bare almost continuously, in spite of receipts that would be considered large in any less active market.

The orders coming to the market indicate that the condition is more or less general from Pittsburgh west; demand exceeds supply practically everywhere within the Chicago shipping radius. The shipping business is heavier than ever has been known at this time of year and thus far there is no sign of its being checked by the high prices; the out-of-town buyers seem willing to pay anything that is asked and they are making it difficult for the city retailers to obtain anything with which to do business.

There seems to be no possibility of anything except a short supply for Christmas. It may be that the demand will prove to be reduced by the higher prices, but the general opinion is that there are stores which can sell all the flowers available at the present rates or even better. There scarcely can be an accumulation of stock in anticipation of the holiday; any grower who held stock back from a market like the present one should be examined for his sanity.

Club Meeting.

One of the features of the highly successful meeting of the Florists' Club December 5 was an extemporaneous address on "Business Systems and Cost Accounting," by Hodgson Jolly, an expert along this line. Mr. Jolly illustrated his talk with large charts specially drafted for the florists' business.

The lecture proved both interesting and instructive, mainly to the growers.

Otto H. Amling again read his paper on the cost of production of roses, which was presented at the November meeting of the club. The paper was published in The Review for November 14 and had been given wide attention and consideration, so that its second reading brought out a general discussion, the most interesting talk coming from L. R. Bohannon, president of the new Chicago Retail Florists' Association. He emphasized the lack of coöperation and organization in the trade, including retailers, commission houses and growers. Philip J. Foley commented on Mr. Amling's heating figures, claiming the costs shown to be too high, and President Lautenschlager requested Mr. Foley to prepare a paper on this subject for the next business meeting of the club.

Arthur A. Craig also read again a paper he had presented at the November meeting. In it he outlined plans to bring about a better understanding between wholesalers and retailers and suggested a way for a committee to settle all grievances between the three branches of the trade, the main object being to do away with "red violet" business among the wholesalers. Mr. Craig's paper was referred to the executive committee for action.

O. J. Friedman, chairman of the garden committee, reported on the success of war gardens by the children of the public schools, brought about by President Lautenschlager and himself. It is Mr. Friedman's desire that the club carry on this work next year.

At the November meeting a Victory banquet was suggested and left in the hands of the sports and pastimes committee, but as no action had been taken by this committee President Lautenschlager appointed T. E. Waters, chairman of the good-of-the-club committee, to handle the affair and appoint his own assistants. It was decided that the banquet will be held on the regular meeting night in January, 1919, which falls on Thursday, January 9. Before the close of the meeting Mr. Waters had arranged to have the banquet at the Bluebird room of the Randolph hotel, the room in which the club now meets. It will be for the members of the club and their friends and also will be a ladies' night. There will be music and dancing.

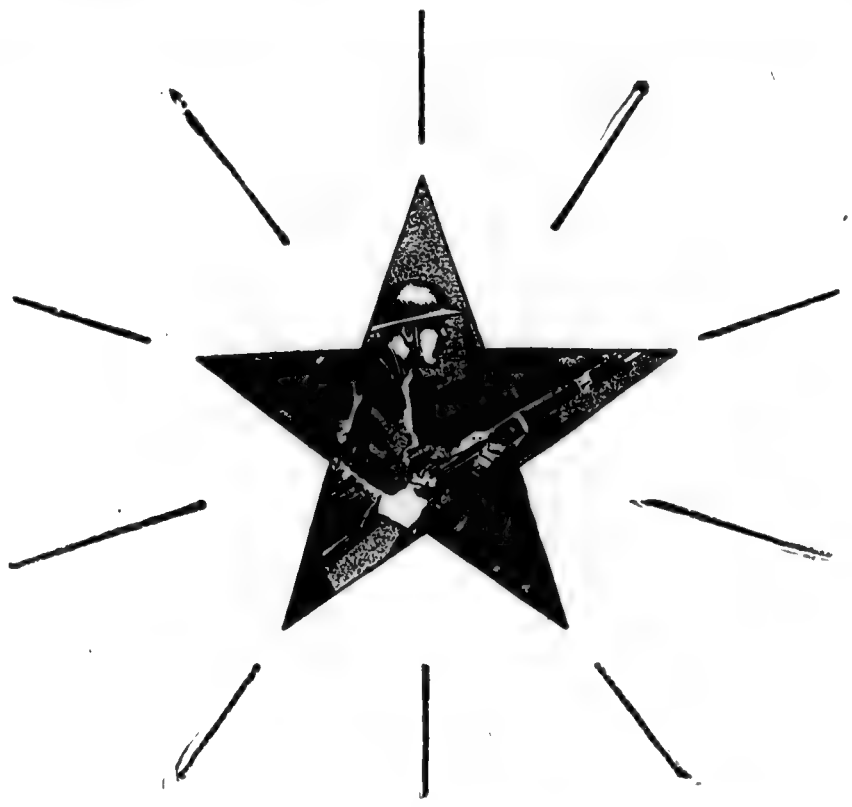
The old saying that "the office should seek the man" holds good in the case of the Florists' Club, as no one seems to want office. George C. Weiland declined to permit his name to stand for the presidency and the following slate for 1919 was elected without opposition, by unanimous ballot cast by the secretary: President, A. J. Zech; vice-president, Walter Amling; secretary, A. T. Pyfer; treasurer, Otto H. Amling; trustee, Fred Lautenschlager, to take the place of H. N. Bruns.

Henry D. Neve, Grant Wiffin and Xavier Wojtkiewicz, all of Des Plaines, Ill., were elected to membership.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., sent in three varieties of chrysanthemums, two of them being their new sorts, Victory and Loyalty. The latter was a yellow incurved mum which was judged in Chicago November 23 and scored 88 points. Victory, a white incurved, was judged on the same date and scored 87 points. The third variety was December Queen. The Chicago Flower Growers' Association displayed a large vase of George Ball's calendula, also three varieties of pompons grown by Mr. Ball. They were Golden Wedding, yellow; Plumes, yellow, and Hilda Canning, bronze.

The attendance at the meeting was large and was exceptionally good in that it was representative of growers, commission men and retailers.



Various Notes.

The burglar trust evidently has been reading about the high prices asked for flowers in the local market and concluded that a lot of cash would be found in some of the wholesale houses. December 4 several places were broken into on the second floor of the Atlas block, including the stores of Wietor Bros., Charles W. McKellar, Archie Spencer and John Kruchten Co. None of these suffered any great loss, only a small amount of cash and postage stamps being taken from each place, with the exception of Archie Spencer, who lost his double-barreled shot gun, a new rain coat and traveling bag.

The newly formed Retail Florists' Association had its first evening meeting at dinner at Hotel La Salle December 8. The plan is to meet weekly for a while. Although there are numerous matters under consideration, the members' attention at present is centered on the short supply and high prices, which necessitate many departures from the old-time methods of running retail stores.

The funeral of Gottfried Amling, father of florists, was largely attended, December 5. The deceased was one of the first settlers in the Maywood district, although his last years were spent in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dreschler, in River Forest. He was 87 and it had been reported in The Review several weeks ago that he was in a critical condition due to the infirmities of old age. Death came December 2. Mrs. Amling predeceased him by several years. Of their children, three sons, Albert F., Ernst C. and William H., are well known florists and one daughter, Mrs. H. Wehrmann, married in the trade. There are eight grandchildren also in the business and several great-grandchildren growing up to it.

eighth birthday anniversary December 7.

A. H. Schneider is one of those who have been able to keep things going on the usual scale in spite of the difficulties of the last year. At Oak Park he has nine houses of pot plants, the Christmas stock all sold, with Easter and spring stock coming on to take its place. Opposite Concordia cemetery he has three houses for the cemetery trade, and then there is the retail store in Oak Park, so he has a business covering all the lines, retail and wholesale.

Looking into the future, foreseeing the return of peace and the resumption of social activities, Paul R. Klingsporn early in the autumn began building up supplies of such items as cattleyas for his house, the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. He says the results have been as anticipated, obtained even more promptly than expected.

M. C. Gunterberg has taken permanent space in the Masonic Temple, where a stock of artificial flowers and prepared foliage will be carried.

It was December 9, 1875, that A. Henderson's arrival gladdened a Scottish household. After six years with seed houses in Europe, five years in Scotland and one year in England, he came to this country, at the age of 22 years. The firm of A. Henderson & Co. was started in 1911.

Everette R. Peacock Co., 4013 Milwaukee avenue, has been remodeled and enlarged. The president, treasurer and secretary now have separate enclosed offices fronting on North Cicero avenue and the office force has new quarters and appointments in the part formerly used for storing seeds, etc. The store has been refitted with new shelving and counters and a store manager's and cashier's office has been placed in front, commanding a view of the entire store. New stock is being placed on the shelves for Christmas and altogether the premises take on the appearance of greatly improved facilities for handling increasing business.

R. E. Kurowski, manager of the John C. Moninger Co., states that since November 20 no day has passed without his concern booking at least one order for materials for greenhouse construction. The orders are not large, but in the aggregate they represent the heaviest booking the company ever has done at this time of year.

Quoting C. J. Michelsen: "For Christmas there will be more flowers than some people think."

The "flu" has invaded the office of Kennicott Bros. Co., keeping two of the force at home.

After serving nearly a year in the navy, stationed at the Municipal pier, B. J. Delinke has been released and is back in civilian clothes. Mr. Delinke owned a store on West Chicago avenue before entering the navy, selling out before he went into the service. He intends opening a new store in the spring.

Peter Schousboe, foreman of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, says he is well pleased with the crops cut so far this season and that he is looking forward to a highly satisfactory Christmas.

and to place orders for them for Christmas shipment. In a general way, these buyers found it possible to get all the accessories they thought they needed, but it was not so easy to buy cut flowers. Many of them buy in this market only in cases of pinch and wholesalers were not found anxious to obligate themselves ahead of ascertaining the requirements of their regular customers; they were willing to take orders subject to their ability to fill them at market prices, but that was not what the buyers wanted.

Toronto, a city not frequently represented among the visiting buyers here, sent George M. Geraghty, of Dunlop's, and J. J. Higgins, a rising young retailer. They were ready to buy anything that seemed useful, but were principally in quest of baskets, which have not been admitted to Canada during the last year.

Miss Kate Harris, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, paid her usual preholiday visit to the market last week. She says business never was better at Memphis.

Paul M. Palez, of Little Rock, Ark., was here for several days.

G. P. Weaklen, of the firm which bears his name at Pittsburgh, Pa., visited this market the end of last week.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., called on all of his friends in the market while here last week.

O. R. Eckhardt, of St. Paul, Minn., spent several days in the market the latter part of last week, making arrangements for Christmas business.

J. E. Terrill, of Lethbridge, Can., came down to look the market over.

H. M. Burt, of Jackson, Mich., ordered his Christmas supply of cut flowers, etc., while here last week.

H. E. Lozier came in from Des Moines, Ia., to do his Christmas shopping last week.

The volume of our business, compared with last year, makes a very satisfactory showing. Business conditions with us, and we feel sure with the trade in general, have been much better than during the same period of last year. If that is an indication of what we may expect for Christmas, we have every reason to look for a big business.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Stock is scarce. Flowers, plants and supplies all show the natural effect of war restrictions in the past. Everywhere it is said that business is not heavy, but that the activity is all due to short supply. I doubt whether this is wholly correct. It is partly true, but a careful survey of the field leads to the belief that business is brisk enough to carry off a much larger supply at good prices.

A careful study of the price list proves that flowers are bringing higher prices than usual for the first week in December. In fact, the prices warrant cutting everything and getting the stock to market at the earliest moment possible. Take, for instance, white carnations. They are bringing today $8 per hundred. Good shipments often average that figure right through. There is no question that it is better for the grower, for the wholesaler and for the healthy condition of the market to take this price rather than hold the flowers in the hope of getting more at the holidays. The healthy condition of the market should be placed first, for nothing hurts business more than stale flowers. The dull condition of the market after New Year's has often been directly traced to the disgust of the public with stale flowers. A market that is kept clean by lively demand at good prices spells profit for a long time, while a market with orders and no stock for the orders and then much stale stock that nobody wants, spells chances lost.

Here is Phil's tip: Send your flowers in as rapidly as possible. Don't let them get too ripe on the plants. Pack as carefully as you know how. Send everything, unless your wholesaler tells you not to do so. It will pay.

Christmas Plants.

It has never happened before in the history of the growing of blooming plants for Christmas that the plant market was virtually bare of blooming stock three weeks before Christmas. The growers have practically everything sold, or else they know who wants it, and they are trying to induce their customers to take foliage plants as the best substitute. The result will be that the houses will be emptied as they never have been emptied before at this season.

Christmas Greens.

The market is poorly supplied with Christmas greens this season. Much of the holly is not well berried, owing, it is said, to the mild fall. It has also been extremely difficult to get it cut and packed, owing to the labor shortage. This also has cut down the number of holly wreaths. The girls who formerly made these wreaths have steady work elsewhere at higher wages. They will not come back to their old work, which was only temporary. Their places are hard to fill, so there are fewer holly wreaths. Boxwood sprays are likely to be a little better, but lycopodium is believed to be short of requirements. There is a fair supply of mistletoe. Labor conditions have affected laurel wreathing. Prices on Christmas greens are higher than last year.

Strafford, After the Gale.

Nobody who saw the well built greenhouses of the Strafford Flower Farm that afternoon in early December would have supposed that they had weathered any sort of a gale. Nobody who listened to the chat and laughter of the group gathered there would have thought so, either. Yet, as at every other plant in the east, Strafford has seen a fierce business gale this season, probably the fiercest ever, and Strafford has weathered it finely. The plant is being run to the full capacity, a little fuller even than usual, to insure greater production, and Strafford is looking well.

The group of men agreed on that. They are all experts and they ought to know. There are five in the group: Alfred M. Campbell, the proprietor, a real, live hustler; Edward A. Stroud, who takes a fatherly pride in the place; Martin Gannon, who distributes the cut;

Charles Niemann, who supplies bulbs, and Joseph Ross, who manages the plant.

The chrysanthemums are over, after a good season. The poinsettias are just coming into their glory. A house of them, two to a plant, presents a beautiful sight, an even sheet of scarlet bracts with foliage to the bench, clean all the way down. There are lilies, lots of them, and irises and lupines and many more, but the glory of Strafford today is its carnation house. There are sixteen long benches, three of Benora, five of Matchless, two of Beacon, three of Mrs. C. W. Ward and three of Enchantress Supreme. All are excellent. Closely planted, full of buds, they present a superb sight. Here is one of Mr. Campbell's axioms to close this pen picture: "The plants should be close enough to allow no soil to show." It is so at Strafford.

Various Notes.

Mark P. Mills has resigned the office of president of the Florists' Club, to which he was elected in October. Vice-president E. A. Harvey succeeds him as president.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons have the decorations for the Charity ball to be held at the Academy of Music December 26. It promises to be a brilliant affair.

M. J. Callahan is well and active again. He reports the winter season as fairly started, with flowers rather scarce.

B. Eschner says that all the Rice men have come in from the road to help fill orders.

William Berger's Sons have a beautiful lily pond window, exquisitely arranged with drooping ferns and just a touch of bright color. Perhaps it should be styled another peace window; the dove was there.

G. A. Koehler has suffered a serious loss in the drying up of the well that furnished water for his greenhouses at Ivy Hill.

The monthly meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held December 9 at the library of Vernon park. Robert F. Welsh was the speaker of the evening. The showing for the year was excellent. There are 123 active members, and a good balance in the treasury after increasing the amount in the sinking fund.

Recent visitors include J. Dan Blackistone, George C. Shaffer, Marche, Fred C. Leapley and William F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Charles F. Feast, of Samuel Feast & Sons, Baltimore, Md.; George H. Seidel, Hazleton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Hildebrand, Harrisburg, Pa.; Louis S. Baker, Allentown, Pa.; Mr. Rowe, of Mann & Brown, and John L. Ratcliffe, Richmond, Va. Phil.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

J. Wilkinson Elliott, president of the Elliott Nursery Co., has received word that his 20-year-old and youngest son, Barton W. Elliott, is a patient in a hospital somewhere in France, having been seriously wounded in action with the Fourth Battalion, Marine Corps, November 1. Shortly before came the tragic news that Lieutenant "Ben" Detchon, a nephew of J. W. and Benjamin L. Elliott, had been killed in action. Rhea F. Elliott has returned from the C. O. T. S., at Camp Lee, where he expected to have been commissioned in another month, had the war not ended; while still another brother, Thomas McKee Elliott, manager of the town office, is expected home from Camp Joseph E. Johnson, Fla., any day. Miss Mary Jane Elliott, a younger sister, is a member of the Parochial School Booth committee selling War Savings Stamps, at the Frick building, during the final 1918 intensive drive.

Mrs. Harvey C. Sheaff, the wife of Mrs. E. A. Williams' genial manager, is chairman of the booth committee for the Joseph Horne Co., having been one of the most enthusiastic W. S. S. promoters since the organization of the work.

Having served the Allied cause by making hand grenades and rifles in the Twenty-fifth street plant of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. since January, 1917, Peter Matsukes has returned to the florists' business and opened a store at 529 Smithfield street, on the ground floor of the handsome Henry W. Oliver building. Not satisfied with what he considered incidental (munition) work, Mr. Matsukes enlisted October 18 in the motor corps and was called to leave for Camp Meade, near Baltimore, November 13. Mr. Matsukes, who was for five years the successful manager of the flower shop of the P. R. R., East Liberty station, is the brother of John Matsukes, formerly a salesman for the Liberty Florists. His assisting staff includes Mrs. Dorothy L. Bier, Miss Marie Marchison and Miss Iola King.

In line with the food conservation movement, in the display window of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. is a splendid exhibition of fruits, vegetables and pickles produced and preserved by Mrs. Ernest C. Ludwig and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. De Forest W. Ludwig, during the summer at their Ludwig station farm near Mars, Pa.

The A. W. Smith Co. has closed a contract for planting the grounds of the new building of the Bell Telephone Co., on the corner of Murray avenue and Pocusset street, Squirrel Hill, and will begin work the coming week. John B. Strayer, manager of the landscape department, has also started planting on the grounds of the recently erected U. S. Bureau of Mines, on Forbes street, near the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Mr. Strayer, who has been suffering from a small carbuncle on the back of his neck, is much improved. He has recently received letters from several of the department's boys now in service. Sergeant Ralph F. Pinner, of the Ambulance Corps, has left the hospital in France where he spent some time as the result of being seriously gassed. A. C. Stowes was commissioned

The stock of practically all the private greenhouses hereabouts is now being replenished as the result of the new order of the Fuel Administration. Fully expecting the fifty per cent edict to be carried out during the winter, the plants were allowed to dwindle away during the summer and early autumn.

Joseph Jones, proprietor of the Pittsburgh Tree, Hardy Flower & Seed Co., 405 Penn avenue, has returned to his place of business after two months' illness. Mr. Jones is showing an exceptionally fine line of small growing Christmas trees. E. E. S.

BOSTON.

The Market.

We have been experiencing wintry weather and flower shipments are decidedly reduced. Arrivals are cleaned up early and prices show a considerable advance over a week ago. Most of the rose specialists are off crop at present and prices as a result have taken a sharp advance. Short-stemmed stock has sold as high as $12 per hundred in the last week. Few red roses are coming in, but the growers hope to have a fair supply for the holidays. American Beauties sell well, but are less plentiful. All hybrid teas are sold out soon after arrival and these conditions are likely to continue for some time. Carnations have stiffened materially in price and a good many are sold as high as $8. Violets were never in such short supply at this season and they sell at $1.50 and $2 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are on the wane and only flowers of medium size are now seen. Bonnaffon is over, but Seidewitz, Rager, the Chadwicks and White Bonnaffon are seen in fair numbers. The supply of pompons and singles is small.

Lilies are more abundant. They sell at $15 to $20 per hundred and callas bring similar prices. Sweet peas come in small lots, but are nearly all short-stemmed. They easily realize $1.50 and $2 per hundred. Stevia is in good supply and a few Paper White narcissi are coming in. Wall flowers are abundant; so are calendulas. Snapdragons are scarce and pansies are in much smaller supply. Cattleyas are getting scarce and realize higher prices. Little valley is seen and gardenias are scarce. Some good bouvardia continues to arrive and it sells well.

Various Notes.

The Massachusetts State Department of Agriculture will hold a series of lectures and discussions in Horticultural hall during the week of February 9. Coöperating are all branches of agriculture and horticulture, including market gardeners, nurserymen, fruit growers and florists. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club is actively coöperating and special lectures of interest to commercial florists will be arranged for. An exhibition of fruits, flowers, plants and vegetables will be held in connection with this meeting, which should prove helpful and interesting.

William Hannan & Sons, of Dorchester avenue, are cutting Lilium longiflorum in quantity, also a fine lot of Golden Chadwick, White Bonnaffon, Seidewitz and other chrysanthemums.

Penn showed some well flowered pancratiums in his window last week. One window was devoted to scarlet geraniums and well fruited oranges.

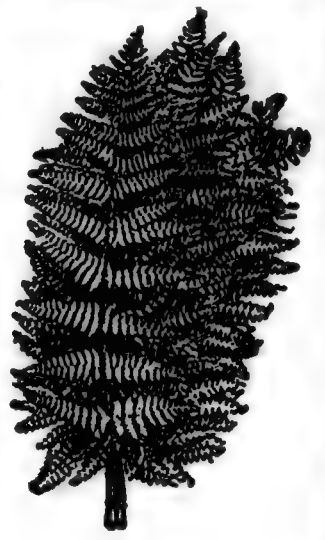
The W. W. Edgar Co. has been fortunate in carrying over a large stock of azaleas, which arrived last year minus foliage and flower-buds. These set buds in great abundance last season, far ahead of any arriving from Belgium, and are eagerly snapped up as they open. Mr. Bartsch says his firm's cash sales in November broke all records of the month.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, Inc., Quidnick, R. I., are large shippers of roses to the wholesale market. Among varieties that do well are Prima Donna, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Milady and Double White Killarney.



The demobilization is gradually relieving in some measure the labor shortage among growers and retailers and there is a feeling of optimism already in all branches of the trade. The better fuel outlook, higher prices of flowers and splendid demand for plants in advance of the holidays are certainly excellent signs.

William Sim's flowers this season are being handled by Dolansky & McDonald. He has a fine pick of high-grade carnations, such as Benora, Matchless, Beacon, Rosette, Ward and Pink Delight, and the largest local pick of single violets.

In one of the large show windows of Wax Bros. a centerpiece of Cattleya labiata and Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ looked attractive December 7. One window is filled with well fruited oranges. Business here continues good, although high prices act as something of a deterrent to buying.

Do not forget the club meeting December 17, for it will be election night, and the practical talks from H. H. Bartsch, on "Growing Plants for Christmas," and Henry Penn, on "Handling Plants at the Store for Christmas," should bring out a large attendance.

John R. Comley, of Bedford, brother of N. F. and H. R. Comley, is a delegate to the Massachusetts State Grangers' Convention in Springfield this week. Mr. Comley is an enthusiastic granger.

Excellent giganteum lilies are coming from John Macrae, of Providence, and Mrs. John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain. Mrs. Fee is continuing her husband's business, bulbs being her specialty.

Henry A. Stevens, of Dedham, has a good-sized batch of a charming deep cerise seedling carnation of good size, and with an excellent stem and calyx. Best of all, it is a free bloomer. All experts who have seen it are favorably impressed with its possibilities.

George W. Foster, of Wamesit, is sending in nice Spencer sweet peas. His specialty continues to be carnations and his leaders this season are Matchless, Champion, Benora, Ward and Pink Delight.

A few years ago it was late winter before wallflowers were in the market, but already there are good-sized shipments coming in from C. B. Johnson, of Woburn, Mass. This gentleman also has excellent Seidewitz and White Bonnaffon mums.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, has wonderful cyclamens this season, most of which are already sold for the holidays. He also has fine stocks of begonias and poinsettias. He is cutting the last of his mums. W. N. C.

John J. Cassidy will be a candidate again for the city council, the signatures required to put him on the ballot certificate being available. Mr. Cassidy has been a member of the sinking fund commission for many years.

WELL WORN PHRASES.

Some common phrases become trite, while others commend themselves as pithy and terse expressions carrying a meaning that can be conveyed so concisely in no other words. Of such is the phrase that is repeated in the letters appended, as well as in numberless others like them that come to the office of The Review in a constant stream. "Sold out," and "all sold," said of stock advertised in the Classified columns by florists east and west, north and south, tell the story of prosperity in few words and in convincing terms. Volumes might be written about the value of publicity and the necessity of selecting the proper medium, but the apposite statements of our advertisers give the facts "in a nutshell" for all who have stock to sell. Like these:

Kindly discontinue our vinca ad. We are sold out of vincas.—L. G. S. Snyder, Dayton, O., November 30, 1918.

Cut out our ads for pansies and cineraries. All sold.—Evenden Bros., Williamsport, Pa., December 2, 1918.

Kindly stop our snapdragon ad at once, as we are all sold out. We sold 13,000 plants from two insertions.—John H. Lundgren, Minneapolis, Minn., November 30, 1918.

Seed Trade News

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

After this winter's food prices the planting of kitchen gardens should be quite general next spring and the consignment box houses are looking for a big season.

Urged on by the government, southern planters grew more than 100,000 acres of castor beans in 1918. Preparations had been made for still further increasing the acreage in 1919, but what now will become of the seed?

It has been demonstrated that America can get along without German seeds and no inclination is apparent to reopen at the earliest possible date the antebellum trade connections east of the Rhine. German seeds will not be in request for some little time.

The business of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., was established in 1832, incorporation taking place in 1886. The officers of the company are: President, Jerome B. Rice, Jr.; vice-president and treasurer, C. E. Smith; secretary, John L. Hunt; auditor, H. S. Hoard.

FERRY SAYS PRICES NOT FIXED.

Answers Federal Trade Commission.

Negotiations are on between attorneys representing D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, Mich., and the attorneys of the Federal Trade Commission, to agree on a statement of facts and submit it to the commission for a decision in the case before the commission in which the Detroit concern is charged with refusing to sell to retailers who cut prices to the public. The alleged refusal is declared to be a violation of the Federal Trade Commission act and the complaint in the case was brought against the company in August, as reported in The Review. If the attorneys can agree on a statement of facts, it will obviate the necessity for a formal hearing. The indications are that an agreement will be reached.

The case is an interesting one, officials of the commission say, as, while the company specifically denies the jurisdiction of the commission in the premises, it nevertheless makes an explanation of the reasons which it believes led to the filing of the complaint. The company denies specifically that it requires its customers to sell at stipulated prices, or to maintain prices, and refuses to sell to those who will not agree to do so.

Ferry's Statement of Policy.

In its answer to the complaint filed with the commission, the company describes its method of sale as follows:

"At the beginning of each season, respondent's travelers call upon the several retail merchants and take orders signed by them for the seeds desired. All of the orders are in the following form:

D. M. Ferry & Co.,
Detroit, Mich.

Please forward in due season a No. — box of standard garden, flower, and field seeds to sell on commission for the year 191— on the following terms, viz.: 40 per cent on the papers sold and 25 per cent on the packages sold from the invoice price, the unsold seeds with the boxes to be returned in good order when called for and amount due for all seeds not returned to be paid at the same time.

ent that the seed shipped shall be sold at this price or any other price. Respondent has no control over the prices which the retail merchants obtain for the seed, and the latter are at liberty to accept any price which they please, or to use the seed themselves, or to give it away. The retail merchants make their price at which they sell the seeds and deal with such customers as they please. They render no account to respondent of any sales made by them.

"At the close of each season, respondent's travelers again call upon the retail merchants and adjust their several accounts with respondent, taking back the unsold seeds and causing them to be shipped to respondent at Detroit, allowing credit for the unsold at invoice price and collecting cash for the balance at invoice price less the commission provided for in the original contract."

Sales Manager Had Different Idea.

Then the answer continues:

"Respondent states that its officers and directors know of no instance in which any person in its employ has asked any of its 175,000 customers to maintain prices and believe that there are no such instances except the following case: On or about December 24, 1917, one of respondent's sales managers wrote a letter to Thomas Roulston, of Brooklyn."

This letter acknowledged receipt of an order of September 12, and stated that an order was entered for forty stores and it was expected to ship the goods early and to get them through in due season, and the letter then continued:

> One of our travelers reported that some of your stores were selling our goods last season at less than the market prices. We trust that this report was incorrect, as, owing to the high cost of producing our standard goods, they are worth all and in many instances really more than we ask for them.
> If any of your store managers sold the goods last season at less than prices established by us, we would be pleased to receive your assurance that our prices will be maintained this coming season.
> The goods are sold on a commission basis and if our prices are cut we are simply competing with ourselves.
> Kindly let us hear from you on the subject and oblige.

Shortly after this the sales manager directed a traveler to call on Roulston with reference to the question of maintaining prices. The answer sets forth that the traveler got in touch with Roulston on the telephone and Roulston told him that there were other brands of seeds just as good and declined to see the traveler, and it continues:

"A report was made to the sales manager and the latter concluded that Roulston would be an undesirable customer because of his attitude towards respondent's traveler and his utter indifference toward respondent's seed as distinguished from many of the competition brands.

"Therefore and irrespective of any other matters which had ever arisen between them, said sales manager did not permit shipment of the seeds ordered by Roulston, although he had previously advised that his order had been entered.

Contrary to Policy of House.

"The whole Roulston incident took place without the knowledge of respondent's officers or directors until called to their attention by a representative of the Federal Trade Commission.

"Had they known, the letter would not have been sent out and neither would the traveler have been permitted to interfere with Roulston in regard to the maintenance of prices.

"Both sales manager and said traveler have been expressly instructed not to request respondent's customers to

The answer concludes with the statement: "None of its customers are engaged in interstate commerce and each of its customers is engaged solely in commerce wholly within his own particular state and in competition only with persons likewise doing business wholly within such particular state, and respondent therefore denies the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission in the matter."

The answer is signed by Kirby B. White, secretary of D. M. Ferry & Co., and the attorneys representing the company are Stevenson, Carpenter, Bitzel and Bockus, of Detroit.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.—Gladiolus catalogue for 1919, offering Kunderd varieties only; freely and finely illustrated; forty-eight pages and cover. Probably the most interesting feature of the book is the announcement of "a new race of giant fall-flowering gladioli, which come into bloom about a month later than other late-flowering kinds planted at the same time." Speaking of his progress in the work of hybridization, Mr. Kunderd says, "The wavy or ruffled petals were the first object sought, but many wonderful varieties with the plain petals have been produced from this strain." Hence, of the seven varieties listed in the new late-blooming strain, five have plain petals.

Roustan Servan & Co., St. Remy-de-Provence, France.—Wholesale catalogue of seeds of flowers, vegetables, grasses, forage crops, textiles, etc.; eight large, closely printed pages.

Hurst & Son, London, England.—"Special Offer of Flower Seeds," a wholesale catalogue, containing thirty large pages, accurately and compactly printed. A system of signs or characters indicates the class—annual, biennial, etc.—to which each species or variety belongs. Another character is used to mark "interesting items recently added to the list." Ornamental grasses also are included. The last page offers "English collections of finest selected seeds, packed in suitably designed pockets."

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Don't "Let the Other Fellow Do It."

A little over two weeks remain in which to complete the drive for $50,000, the amount required by our publicity committees to finance the liabilities they have assumed in the carrying out of the publicity campaign for 1918. As will be noticed by the financial report appended hereto, we are short about $4,665.

Can we make good? Can we raise this small sum among the large number of florists who have not yet subscribed to the fund? It should not be difficult if the disposition to "let the other fellow do it" were eliminated. The "other fellow" has been doing it all along, in many cases duplicating his subscription or materially increasing it.

The "other fellow" has had an eye to the results forthcoming from the campaign, a wide-open eye. He realized that we would have to pass through a critical time in the florists' business, a time when the ordinary demand for flowers would of necessity be greatly reduced. He further realized that something should be done to create a new demand which would fill in the gap, and he believed that this was possible through our campaign. He made the campaign possible through his subscriptions, and he has now the satisfaction of knowing that his views were correct, for he has enjoyed the benefits accruing from the greater demand which

What the Campaign Has Done.

Surely, there can be no adverse criticism of our methods. We have pounded into the public mind the great usefulness of flowers in the conveyance of sentiments on birthdays; memorial days, such as Mothers' day; festivals, such as St. Valentine's day; Easter, Decoration day, Thanksgiving and Christmas. We have induced the public to look on flowers even as desirable wedding gifts. We have succeeded in getting our slogan, "Say It With Flowers" firmly established, and it is up to us to see that it remains so. Look at the front cover of the December issue of the Gar-

George Asmus, of Chicago, was in attendance throughout the congress. The committee was admitted to the congress under credentials which relegated it to voting power in group No. 32, and, in accordance with the program, took part in the discussion of the different phases of the problems of reconstruction, as they affected the florists' trade.

The Resolution.

The committee for its section presented the following resolution, which was carried:

The committee representing the Society of American Florists and the allied trades, an organization working under a charter granted by Congress and signed by the late President McKinley, does hereby submit the following:

Resolved, That we recommend the continuance of the War Industries Board for a limited period. We further recommend the creation of a central committee composed of representatives of the major business interests of the country to take up the work of the War Industries Board during the period of readjustment; also that official recognition shall be given the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as this body would be of valuable assistance in economic liquidation of left-over war properties; further, the florists' been in a much changed condition this week compared with that of a week ago. Stock of all kinds is remarkably scarce and prices are soaring high. The after-Thanksgiving effects leave the market bare and the stock is as scarce as it was during the first month of the epidemic. Fortunately, however, the demand is not so large as at that time, but it is difficult to fill all orders with the small quantity of stock arriving. Only a small supply of chrysanthemums reach us each day and they sell rapidly.

The bumper demand for Thanksgiving cleared everything in sight at that time, and has left but few late ones on hand. Those that remain are chiefly Bonnaffon. Pompons are also well cleared up and those that remain are selling at high figures. There has been also a decided shortage of violets this week, and the growers predict a great shortage for the coming holidays. Cut flowers of all kinds, the growers say, will be extremely scarce. This seems too bad when prospects are brighter and the demand undoubtedly heavier than we have had in several years. The supply of roses keeps up well, and, by careful planning, can be made to go around. The stock is good and includes all grades of September Morn, Ophelia, Prima Donna, Columbia, Ward, Sunburst, Shawyer, Killarney and White Killarney, Scott Key and Russell. American Beauties are in good shape, but the demand is light. Carnations are in good demand notwithstanding the high retail prices. Stock is scarce and is bringing from $8 to $10 per hundred. This is exceptionally high for this time of the month. Easter lilies are in fair supply and sell rapidly. The supply of callas is not large. A few good snapdragons are seen and move quickly. Orchids are not in large demand. Fine stevia from the local growers arrives daily and sells well. This is especially useful, because there are scarcely any small flowers on the market. A few sweet peas are seen occasionally. Greens are plentiful and the demand for galax and leucothoe holds up well.

Various Notes.

The death of Private Harry E. Guerinot, formerly with George T. Boucher, is recorded in the war notes.

Miss Benson, of the H. E. Wilson store, has been away from business for a few days on account of illness.

Visitors to the trade during the week included James Bannister, of Bannister Bros., Syracuse, N. Y., and R. E. Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Harry Merritt, of St. Paul boulevard, Irondequoit, N. Y., has a wonderful crop of carnations, dispite the heavy shortage noted with most growers. They are large blooms, with long stems. He

CUT out our geranium ad. All sold out after first insertion.—Hammerschmidt & Clark, Medina, O.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Pacific Beach, Cal.—Herbert G. Hardy grows flowers, plants and vegetables for the wholesale and retail trade in this vicinity.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Prices have eased up a little on carnations, owing to a rise in the temperature and brighter weather, but they still are higher than usual at this season. Funeral work in abundance keeps all varieties cleaned up except red, which are the most plentiful. White, pink and rose-pink are most in demand and clean up daily. Roses are coming in more freely and growers predict a good cut for Christmas, especially if the present mild weather continues. Heather is a better color now and its long distance shipping qualities make it popular. Poinsettias are coming in freely and the quality is of the best. Large chrysanthemums are over, but there are still pompons on the market. There is a fair supply of orchids coming in and a few Cecile Brunner roses. Violets are arriving in better condition, but their quality is not yet up to standard. The greens situation is improving and orders for holiday decorations are numerous. The general disposition, however, seems to be to hold back on this line and apparently there will not be so much money spent as usual.

In pot plants for the holidays there is a nice showing of poinsettias, cyclamens, ericas, palms, ferns and begonias. Some large ericas from the north are especially good in color and well flowered.

Various Notes.

P. Wolfskill, of the Orchid Flower Shop, Pasadena, was taken ill in the morning of Thanksgiving day. He had been driving around the day before picking up stock.

John Gordon is back on the job again after his siege of influenza. It takes a good deal to put him out of business, but the "flu" proved too much for him temporarily.

F. Lichtenberg is planning another change in his store and is decorating with fine kentias and hanging baskets. This may not sound original, but the method of treatment is unique and when the scheme is complete there can be no question of its success.

W. Grover, formerly manager of the cut flower department of Howard & Smith, died precisely six months to a day after giving up work at the store. He had been out of health a long time before, however. Fred Dostal, the present manager, says that the Los Angeles rose has been a great success throughout the season. At the beginning of December this concern was sending out boxes of this rose cut from outside that compared favorably with almost any of the indoor roses on the market.

W. Armacost & Co. have a fine cut of Beauties on now and all the other varieties of roses are fine. They expect an extra large cut of Columbia from now on for Christmas.

Dan MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, is in town this week. He is bosting a new variety of Erica melanthera.

Mrs. H. G. Helmar, of Santa Barbara, is among our visitors this week, looking up stock for the coming holidays.

Polder Bros., of Montebello, report an increasing demand yearly for their rooted carnation cuttings, repeat orders from well satisfied customers showing that the stock sent out is right in every particular.

There is no reduction in funeral work at the Redondo Floral Co. and this is always a busy place. As a mark of appreciation of good service rendered, each of the employees of the company was presented with a 15-pound turkey for Thanksgiving. A. F. Borden was accused of running down a lot of chickens and turkeys with that new auto of his, but he denies that soft impeachment.

The first meeting of the Florists' Club since the influenza ban has been removed will be held at Christopher's December 10.

Thomas Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, is the latest to date to go on the sick list. All hope to see him back soon.

Jack D'Ortignac, who is looking after the wholesale decoration end at the L. A. Floral Co., successfully moved a grand specimen of Cedrus Deodara, some forty feet high, to one of the principal clothing stores in the city. To move this tree some eight or nine miles and set it up in the store in one night is no light task, but Jack was on the job all right and apparently not a twig was broken nor any other damage done. The shipping business at this house has passed all records for this part of the season.

At the Liberty fair several of the nurserymen and seedsmen made displays. The Morris & Snow Seed Co., Inc., the Germain Seed & Plant Co. and Aggeler & Musser Seed Co. all had exhibits of their specialties and fine banks of nursery stock came from the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Inc., and the West Adams Nursery. F. R. Hills made a unique display of large ferns of the various nephrolepis types, including his varieties Elysian and Hibernica.

Tony Tassano says that the business of Tassano Bros. has made it necessary to open another store in the southern part of the city. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are tenacious this year. Though they have had a long and profitable season, they seem reluctant to give way. The supply is diminishing rapidly, however, and another week will probably see the market without mums. The offerings are fairly good in quality, considering the lateness in the season, but they show the effects of the cold weather and no longer cut any figure in shipping orders. Pompons are in about the same position—rapidly going off crop—but the local demand is sufficiently strong to clean up the supplies at firm prices, prices which could only be obtained a fortnight ago for the best stock. The market generally is strong, there being barely enough flowers to fill requirements. Roses are about the most plentiful item, but there is no surplus by any means, the shortage of other flowers making the demand exceptionally large. The quality was never better for this season of the year. American Beauties leave nothing to be desired, and Russell and Ophelia maintain a high average. In reds, Hoosier Beauty and Hadley supply the demand nicely. Violets have been scarce since Thanksgiving and little improvement is expected until there is more rain. The scarcity is reflected in the small bunches offered by the growers at the old prices. Carnations are another scarce item. There is every indication that cut flowers generally will be scarce at Christmas, which is causing the retailers some concern, it being quite possible that prices will reach a higher figure than ever before, unless conditions change much in the next fortnight. The outlook for plenty of fine flowering plants is good, however, which has a tendency to relieve the situation a little. There is a nice cut of gardenias, and about enough orchids for the demand. Cut cyclamen is a good seller.

Various Notes.

By the will of Mrs. J. B. Boland, the florists' business at 60 Kearny street, which she had conducted under the name of her husband after his death, was bequeathed to her sisters. It will be continued under the same firm name under the personal direction of Mrs. Roberts, one of the new owners. John R. Sievers has been engaged as buyer and manager of the store. He is the son of an old-time San Francisco florist, who was at one time in partnership with Mr. Boland, under the style of Sievers & Boland. Young Mr. Sievers has had much experience in the florists' business, having learned it under his father from boyhood.

Charles Shellgrain, formerly manager of J. B. Boland's, is no longer connected with that establishment. It is understood he plans to engage in business for himself.

Norman Tollard is back in San Francisco, after spending about ten months visiting in other sections of the country. While away he spent some little time in Chicago and New York and, returning here, he expresses the opinion that San Francisco has all the eastern cities beat when it comes to flower stores. He comments particularly on the larger displays made here than in the east, which is possible on account of the milder climate, lower rents and various other factors. Mr. Tollard has joined the staff of the Art Floral Co., in Powell street. Having had fifteen years' experience in the florists' business, he is welcomed as a valuable acquisition to that establishment.

Mr. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, says flowers were never better here at this time of the year, nor business more prosperous. Thanksgiving sales showed a nice increase over any previous year, and if that holiday's sales can be taken as a criterion, Mr. Podesta says Christmas business will break all records.

Domoto Bros. have a fine cut of roses, mostly Ophelia.

Unless there is rain, Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., fears there will be a scarcity of violets for the holiday season. He reports large shipping orders on file.

Since chrysanthemums have gone off crop, the shipments of the United Flower & Supply Co. are largely confined to violets.

According to Manager J. A. Axell, never before did the E. W. McLellan Co. have such a fine cut of roses at this time of the year, including Russell, Ophelia, American Beauty, Hoosier Beauty and Hadley, and never before was the demand so active early in December as this year.

C. Kooyman is saddened by news of the death of his brother-in-law in Canada, coming only about a week after his brother died with the influenza. As far as business is concerned, Mr. Kooyman says there is little room for complaint. Thanksgiving sales were well up to expectations and indications point to a fine Christmas and New Year's business.

The general run of business has been far above expectations. The florists, in fact, have been so rushed with orders that they had no time to talk. There is talk of putting the "flu" ban on again and, if this should become necessary, it will be so stringent this time that it probably will interfere with business.

Sweet peas are coming into market, but their quality is not up to standard.

Various Notes.

S. G. Lubliner reports business for Thanksgiving the largest on record. This firm has lived up to its reputation of the last eleven years by displaying some of the finest pot plants and cut flowers shown in this section for the holiday. Miss Cassidy is attracting a good deal of new custom by her artistic colonial corsages.

The Holden Floral Co. is cutting some fine roses from its greenhouses at Gresham, which were built recently for the cultivation of roses especially.

William Henning, of Milwaukee, has put his large stock of ferns on the market, which are famous in this section. He grows ferns and greens exclusively.

Martin & Forbes Co. is showing some wonderful orchids this week. Roses here also seem to be in their prime just now. A large vase of Laddie carnations certainly surpasses other varieties.

Mrs. M. Garside, wife of Wallace Garside, of Clarke Bros., died December 2 at her home on East Thirty-second street, after an illness of several months' duration. She is survived by her husband and two small daughters, her father, James Kiernan, and a brother, W. E. Kiernan. The sympathy of the trade is extended Mr. Garside in his bereavement.

LESSONS OF THE WAR.

[Extracts from the paper, "The Florists' Business in War Time," by J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, read at the meeting of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, December 3.]

The florists' business in war times, whether active or dull, would be no guide for future planning or preparation of what to do in times of peace, unless the strain is felt through loss, or buoyancy enhanced through victory. Wars are not frequent, and are not always under the same commercial relationship.

We have had a number of problems confront us during the war we hope has closed, and from the effects of which we are still seriously under pressure, as we have been told that our vocation was not at all in the line of importance. Imagine an industry which has assumed the proportion of the florists' business in this land of ours; the area covered with glass, that of growing in open ground, the constant need of glass, heating appliances, fuel, etc. The approximate estimate in 1910, when the greatest increase of importance was recorded, showed that the acreage had increased from 9,307 to 18,248 in ten years, the total valuation being $35,000,000, an increase of eighty-six per cent.

The bulk of this increase centered around the large cities of the east; the states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania alone made up $12,000,000 of the aggregate. The most rapid increase has been in the Pacific section, which in later years has shown marvelous activity in floriculture. We see from these figures that the florists' business assumes a place of importance in the financial world, and in property ownership. All of this means the development of an industry because the people demand it, essential or nonessential, and not because it has been developed by the florists themselves and their advertising skill; they are poor at that. It was not until the facilities warranted our production that we resorted to "Say It with Flowers."

What We Have Faced.

But this was all interrupted by government restriction during the last eighteen months. The working force was withdrawn for the army, the coal supply was limited, there were almost prohibitive prices of glass, iron, lumber, and even flower pots. Then a pallor of fear spread over the country to almost the straining point, even to a proposed closing down by many who feared the worst. With this menace prevalent throughout the country, there was an unprecedented demand for flowers, almost altogether on account of the prevailing epidemic which came upon us with appalling results. For such needs, flowers will and must be used. Many were glad even for this excuse to go into the flower shop uncriticized; otherwise it would be considered luxury, as against the needs of the Red Cross and other benevolences to alleviate the sufferings of war. The strain occasioned by the war has had an eighteen months' duration, but strenuous during that period.

We venture a prophecy: Economy will redound to great gain when the usual activity begins. We have learned to take into account many items and methods of operation never tried before, which is one of the greatest assets. Knowing the value of material, we will construct only to the extent that high labor costs and our own working ability will permit, and will be better able to cope with the periods of business slumps which come without war. These are called financial crises; indeed, some wiseacres have already prophesied that one is near, and they may be thoughtlessly correct. In this, the whole community suffers and the florists feel it first.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds is so short that it is utterly impossible to fill all orders that come into the market; or, for that matter, any substantial part of them. Prices are the highest that this market has ever known. The demand from out of town is especially heavy.

Roses are scarce and are selling at a fixed price per foot of stem. Carnations are bringing prices higher than the usual run of Christmas prices for this flower. The few Easter lilies and callas that come into the market clean up readily. Poinsettias have made their appearance and meet with a good demand. Some excellent snapdragon is coming. Stevia continues to sell well. The few chrysanthemums available clean up quickly each day at good prices. Other offerings include lily of the valley, orchids, sweet peas, single and double violets, calendulas, wallflowers, forget-me-nots and baby primroses.

Decorative greens are meeting with a good market. The call for boxwood, which is scarce, and galax is particularly strong. Magnolia leaves are selling well.

FRAT-M

FRATERNAL ✻ EMBLEMS

What are they?
They are 4-inch reproductions of Fraternal Emblems embossed in gold and the colors demanded by each Fraternal Order

How are they used?
They are attached to the ribbon or chiffon of any floral offering.

Why are they of such help to the Florist?
They save flowers, as the colors demanded by each Order are embossed on the Frat-M. They save wire designs; for instance, any plain spray with a Frat-M attached becomes a fraternal piece. Think of what this means, with a shortage of wire and flowers as scarce and high as theyare everywhere this winter. They save lettering. Think of that. If attached to door badges alone, they are worth many times their cost.

What do they cost?
They cost 20c each, or $2.00 a dozen cash, and should retail for 50c each, or $6.00 per dozen. An order of two dozen ($4.00 cash) gets the exclusive use of Frat-M's for one year in cities of 25,000 or less. They can be bought from your wholesale supply house, or the

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

E. A. BUNYARD, who is widely known among British nurserymen, asserts that he has demonstrated by comparative tests that the blackberry known in America as Himalaya is identical with the German variety called Theodore Reimers.

THE action of the Federal Horticultural Board in prohibiting plant imports will affect many business interests and it is within the possibilities that the pressure may become so strong that the board will have either to reverse its course or fight for its own life.

THE nurserymen as a body look upon the labor situation as the principal difficulty to be overcome before the spring rush, and in localities where the cessation of munitions-making has relieved large bodies of men this problem already is less acute, although wages still are high.

FOREST TREE SEEDLINGS.

The demand for forest tree seedlings and native shrubs has been excellent this fall, even better than last season, while many spring orders for ornamentals already have been booked, reports the Forest Nursery Co., McMinnville, Tenn.

"The supply of forest tree seedlings is limited in this section and the demand is good, far better than last season," says Boyd Bros., proprietors of the company. "Some items, such as mulberry, locust, ash and poplar, are about cleaned up at present. Native shrubs are moving freely and there is no large stock in the south that we know about. Sales with us are better than last season and we are booking some good orders for delivery next spring. We anticipate a good spring business and clean-up.

"We have been handicapped to some extent on account of the labor shortage, but, as the boys will be back from France by spring, all soon will be moving nicely. We have no kicks coming."

THE FRUIT TREE SITUATION.

That during the next two years there will be the greatest shortage of fruit trees and small fruit stock in the history of the nursery business is the belief of T. J. Dinsmore, president of the Farmers Nursery Co., Troy, O. Discussing the situation in regard to fruit stock, Mr. Dinsmore said:

"We do not know where the supply of fruit stock is to come from for the next few years. Trees and small fruits will bring the highest prices ever known. There are some varieties that cannot now be secured. Peach, apple and plum trees are especially scarce at present, while the demand is better than it has been for some time.

"Small fruits are not plentiful and if the present inquiries develop into

DEMAND FOR ORNAMENTALS.

"Business so far this fall is about double what it was a year ago, and all lines have been moving freely," says John C. Fraser, Jr., secretary of the Fraser Nursery Co., Huntsville, Ala. "Early in the season fruit trees moved best, but later ornamentals picked up until now the orders for these are coming in about as freely as those for fruit trees. We anticipate a great deal more business than we have had for the last one or two years."

COAST NURSERY NOTES.

E. B. Jackson, well known California nurseryman, died at his home near Yuba City recently.

The Placer Nurseries, at Newcastle, Cal., owned by the Silva & Bergtholdt Co., are digging 500,000 trees, this year's output.

The Loma Rica Nurseries, of Grass Valley, Cal., report booking an order for 1,000 pear trees to be delivered in 1921. The trees are to be of the ussuriensis stock, the seedlings of which are now growing at a nursery in Kansas.

According to information given out by M. B. Pratt, chief deputy forester, in a letter to the State Council of Defense, a bill will be introduced at the next California legislature to provide for a state nursery, for the purpose of growing stock for planting along the highways and public roads and the beautifying of public parks and playgrounds. The measure will carry the provision for the purchase or lease of a tract of land suitable for nursery purposes, as well as the construction of buildings and the employment of nurserymen. It is estimated that $48,000 will be required to establish the proposed nursery and operate it for two years. M. M.

Plants for the Holidays

Prepare now for Christmas. There is going to be a big demand for plants this year. The war is over and there is joy in every home; your customers will want fine plants to decorate their festive boards and to make presents. There has been a scarcity of help the past year and many growers had to close some of their houses; a great many places closed up for good which, no doubt, will make good stock scarce. We have a very fine stock of plants and will give you good value for your money. We recommend the placing and shipping of orders early, as there is no telling what the weather or railroad conditions will be later on.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Stock has been short throughout the week. Columbia, Ophelia, Sunburst and the Killarney roses have been in excellent condition. Red roses have been scarce. Ward roses are not plentiful, but the few coming in are of good coloring and condition. Easter lilies are now coming in and bring good prices. Orchids and valley are in the market and both are of unusual quality. Some good blooming plants are making their appearance on the local market. Cyclamens are in the lead, with begonias a good second. Primroses are also in fairly good condition.

Various Notes.

Miss Emma Baumer, with August R. Baumer, is back at work after an illness.

The family of Louis Kirch, who have been ill for several weeks, are all improving, except Mrs. Kirch. Mr. Kirch has been extremely busy trying to furnish greens to the florists throughout the city with a limited supply, but brighter days are in prospect, as he is now able to get enough stock to meet demands, Should you want to see some pretty begonias, you should take a walk through the greenhouses of Adam Heitz. Mrs. Heitz is able to be out now, as well as little Miss Dot Heitz, who was hit by an automobile while going to school January 30, 1918.

John Ruysenaars, in charge of the landscape department of the Jacob Schulz Co., has been rushed with work this fall. Mr. Brownewell, in charge of the cut flower department, has been working day and night to keep up with the rush of funeral orders. This concern hopes some day to have its full force working. For the last week or two sickness has crippled it.

All the florists have been extremely busy with funeral work the last ten days and they also find corsage work and cut flower orders beyond expectations.

The day after Thanksgiving found all florists short of stock and unable to secure more in the local market. This year Thanksgiving was the best on record, everyone selling out. Stock was unusually good. L. K.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

The demand continues heavy, while flowers are scarce. Pneumonia, resulting from influenza, has caused the death of many people and the call for funeral work has been large. The weather has been unseasonably warm, but favorable to the production of flowers. Roses and carnations are in fair supply and of excellent quality. They bring Christmas prices, both at wholesale and retail. Other flowers, such as sweet peas, calendulas, lily of the valley, pompons and calla lilies, are short of the demand. The outlook for cut roses and carnations for Christmas is good. Ferns, poinsettias, begonias, primulas and berried plants are much in evidence.

Various Notes.

The Evansville Nurseries force is busy planting out shrubs, trying to get in as much as possible before cold weather. So far the temperature has been favorable for this work.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting some fine roses and carnations. All of his cuts have been contracted for by Emil Niednagel. Since returning from the officers' training camp, Emil has been busy with funeral work. He says he is getting Christmas prices for stock and the people pay them without complaint. Late stevia helps out wonderfully in funeral work, and calendulas and bouvardia are in good supply.

The William Blackman Floral Co. has a large supply of potted plants of all kinds, poinsettias, cyclamens and begonias being extra good. The cut of roses now is short of requirements and will be for the holidays. Carnations are in better supply here.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann is unable to get flowers enough to supply her customers, even from the Chicago and St. Louis markets. Theodore Elspermann is expected home from France by Christmas.

Karl Zeidler has gone with a party on a hunting trip in Mississippi. The boys are attending to the business and report they have had to turn away customers because of the scarcity of stock.

The Lockyear Floral Co. has a nice lot of plants and reports a big demand. Geraniums here are exceptionally good.

Royston & Fenton report that business during the first week in December equaled that of the whole month of December a year ago. E. L. F.

St. Johns, Mich.—Frank C. G. Jennee, on R. F. D. No. 4, plans to go into the florists' business.

ALL FUEL RESTRICTIONS OFF.

Florists Not Limited.

The United States Fuel Administration has canceled its order restricting the use of coal and other fuel by florists and, from the date of the cancellation, December 2, florists are permitted to purchase as much coal as they desire. While the order was signed November 30, there seems to have been some delay in formally promulgating it.

The order sets forth that "pursuant to the announced policy of the United States Fuel Administration, of its intention to remove restrictions on the consumption of fuel as speedily as conditions may warrant, Fuel Administrator Garfield has signed orders lifting absolutely all restrictions, laid under previous curtailment orders, upon florists, window glass, clay products and cement manufacturers.

Fuel Abundant Now.

"Under the original orders florists were compelled to reduce their use of fuel to fifty per cent, beginning April 1, last, although subsequently modifications allowed them to use wood in excess of that amount under conditions approved by the Fuel Administration."

There were other local and temporary modifications of the original order which permitted the use of such grades of fuel as were in surplus.

The reports which reach the Fuel Administration show that there is an ample supply of coal on hand at the mines, and if there is a shortage anywhere it is due to transportation conditions.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Indianapolis has received an awakening! This always has been a low-priced market and even though prices in every commodity and luxury have been soaring higher and higher, flower prices have remained practically the same. It took a famine in flowers to bring about results. With but few flowers to sell, the tradesmen had to raise prices in order to get by, and behold, they are now in at least as good demand as before! Which goes to prove that it has been the florists' own fault that he has not been getting good prices all along. Carnations are retailing at $2 per dozen and go like hot cakes. Enough cannot be procured. Other prices are in accordance. Since it is the fault of the tradesmen if the prices ever go down again, let us pull together to keep them up and make flowers a luxury to be appreciated.

Flowers in this locality are extremely scarce and by no means equal to the demand. Roses are making from $5 to $30 per hundred, the former being a

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

THE CUSTOMERS' INTEREST FIRST—Is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business.

The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horsepower). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell policy to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL
"THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY"

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

Kroeschell Boilers Save Labor and Coal

Anderson Floral Company, Lebanon, Tenn. No. 4 Kroeschell heats entire place

The boiler arrived all right in first-class condition and has been in place and working fine for over a month. We are very much pleased with this boiler for it is doing what we thought it could not do in the way of saving labor and fuel.

We have no trouble in heating the houses with this boiler, and we find that it sure will hold heat much longer than the old boiler.

We are well pleased with the shaking grates as they save time, work, and much coal

We thank you very much for the care and attention that you gave our order, and we assure you that same was appreciated very much.

Thanking you again, and at the same time wishing you the joys of the season, we are

Keep your greenhouses at an even temperature all the time—you must have artificial heat—you must have absolute control of your heat. There can be no guesswork.

Morehead
SYSTEM

Is a necessity for the greenhouse operator. It enables you to get the very maximum of heat from your steam—keeps the temperature exactly where it belongs—70° all the time.

Even Temperature!

The steam pipes are clean—no condensation. This condensation is returned to the boilers, pure and HOT—continuously. The steam is allowed free circulation all the time. You get the fullest benefit from all the steam.

Save 8 to 20% of Fuel!

It requires less fuel to operate your lines—because the Morehead System keeps the lines clear—and the hot condensation makes perfect boiler feed. Some concerns have reported a saving of 20 per cent and more of their fuel expense.

Used Everywhere!

The most prominent greenhouse owners in all parts of the country use the Morehead "Back-to-Boiler" System. Your competitors are probably enjoying this greater economy and efficiency. We would like to tell you about the experience of greenhouse owners—real evidence that will quickly convince you that you need this system.

Send for Literature!

A line from you will bring complete information regarding the Morehead "Back-to-Boiler" System — what it is doing—what it will do for you—what it will cost—how installed, etc. Let us hear from you.

limited supply of shorts. An unusual demand for funeral work has absorbed all flowers available for this work. Carnations are snatched up at $6 and $8 per hundred. A few large mums remain, chiefly of the larger types. They sell at $5 per dozen. Calla lilies are inadequate in supply at $2.50 a dozen. Easter lilies are hardly seen. A few small flowers are available for corsage work, including sweet peas at $1 to $2 per hundred, violets, orchids, pansies, calendulas, mignonette and stevia. Paper Whites are new in the market.

Potted plants for Christmas are limited in both variety and supply. A few potted poinsettias will be available. Jerusalem cherries and begonias will be in larger supply, while good cyclamens will be limited.

Various Notes.

Lee Rickenbach has been cutting good sweet peas. Kempe & Son have fine mignonette. Hartje & Elder cut from 600 to 800 fine carnations daily.

Herman Piel, with Bertermann Bros. Co., has a house of promising poinsettias for Christmas.

Alvin Schreiber and Bernie Fohl, veteran florists, have the greenhouses of A. Wiegand's Sons Co. in tiptop shape.

Martin Nelson, of Temperley's, is showing the market what can be done with Chatelaine begonias. This firm also has excellent Jerusalem cherries.

Baur & Steinkamp are doing a lively shipping business in young geranium stock. They have an excellent crop of carnations coming on for Christmas.

John Heidenreich has good potted poinsettias.

Earle Haeger, formerly with S. T. Hitz & Son and more recently with Bertermann Bros. Co., is now with Henry W. Rieman.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

There is an unusual scarcity of cut flowers for this season and prices have soared even over Thanksgiving figures on some items. This is especially true of carnations, which are so high at wholesale that the retailers have been obliged to raise their prices to $1.50 per dozen. Roses also are on the short side, particularly Hoosier Beauty, Richmond and Milady. Many of the local growers' stocks are either off crop or the cut is being held for Christmas. A few Easter lilies are offered and a scant supply of snapdragon. Stevia is used in many instances in place of greens. Cattleyas and other orchids command excellent prices.

The weather during the early part of December has been dark and rainy and unseasonably warm. Nevertheless the florists have been displaying Christmas wreaths, baskets, etc., and report a good advance demand. The bulk of the trade has run to funeral work, with an occasional wedding and a good demand for social purposes. Flowering plants are in their prime, azaleas having made their appearance last week. Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens and primroses are of excellent quality and a few Christmas plants are shown, such as Jerusalem cherries and poinsettias.

Various Notes.

November business showed a decided increase over any previous year and if there had not been an unprecedented shortage of cut flowers, resulting in high prices, receipts would have been much larger.

The second outbreak of the influenza epidemic has occurred in this city and the ban has again been placed on public gatherings, affecting schools particularly. Over 600 cases have developed in the city within the last three or four days, but as yet there have been comparatively few deaths.

Some fine poinsettias and azaleas are displayed in the windows of the Flick Floral Co. This firm also has an excellent display of Christmas novelties in wreaths, baskets, etc.

A fine cut of roses in Russell, Shawyer and Ophelia is promised at the greenhouses of Frank J. Knecht & Co. for the Christmas trade.

The six orchid houses of W. J. & M. S. Vesey are making a fine showing, as many varieties are in season. This firm is expecting a record crop for the holidays. The rose houses also look promising.

Advance orders for Christmas, especially from out of town, are coming in satisfactory volume at the flower shop of Edgar Wenninghoff. R. F. B.

Gentlemen:-

We are pleased with the Permanite. It certainly makes an air tight job and appears permanent. Also a great saver of labor and material in new work, as we lay the glass on bars without the usual bedding in. Go over it with Permanite and have an air tight and water tight job.

Very truly yours,
SANDERS NURSERY COMPANY.

STEPHEN MORTENSEN
ROSE GROWER
SOUTHAMPTON, PA.

Feb. 5th, 1917.

The Garland Company,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Gentlemen:-

I am pleased with your Permanite, especially for old houses. It tightens an old greenhouse roof, but it also prevents the glass from slipping out. I went over the old section of my place last summer, and last night we had a terrific snowstorm here and not a single light blew out.

Yours truly,
Stephen Mortensen

Permanite.

[Trade-mark registered U. S. P. O.]

what it will do for you
why you should use it!

Through every sash, through every broken glass, out goes the heat, in comes the cold, down goes your coal pile. Coal is "all fired" hard to get and mighty high priced as well, so you simply can't afford to go at the glazing proposition in an indifferent way.

Saves Coal!

You must keep the heat in and the cold out to save that coal and money pile of yours; Permanite will show you how. Leading florists all over the country have found Permanite just the material for this purpose.

To prove this to your own satisfaction, give the letter from the Rhea Floral Company the "once over"; Permanite will do just as good work for you!

But there are plenty of other reasons why you should use Permanite. When you have Permanited your houses you are finished—no more "puttering" around and continuously going over your work—you are through for years to come, because Permanite lasts three to four times as long as putty without hardening or cracking.

No Bedding Required!

Another saving can be accomplished by laying the glass over the bars without the usual bedding. Mr. Sanders did it—so have hundreds of others at a big saving of time and money, with as good, if not better results!

Windstorms Have no Effect on Permanited Glass!

There can be no more broken glass with Permanite on the job; Permanite stays elastic and thus, being able to give with the expansion and contraction of the house, prevents breakage and keeps the glass from slipping and blowing out.

Read Mr. Mortensen's letter; he had the same trouble a good many other florists are experiencing every winter, but, thanks to Permanite, he hasn't lost a single light for several seasons!

Yours for a Tight House,

ITHACA, N. Y.

Floriculture at Cornell University.

With the signing of the armistice the work of the Department of Floriculture at Cornell is rapidly coming back to its former status. When war was declared, many men students specializing in floriculture joined the colors and the classes in 1918 have been composed almost entirely of women students. The staff of instructors was also much depleted, practically all having been engaged in some form of war service.

Early in January, 1918, E. C. Volz, instructor, resigned to become director of school and home garden work in Michigan. In February, E. A. White was relieved of his duties at the college to take up the organization and supervision of school and home garden work in western New York. This work was continued until July 1, 1918. July 1, M. E. Farnham, instructor, was called for service and was stationed at Camp Sevier, S. C. At the same time Miss L. A. Minns was given leave of absence that she might supervise the greenhouse and garden work at the Carnegie Institute for Experimental Evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., thus relieving a man for war service. In September, C. L. Thayer, instructor, was called for service and is now stationed at Fort Adams, R. I. During the fall Prof. David Lumsden has been teaching the S. A. T. C. in meteorology. Dr. A. C. Beal was granted a sabbatic leave of absence for the year 1918-1919, which he is spending at Los Angeles, Cal.

During the last four weeks many of the former students have expressed a desire to return to their work in floriculture, and plans are being made to begin all the courses December 30.

COLUMBUS, O.

Trade has broken all records here in the last few weeks, while stock has been scarce. Stock obtainable also has brought top-notch prices, prices, in fact, unheard-of for this date, and still people have bought up everything eagerly. The wholesalers have the advantage in one way. They send in the stock and it is for the retailers to explain to the public the reason for the high prices. Roses have been in fair crop with the growers who are running them through the winter, but some of the growers have closed down their rose houses, which has made stock scarce. It is almost impossible to get anything outside of the regular lines.

Carnations are scarce and high in price. There is only a handful in the market, so to speak. Lilies also are on the short side. A few callas arrive. Mums are a thing of the past. Sweet peas are a little more plentiful. Violets are of good quality, but the supply is limited.

All the florists are of the opinion that if we only had plenty of stock, much business could be done. But it looks as if we would have to make one dozen roses go as far as two dozen at the same price and similarly in other items.

J. M.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

Stock of all kinds has been short the entire week. Cloudy weather has had much to do with curtailing the supply. The weather now is more favorable and a few days of it surely will do wonders in furnishing a supply. The continued shortage is causing some uneasiness about Christmas. The market will undoubtedly have to depend on shipments from distant points for the holidays. There also will be a shortage of holiday pot plants, with the exception of primroses, begonias and cherries. F. P. A.

PANSIES.

We have 100,000 Steele's Greenhouse Specials. These plants are short and bunchy, not long drawn, and have heavy roots, and we are going to give every florist a chance to get some of these plants this month. I had 100,000 of these plants in bloom last spring and people came from fifty miles to see our pansies. There were a number of people here from St. Louis and they said they never saw as large and fine pansies in the Shaw's Botanical Garden. The picture of these pansies in bloom was sent to The Review, they showed 100,000 in bloom, 3-inches across, and there were 35 to 40 different colors.
Now I am going to ship 100,000 this month at $4.00 per 1000 and give you a chance to get some for spring that you can sell at 50c to 75c per doz. retail. These plants are prepaid by P. P. insured, and our packing is perfect. $4.00 per 1000 is all they will cost you at your greenhouse. Remember, our methods are new and that is why we can make these prices.

TO YOU
MR. FLORIST,

whatever your name and abode, and may the Christmas bells ring out strong and clear for you, with a joyous prophecy for the coming year. Now once again they are real Christmas bells that tell of peace on earth, good will to men. From every city, town, and little village, they'll send their bright message to quicken into new life the business of the land. And with the clangor of their iron tongues are ended your months of waiting and suspense. And so again, Mr. Florist, a health to you—

Mr. Wanamaker says:

"A large number of people have been taken out of the big stores. The men have enlisted. The women have gone into Red Cross work and nursing.

"We are able to fill some of their places with improved cash registers. This frees many persons for war work."

Mr. Wanamaker's statement that cash registers save labor, is based upon critical investigation and upon experience with N. C. R. Equipment extending over many years.

His recognition of the labor-saving qualities of modern National Cash Registers is plainly shown by a contract he has just placed for nearly $100,000.00 worth of machines. The high character of Mr. Wanamaker's stores, the careful tests made by his executives, and the size of his orders, combine to make his personal endorsement extremely important to other merchants struggling with the present-day shortage of help.

GROWING ADIANTUM FRONDS FOR CUTTING

The cut fronds of adiantums, or maidenhair ferns, always are in excellent demand, as they provide the designer with one of his most useful and attractive materials. Here are directions how to grow them, from gathering seeds to putting the fronds on the market.

SEVERAL species and varieties of adiantums, or maidenhair ferns, are grown extensively for the purpose of providing cut fronds for the use of the floral artist. While all of these plants submit gracefully to the same general conditions of culture, yet there are little peculiarities of propagation and management that apply in some cases and not in others. It is to some of these little details that we may refer in the present article, not in the hope of teaching the expert, but rather to help some less experienced grower to make good.

Probably the first adiantum to be used for cutting in quantity was A. cuneatum. This good old species is still much in evidence and is hard to beat as a general-purpose cut frond. In the American trade this fern has been grown in quantity for at least thirty years, and many years before that it was marketed by the thousand bunches in some European horticultural centers, notably in London.

Adiantum cuneatum is one of those ferns which produce spores, or seeds, in great profusion, and these spores are by no means difficult to germinate. The ordinary method followed in preparing for a crop of seedling adiantums may be summed up briefly as follows:

Gathering Seed.

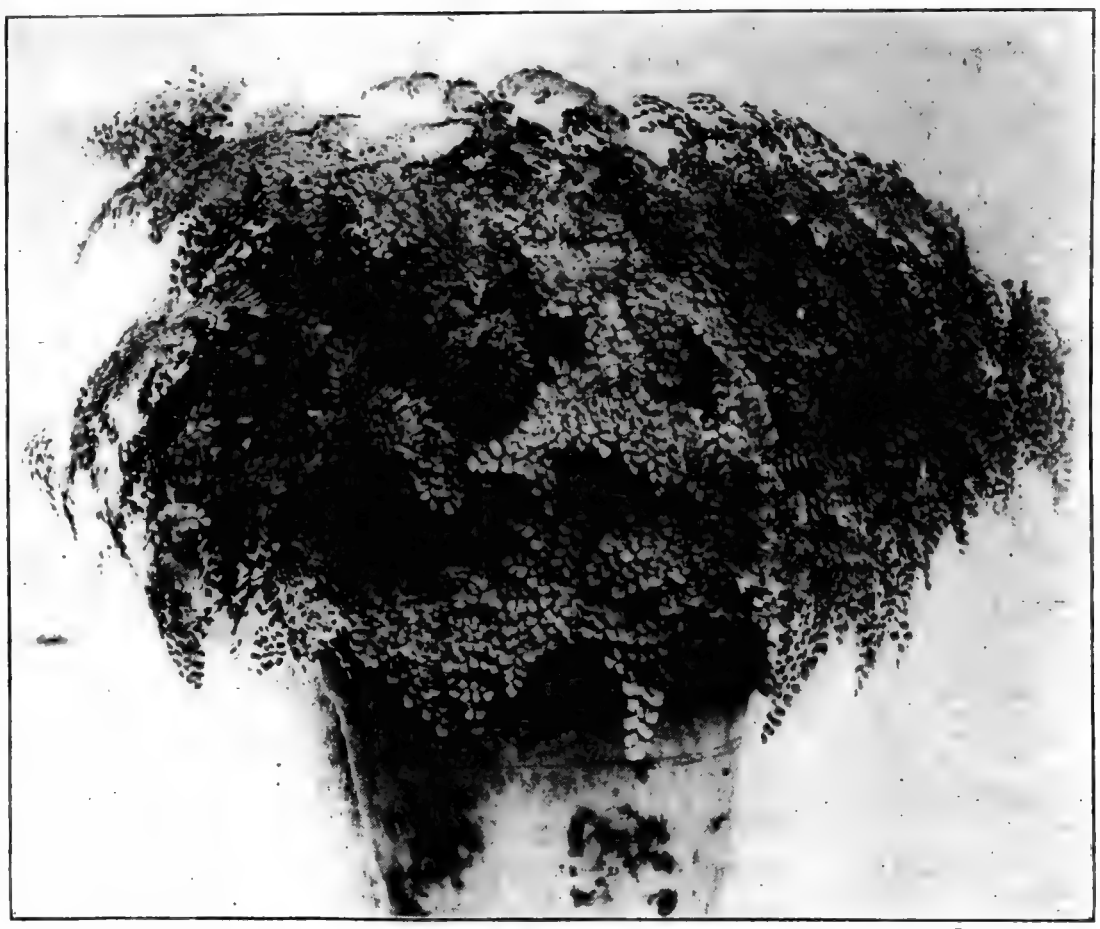
When the spore cases on the seed fronds begin to open up (and this is one of those interesting processes of nature that may more readily be observed with the aid of a small single-lens microscope), it is time to gather the fronds.

Put them in paper bags to be hung up in a dry place for two or three weeks, at the end of which time most of the spores will be shed, and those that still remain on the fronds may be rubbed off through a fine sieve.

The spores then may be stored in a bottle until the time arrives for sowing them, which is usually about August or September.

The most common method of sowing these spores is to use 6-inch pots or pans for the purpose. Fill them with cinders or other drainage material up to within two inches of the top; then put a layer of fine soil on the top of this drainage material, the soil being pressed down moderately, keeping the surface below the top of the pot, so that the pots may be covered with panes of glass after sowing.

Growing the Seedlings.



Give the prepared pots a good watering before sowing the spores; then sow the latter thinly on the surface of the soil. Put the seed pots away in a shaded greenhouse where a night temperature of not less than 60 degrees is maintained, the chief anxiety being to avoid drafts and to keep the pots from drying out until the spores have germinated. If well cared for, the seedlings will be ready for pricking out into shallow trays in a few weeks' time, and may remain in the latter until they are large enough to pot off into 2-inch pots, at all times keeping the young plants in a night temperature of 60 degrees and watching them closely to avoid extremes of dryness.

The young plants need fresh air on every bright day and, as long as the weather will permit it, night ventilation should be given in moderation, for when kept too close these tender young plants will often damp off.

From this period onward, it is simply a matter of watering and ventilating and shifting on the young plants until they are large enough for setting out on the benches, plants from 3-inch or 3½-inch pots being quite large enough for planting.

Greenhouses of the older type, that is, those with the smaller sizes of glass in the roof, will answer well for adiantum growing, provided that the roof is in good condition, so that the plants will not be drowned by drip from the roof, and that the house is sufficiently heated to maintain a night temperature of 58 to 60 degrees in the winter.

Four or five inches of soil on the benches is plenty for a maidenhair crop, and a soil such as would be used for roses will give results with these ferns. But one of the things to be avoided is the use of fresh manure, and another is overwatering when the ferns are first planted.

Adiantum Cuneatum.

The crop may be planted in July or August, as may be most convenient, and the plants from 3-inch pots should be spaced ten inches to one foot apart on the benches.

To Avoid Failure.

When planted closer than this they are likely to get too crowded, and in the latter condition the fronds will be too soft for satisfactory work.

Water the individual plants when first planted, but do not soak the whole bed, as there is the possibility of souring the soil at this stage of the proceedings. When that occurs the crop is likely to be a failure.

A moderate shading on the glass during the summer months is beneficial to the plants, but the shade should thin down by the middle of September, and is better to be entirely off the glass by October 15. If shaded too much, the fronds will be long and soft, and will soon shrivel when cut.

When cutting the fronds, it is well to cut off the entire plant at one cutting, discarding any fronds that are not fully developed rather than to include such fronds in the bunches, for these young fronds would depreciate the whole bunch.

Bunching for Market.

The bunches of fronds may contain either a dozen or twenty-five, as may be the preference of the locality in which they are sold, but the bunch of twenty-five fronds is the most satisfactory in the majority of markets. After the fronds are bunched for market, they should be thrown in tubs of water, and allowed to remain therein for some hours before they are packed, in order that they may absorb as much water as possible.

Returning once more to the subject of cutting the fronds, it may be explained that the cutting of the entire plant at once is done for the same reason we do so with a crop of smilax; namely, that the plants that are cut down may be given a little different treatment from those that are in full growth, especially in the matter of watering.

In regard to ventilation, it may be said that all ferns enjoy fresh air, and the adiantums are no exception to the rule, an abundance of air both day and night being required during the summer months. But the air should be given with due regard to the direction and violence of the wind, so as to avoid strong drafts.

The Best Varieties.

As to species and varieties that are adapted for commercial use, we have already referred to Adiantum cuneatum, which is still one of the best, and its variety Roenbeckii is also good, the latter being a fern that originated in Bayonne, N. J., some thirty-five years ago. Then there is the variety known as California, which seems to be simply a strong-growing Roenbeckii.

Adiantum Croweanum is also an excellent fern for cutting, this variety belonging to the decorum group, producing a much larger frond than those of the cuneatum varieties, and being a great favorite with many growers, particularly for large work.

But Adiantum Croweanum is usually propagated by division of the crowns, and this process requires more care than the simple shifting on of seedlings. Unless one has the facilities for caring for young stock of this class, it is probably better to procure the necessary stock at the time of planting from some fern specialist.

Snails are one of the most serious pests the fern grower has to contend with, and in old greenhouses these pests are frequently in good supply. Some flake camphor or even moth balls among the plants will help much in driving the snails away, and a sprinkling of air-slaked lime around the edges of the bench will also discourage them to some extent.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

LILIUM CANDIDUM.

The supply of French candidums this season is far below normal. Whoever has any, however, will find them excellent property, as lilies the coming Easter will be scarce and blooms of the beautiful, pure white Madonna lilies are sure to command high prices. Candidums as pot plants are far more effective when several are grown together in fairly large pots. Nothing could be finer for church decoration than a 10-inch pot containing half a dozen stalks, each carrying eight to twelve flowers and buds. For this purpose they are much superior to longiflorum, as they are taller and of more graceful habit. Plants required to bloom for Easter should be placed in a cool house now, with a temperature not over 45 degrees at night. At no time should the minimum temperature run over 55 degrees at night and 50 to 52 degrees is better. If grown cool, the flowers will be larger, with a good deal of substance, while if forced hard, they will come undersized and "floppy." Some growers are handling home-grown candidums this season and there is no reason why these should not do well, provided they have had some freezing before being housed. Here is where many growers fail. Giganteums need heat from start to finish. Candidums want a freezing and later comparatively cool treatment.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS.

There are extremely few azaleas this season and, with an almost total absence of lilies, there is bound to be a tremendously increased sale of French hydrangeas. They can be had in flower early in March if started right away. Do not give too much heat at first. Let them break; then give 55 to 60 degrees at night. If your stock was pot-grown through the summer, it will force earlier than if field-grown, and such plants, of course, will need an abundant supply of water. I invariably propagate some of these French hydrangeas, as well as the otaksas, early in September. These plants are now in 3-inch pots in a cool house and are being started up. A little later they will get a shift into 4½-inch pots and each will carry one large head of flowers, which will be fully open seven months from the time they were propagated. If you want good heads on your hydrangeas, something more than cold water is needed, once they have their pots full of roots. Be sure to feed them twice a week, until the flower heads are well developed.

If you want to increase your stock of hydrangeas, take any of the blind shoots and propagate them as procurable. Get these in 4-inch pots before the weather permits them to be planted outdoors in good soil, or, if you prefer, grow them in pots all summer and keep them plunged to the brims in an open, sunny spot convenient to the hose.

BEDDING GERANIUMS.

Now that Christmas plants are out of the way, you can give a little more badly needed space to the bedding geraniums and pot over such as may be needing it. No doubt you can get tops from many of the plants, which can either be rooted singly in small pots of sandy loam or placed directly in the cutting bench. There is far less liability of geraniums taken under glass damping off than cuttings taken outdoors. The indoor ones are shorter-jointed and firm, while the outside ones, taken in the fall, are invariably soft. Never shade geranium cuttings and do not make a habit of spraying them over as you would heliotrope, coleus or alternanthera cuttings.

PROPAGATION.

We are approaching the shortest days and the period of severe cold. At this time propagating benches are usually steadily warm and in addition there is less ventilation in the houses than at any other period of the year. Now is the ideal time to root all kinds of foliage plants, such as crotons, dracænas, acalyphas, pandanus, etc., as well as bedding plants of all kinds. Keep the cutting bench well filled. The demand for plants of every sort next year will be greater than ever and those who have had the courage to keep their greenhouses going will reap the benefits.

FOR EMPTY GREENHOUSES.

Perhaps you have closed down part of your greenhouses this month and are planning to reopen them toward spring. In such a case it is necessary to look ahead and prepare some stock for these houses. If you are a small retail grower, you will need to grow miscellaneous stock and a number of seeds can be started advantageously now. Among these are calendulas, sweet peas, annual larkspurs, ten weeks' stocks, Centaurea Cyanus and C. imperialis, Gypsophila elegans, lupines and the yellow Mexican poppy, Hunnemannia fumariæfolia. Sow these in shallow flats and later pot them off singly. Open up one house at a time and fill with these seedlings, which will give you a lot of valuable cutting later.

GENISTAS.

Start up a batch of genistas now. Do not use much heat for them; 50 degrees at night should be the maximum. There is a long period before Easter when genistas can be sold, so start some right away. This is an ideal time to put in a good batch of genista cuttings. Short side-shoots rubbed off with a heel are best. Do not give much bottom heat. They will root better with mums and carnations than with crotons and coleus. These will make nice stock in 5-inch pots before fall, if properly treated.

THE GROWERS AT GHENT

WHAT WAR WROUGHT.

First News in Two Years.

During the last two years of German occupation the Belgian plantsmen, who in peace times annually shipped thousands of cases of azaleas and other stock to American florists, were cut off from communication with their customers and their fate was unknown. Interest naturally was keen, because there is no retail florist or plant grower in America who has not handled Belgian stock, felt the effect of shutting it off during the last two years and wondered if the grower had survived and would be able to "come back." The trade's interest has not been lessened by the announcement that the Federal Horticultural Board will prohibit the entry of Belgian plants after June 1, 1919.

The moment the armistice was signed efforts were started to get into communication with the growers around Ghent and news of them and their industry of world-wide connections now is coming out.

An Azalea Grower's Story

"Yes," wrote one of the Ghent growers on evacuation day, "we are once more free from the enemy, free from four long years of cruel oppression, free from unceasing threat and unbearable arrogance, free from continual and incessant robbery. From free people that we were we had become slaves, and since then we only have learned the real meaning of the word 'Liberty.'"

"What has become of the nurseries and nursery trade? You know the prosperity of our place before the war, you have seen year after year the rapid development of the nursery trade and you are a true witness how the houses and grounds were kept clean and held in a good state. What a painful impression it would make on you if you came and saw our nurseries now," wrote Jules de Puysseleyr, of Loochristy, to the English Horticultural Advertiser. "What a decay! What a ruin! The houses, not being painted these four years, and no putty being at hand, have suffered much from sun, rain and wind and hardly keep together. Especially the old houses are totally dismantled and are not fit to shelter plants during winter.

"The stock of plants has become small and many a nursery has no plants at all. At the beginning everyone thought the war would not last long, that it would soon come to an end, and so everybody kept his nursery and stock of plants in good order. In 1915, however, people seeing that the war still lasted, that there was no selling of plants, no fuel to be got and that the leaf-soil and other necessary materials became scarce and expensive, threw their plants away and started to grow vegetables. In 1916 and following years the selling of plants became worse and worse, the prices lower and lower, fuel scarce and exceedingly expensive, so one after another, especially the small nurserymen, gave up growing plants and went in for vegetables. I dare say that at this time the half of the nurserymen in our place have no plants at all. Palms have nearly disappeared, the old stock is almost sold out and there is no young stock at hand. Araucarias are scarce; thousands of stock plants have been thrown away and few young plants were raised. Rhododendrons look rather poor, for year after year these were not taken care of.

"As to azaleas, the great specialty of our place, some stock is left in a few nurseries, but the selection of varieties has totally disappeared. Some of the best English selling varieties, such as John Llewellyn, President Osw. de Kerkhove and J. B. Varonne, are hardly to be found. The chief varieties in culture and in stock are Mme. Petrick, Mme. Vander Cruyssen and Vervæneana. Besides, these plants are not in form, growth and strength similar to what they were before the war. All the plants are about one year backward in growth. For instance, an azalea that was salable after three years of cultivation before the war, looks now as a plant 2 years old and is not salable at all. The young stock of azaleas fails totally and it will be a long time before the growth of this valuable plant is at the height of its normal cultivation.

The Chief Difficulties.

"Perhaps the chief cause of trouble was lack of coal. In 1914 and the first half of 1915 everybody could buy coal, but thereafter, the mines and coal trade falling under German control, coal was not to be got any more. Now and then a small distribution was made to the nurserymen, but not half sufficient and of inferior quality. Therefore we had to put our plants in as few houses as possible, cover them with old mats and heat the houses with wood, ashes and a few coals. You can imagine the effect this had on the plants! After each winter thousands of azaleas perished.

"A second cause of trouble was the failure of new leaf-soil. At the beginning of the war we had free passage all over the country, but soon a passport was required to move about (which was seldom given, notwithstanding good payment), and we could not bring the leaf-soil from the places where it was to be found. At the same time the horses were taken away for the German army, the vehicles were requisitioned and necessary materials could not be transported except at exorbitant prices. So it came that the plants, always being transplanted in old and used soil, could not set forth new roots, did not grow, remained stunted plants and at last perished.

"We might have helped the plants with some good manure, but there was none. The best manure we used for azaleas before the war was malt-radicles, but these were not to be got with money, not even with gold, so dear to the Germans. The German army wanted these for food for the horses and, the malteries being under their control, nothing of this precious manure could be obtained.

"Another serious obstacle was lack of hands. Many people were engaged in our army. Of those remaining, the tender-hearted Germans conscripted young Belgian people and compelled them to work for the German army against our own country. So we had to help ourselves with boys and women and the work was not half done.

Exporting During the War.

"At last I must say a word about the exportation of plants during the war. In 1914, the exportation being normal, plants were sent to all countries except Germany. In 1915 the Germans prohibited us to send plants to their enemies, especially to England and France. However, I am pleased to say that a good many plants traveled to England via Holland and the Germans were not clever enough to prevent this. Meanwhile an avalanche of German nurserymen invaded our nurseries and, with ridiculous prices, tried to buy our plants and make a good profit out of them in Germany. The German government, however, had limited the import of plants in Germany; every German nurseryman was only allowed to import one-third of the plants he used before the war. America imported as usual, but plants generally traveled in bad condition. In 1916 the trade was very bad. Germans bought some plants, but at the lowest possible prices. England likely got no plants at all, and the exportations to America that year were disastrous, not half the plants reaching their destination in good condition and not half the amounts of invoices being paid. Sweden, Norway and Denmark have been good customers all the time and plants traveled well to these countries. The years 1917 and 1918 were the worst of the war.

"I am pleased to let you know that the nurseries in Ghent and vicinity have

NO HELP FROM U. S.

The plantsmen at Ghent, that great horticultural center of Belgium, look to America for assistance in re-establishing their industry, but they will be disappointed—they have not yet heard that the Federal Horticultural Board, a part of the United States Government, has decreed no more Belgian azaleas, bay trees, palms or other plants shall be permitted entrance here.

To make the Belgians understand why we bar their products will not be easy; the statement that our authorities (but not the trade) fear disease or devastating insects in their soil will seem to them incomprehensible—they will suspect it as being camouflage, covering the real reason, although they know we have not yet been able to grow for ourselves the azalea, their principal item of export, that we need them as they need us.

not been damaged by actions of war, the armistice being signed when our troops stood before Ghent and on our place no fighting took place.''

Another Grower's Version.

''Horticulture was the worst of all trades during the war,'' wrote E. Bracke, of Ghent, to the Horticultural Advertiser, ''depending on an export trade. Two countries, France and the British Isles, fell away at the beginning and, what was worse, what had been sent out at the last period could not be paid. Export to the United States was allowed, the amount of the payment to be put down in the Banque Belge pour l'Etranger in London, which allowed us a share of it; but to our sorrow the year after even this branch was forbidden altogether. In the last two years no exporting was allowed except to Germans and to such neutral countries as Holland, Scandinavia and Switzerland on special conditions, as that we guarantee the whole amount should be paid on terms via the bank at Berlin; wherefore we had to deposit in a designated military office in money fifty per cent of the invoices before we were allowed to ship. Several firms would not deposit any money whatever and had to give up this branch of export. Prices went down with a rush, to the profit of the German importers, and thousands of plants were thrown away or burned. Then occurred the scarcity of plants this last season and made the prices jump 100 per cent.

Hope to Resume.

''Add to this men taken away and obliged to work for the enemy, no glass, no paint, no benzine, no oil, and the worst of all, no coal, and you will wonder with us how it is possible that there is a living plant to be found.

''Of course the nurseries all around have suffered awfully, but as plucky Belgians we have stuck to it. Although several places are empty and others only have half as many plants as they should have, there is sufficient material left to restart and rebuild our trade. Undoubtedly we are thrown back for several years and hard work and great sacrifices will be required from us, but, like our army, we will resist and prove that we are worthy of our race.

''Over here all nurserymen are short of cash and are anxious to get their money in on bills which are overdue. We also will be unable to stand those long credits which we allowed before and it would be most obliging for us if your trade paper would give a wink to its readers to pay up like one man for what is overdue and prepare for business with cash in the future.''

HEART-TO-HEART

NEW YORKERS TALK IT OVER.

Discuss Prevailing Prices.

There was a meeting of the trade interests in and around New York city, at the rooms of the Pan-Hellenic Club, 56 West Thirtieth street, December 16, called by retail interests, which was largely attended by growers, wholesalers and retailers. It was a wide open meeting. Consequently there was a big attendance, possibly 250 all told. The object of the meeting was not stated in the call, but everybody in attendance divined that it had to do with the supposedly high prices prevalent in the flower market. Therefore interests high and low were represented.

Of course there had to be a chairman and George D. Nicholas was the choice of the meeting. He filled the bill exactly. To Ward W. Smith, secretary of the New York Wholesale Protective Association, was delegated the office of secretary and he easily made good. The preamble to the proceedings was ably delivered by a personality whose retirement prevented identification, but it did not make much difference; the meeting was ''on.''

Mr. Nicholas called attention to the fact that the gathering represented all the administrative elements of the florists' business, and assured everybody that the only thing to be discussed was the condition of market supply, in which, undoubtedly, all present were interested, and, incidentally, the prices which have been and are prevailing.

Through the chairman's address the object of the meeting was fully demonstrated and the ''grill'' proceeded.

Retailers' Views.

Charles H. Brown, for the retailers, told how distressing it was to reply to customers' protests against the high prices of roses, carnations and other flowers, and expressed it as his opinion that non-stability of prices forced this condition. He realized, he said, that the expenses of growers were doubled as regards production, but said uncertainty in prices tends to block business.

Max Schling expressed the opinion that the growers who regularly ship to the New York market sacrifice their local interests through the lure of outside markets, thus creating shortages in the home market, action which was to be deplored.

George E. M. Stumpp reviewed conditions, but, after all, he said, we are in the flower business to live and to make a living, and to attain this education as to the requirements is an essential.

Wholesalers and Growers.

Charges that flowers were sold at retail by wholesalers were denied by Harry Riedel, with applause from the wholesale bench.

Philip F. Kessler took the standpoint of grower and wholesaler, in both of which sections he could qualify, that cost of production was responsible for the high prices of flowers now prevailing.

The chairman expressed appreciation of Mr. Kessler's remarks, but scored what he said was a bunch of ''parasite'' wholesalers whose interests were not legitimate or essential to the market, and who speculated to the disadvantage of the retailer.

E. J. Hession gave a little talk, based on real common sense. He spoke of the advanced cost in all lines and he did not except the new suit which the chairman wore that evening; therefore it was not to be supposed that flowers could escape the era of high prices now painfully apparent.

President Totty, of the S. A. F., defended the growers and impressed upon the retailers the fact that they should seek to pass along to the consumer the burden of the extra cost of flowers, just as producers and dealers in all other lines are doing; such a course is equitable and it is small matter whether the public has any objection, as the supply is exceedingly short.

Benefits Accruing.

Percy B. Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock Co.; Eugene Dailledouze, Charles Weber, of Lynbrook; John B. Nugent, Frank H. Traendly, Chas. Schenck and Frank R. Pierson all made addresses, the consensus of their remarks being that the laws of supply and demand are chiefly responsible for the present prices of flowers, but that such prices are not without precedent in times when war conditions were not a factor.

It cannot be said that nothing was accomplished at the meeting, as it was evident that the heart-to-heart discussion had removed many clouds from an atmosphere which had become thick with misunderstanding and distrust.

J. H. P.

POLLWORTH'S ANNUAL HUNT.

To escape the ''flu'' and to get away from the strain it caused when the supply was inadequate to fill orders and the best-natured customers were kicking because they could not get enough stock, C. C. Pollworth, of the C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, literally ''took to the woods'' at Thanksgiving time. Of course, as has been his custom for a number of years, Mr. Pollworth hied himself to that part of the Badger state where deer are thickest and, as he expresses it, ''picked off a good-sized one as he was trying to get through the lines.'' Mrs. Pollworth accompanied him and a 20-mile sleigh ride to the railroad station was enjoyed by both of them.

Mr. Pollworth is back on the job again and feeling fit for another siege of business—that is, until the fish begin to bite next spring. Venison dinners have been numerous in Milwaukee florists' circles since Mr. Pollworth returned.

BEGONIAS DROP LEAVES.

The leaves of our begonias turn dark and soft, as if scalded, and gradually drop off until only a bare stem is left. If cut back, they sometimes repeat the process, but more frequently die. Is this trouble caused by disease or by too much or too little water?

R. F. C.—Idaho.

I should say that you are keeping your begonias too wet, both at the root and on the foliage. At this season they like a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees, with full sun, and it is better to keep them a trifle on the dry side. On no account should the plants be sprayed over. When watering, be careful to dampen the foliage as little as possible. They like fresh air on all possible occasions and prefer a dry to a moist atmosphere. I do not think your plants have any disease. C. W.

THE BOYS WHO DID THE TRICK

HURRYING HOME.

Transports and Trains Take Them.

A continuous stream of American soldiers, who have been at the front in France and Belgium, some wounded and some not, is arriving at Atlantic seaports, principally New York. These men, of course, are not being immediately released from the army. The wounded are sent to hospitals and convalescent camps; the others go to the training camps where they will await demobilization. The men who were in training at the cantonments when the war was halted are gradually being released and are going to their homes. Hundreds of thousands of young men thus are being returned to their peacetime occupations. Among these thousands are many members of our trade. Some have been returned from Europe; others are sent home from camps. The movements of these young men are of interest to the trade. Send in their names and something about them for the page The Review devotes each week to the fighting florists.

Sergeant Deutscher Returns.

Jacob M. Deutscher returned to Philadelphia December 12, after sixteen months in the service. Mr. Deutscher was a sergeant in the 312th Field Artillery, stationed at Camp Meade, near Baltimore, Md. He was assigned to special service on several occasions, carrying out his orders successfully despite difficulties that had to be overcome. Sergeant Deutscher has been honorably discharged. He is in splendid physical condition, ready to devote all his energies to the distribution of cut flowers at the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Phil.

H. Gronbeck's Two Sons.

May 15, 1917, which was shortly after this country got into the European war, Paul C. Gronbeck, son of H. Gronbeck, Mechanicsburg, Pa., enlisted in the army and was assigned to the Quartermaster's Corps, at Washington. Promotions came until he was a first sergeant and in August of this year he was recommended for the officers' training school at Camp Lee, Va. November 30, after the fighting was over, he received a commission as second lieutenant, but, as he was not assigned to a company, he is now at home helping his father.

Walter H. Gronbeck.

Serg. J. M. Deutscher.

Walter Gronbeck, another son of Mr. Gronbeck, was called for service February 25 and was sent to Camp Meade, Md. He was assigned to Company B, 304th Ammunition Train, 79th Division, and left July 14 for overseas service. He is still there.

Howard M. Earl's Officer-Sons.

When the United States entered the war in April, 1917, John Howard Earl and Douglas Earl, sons of Howard M. Earl, of Bolgiano & Co., Washington, enlisted in the U. S. Army as privates. Both were sent overseas with the first contingents of the American Expeditionary Forces. Since that time both have risen from the ranks step by step until now the first named is Lieut. John Howard Earl, in command of Company G, 111th Infantry, 80th Division, with the Army of Occupation that has just crossed the Rhine into Germany. Douglas Earl is a second lieutenant with Company K, 320th Infantry, 28th Division, which is with the army corps that is acting as a reserve to the Army of Occupation.

Lieut. Swenson Leaves Army.

Lieutenant Hilmer V. Swenson is home from the war. Lieutenant Swenson is well known to florists all over the United States as an expert in florists' advertising; he did a large business in supplying advertising specialties under the name of the Hilmer V. Swenson Co. until he was drafted and sent to the ranks at Camp Grant. But this was no place in which to keep a good man down and Swenson soon was a noncommissioned officer and later was commissioned as lieutenant. For the last six months he has been at Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex. He was given his discharge last week and is back in Chicago.

W. W. Webster Returns.

Private Wendell W. Webster, son of A. W. Webster, of Webster's Greenhouses, Centralia, Ill., has returned to his home in that city from the training camp at Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, Ill. Young Mr. Webster enlisted in June and entered the service in October. He was a member of the Students' Army Training Corps and his company was the first to be discharged from that camp. His business experience is in the florists' trade exclusively. He belongs to the Elks' lodge and to several other fraternal orders.

Lieut. Patterson Manages Paper.

Several weeks ago, in fact, just before the armistice brought an end to hostilities, Col. Charles Miller, commandant of Camp Pike, near Little Rock, Ark., called in his staff and suggested that the camp ought to have a newspaper. A canvass of the personnel was made and among the officers were found several whose peace-time occupations were editing and managing newspapers. Among them was Lieut. Kellogg M. Patterson, formerly connected with The Review. Lieutenant Patterson was made business manager of the paper, which was named The Camp Pike Carry On. In the first issue, dated November 21, Lieutenant Patterson tells of getting the paper started. After the managers of the different departments had been selected and activities begun, it was found that the plans of the publishers were too modest. Advertising patronage was so large that the size of the paper was increased from twelve to sixteen pages, and the number of subscriptions caused the order to the printer to be changed from 10,000 to 20,000 copies. The Camp Pike Carry On is the most pretentious of any of the camp papers, and compares with any New York or Chicago daily, both as to the amount of news, the illustrations and advertising. No small part of its success is attributed by Lieutenant Patterson to the whole-hearted support of the business men of Little Rock and the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce, but it is suspected that what has been accomplished is the result of the hard work of Lieutenant Patterson and his colleagues.

ROSES FOR EASTER.

Kindly advise me when to give heat to the following roses, so as to bring them into bloom for Easter: Dorothy Perkins, Excelsior and Baby Tausendschoen. What temperature do they require? These plants were grown in pots all summer. G. E. N.—N. Y.

Easter comes late in 1919 and plants which were pot-grown through the summer can always be depended upon to force better than such as have been lifted from the field and potted in the late fall. Baby Tausendschoen will not require so long a period as Dorothy Perkins and Excelsior. I do not know what heat you have at your command, but those roses will be all the better for not being subjected to hard forcing. I would suggest starting Dorothy Perkins and Excelsior the first week in January and Tausendschoen ten to fourteen days later. Give a temperature of 45 degrees to 48 degrees at first. When the growth is well started, the temperature can be increased 10 degrees. The plants will stand a minimum of 60 degrees, but are better grown 5 degrees cooler. If the plants come along too rapidly, owing to a warm spring, such as we sometimes have, it is easy to move them into a slightly cooler house to hold them back. I need hardly say that pot-grown plants will require an abundant water supply and regular feeding until the flowers start to open. C. W.

SCOTT KEY A SUMMER ROSE.

I am growing a few Francis Scott Key roses in the same house with Ophelia, Sunburst, Cecile Brunner and Hoosier Beauty. These roses all do exceptionally well except the Keys. The buds of the latter turn blue and in some cases never open, but get dry and become worthless, so they have to be cut off. Some of the plants have yellow foliage, while others have perfectly healthy foliage, but the buds are the same on all the plants, whether the foliage is yellow or healthy. I feed my roses bone dust and manure water and carefully sprinkle the benches with wood ashes. Can you tell me the reason for the Scott Key plants not producing as they should and state what is wrong with the blooms?

R. V. B.—N. M.

Rose Francis Scott Key loves hot weather and is fine from late spring until fall. It is a splendid summer rose, but poor and unsatisfactory in winter and usually acts as it is doing in your case. Substitute some other variety if you want winter flowers, but retain it if the flowers produced in the summer are of equal importance. I think a rose like Killarney Brilliant would prove much more profitable for you. C. W.

ROSES LOSING FOLIAGE.

I have some White Killarney and Ophelia roses which have been on the bench the third year. I did not rest the plants in the summer this season, as they did not do well last winter, but they did well during the summer and fall. Now, however, the plants are losing a good deal of foliage. They have had no food since October 17 and I have been keeping them on the dry side the last few weeks. Kindly let me know how to treat them and when to feed them again. O. B.—Minn.

The fact that you are keeping your roses dry now would account for some loss of foliage. You cannot rest your plants now and expect to get much bloom from them this winter; but if you run a lower temperature, keep the plants drier, do some judicious pruning and start them up toward spring, you will get a fine crop. Roses, however, are much cheaper then than in the winter. If you decide to rest your plants, the temperature can be reduced to 35 or 40 degrees. You can hardly expect a good winter crop from plants which flowered all summer and have had no rest whatever, but it would not help matters to start feeding now. Better rest your plants until February, then start them up, and, once they are in active growth, you can commence feeding them. The sun will then be growing in power and not decreasing, as it is now. Feeding must be done with extreme caution while the days are short. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Chicago, Ill.—Notices sent to the creditors of William Langhout, bankrupt, by Sidney C. Eastman, referee in bankruptcy, announce that the first dividend will be declared at a meeting to be held at the referee's office, room 907 Monadnock building, 53 West Jackson boulevard, at 10 a. m., December 27. The dividend will be payable within ten days after that date at the office of the Central Trust Co., trustee of the estate. At the same time the receiver of the property will make his final report.

Chicago, Ill.—Notice has been given that John Evert, bankrupt chrysanthemum and vegetable grower, has effected a composition with his creditors and applied for confirmation and discharge. Judge Landis will hear objections, if any, December 27 and issue an order. It is understood that Mr. Evert's mother has provided the funds to pay creditors 50 cents on the dollar.

Flushing, N. Y.—It is announced that the greenhouse property at Whitestone avenue and Higgins lane, recently conducted by Knight & Struck and formerly by H. D. Darlington, is to be sold January 8 under foreclosure proceedings, representing the second mortgage. The plant consists of about 25,000 feet of glass on which there is a first mortgage of $15,000.

ANNOUNCES QUARANTINE.

This is the announcement of the plant quarantine sent to the press through the weekly bulletin of the Department of Agriculture:

NEW PLANT QUARANTINE TO GUARD AGAINST INSECT PESTS AND DISEASES.

A quarantine, with regulations governing the importations of nursery stock and other plants and seeds into the United States as a protection against the introduction of insect pests and plant diseases, has been signed by the Secretary of Agriculture, D. F. Houston. The order, known as Quarantine No. 37, will become effective on and after June 1, 1919, and the regulations under it will supersede those now in force governing the importation of such stock.

Under the terms of this quarantine and regulations, fruits, vegetables, cereals, and other plant products imported for medicinal, food, or manufacturing purposes, and field, vegetable, and flower seeds may be imported without permit or other restrictions. Other classes of plants for propagation permitted entry, including certain bulbs, rose stocks, fruit stocks, cuttings, and scions, and seeds of fruit, forest, and other ornamental and shade trees, and all hardy perennial ornamental shrubs, may be imported only in accordance with the permit and other requirements of the regulations. The entry of these classes of plants is represented by experts to be essential to the floriculture and horticulture of this country under existing conditions.

The regulations permitting the entry of the restricted classes of plants, as noted, are similar to those hitherto in force and take into account the classification of countries into those maintaining inspection and certification of nursery stock in accordance with the requirements of the plant quarantine act and countries which have not made provision for such compliance with the act.

Copies of the quarantine and regulations soon will be available for distribution.

That surely is nothing to alarm anybody; not a word about the palms, azaleas and general nursery stock the American public are not going to be allowed to have from abroad any more!

PRIMULA OBCONICA.

When should Primula obconica be planted to obtain the best plants for the trade? J. M. K.—Wis.

Sow Primula obconica in February or March, if you want good-sized plants for autumn flowering. If extra heavy plants are desired, sow in January.

RED SPIDER ON CARNATIONS.

Referring to the note to A. S., N. J., n the Ask Me! Ask Me!! column, December 5, about using a salt spray on arnations to exterminate red spider, the alt spray can be applied with the ucket spray pump. The solution should ot be too strong at first.

OUR GOOD GOVERNMENT.

In the Florida Grower for December is an article on castor bean culture in Florida and its practical failure there nder government auspices and supervision. It seems to the writer that a overnment department that can make uch a failure in this matter probably s equally weak on the proposition to xclude all growing plants under the uarantine to become effective next une.

I would call special attention to the tatement, in the article, that a fungous isease is supposed to have been imorted on the seeds. This lack of cauion in an importation from the East ndies, in contrast with the official atitude toward European stock that is nore thoroughly inspected than anyhing grown in this country, is funny.

We have suffered about enough from he pernicious activities of swivel chair heorists tampering with practical maters. This quarantine and the outrageus mismanagement of the coal situaion are examples in point.

A. H. Graham.

AGAINST HEAVY ODDS.

Fourteen years ago the sales of the Marshall Floral Co., Marshall, Mo., for he month of December amounted to 15.50. The credit of the firm was not ufficient to enable it to purchase a ozen roses and the stockholders, who ad invested the sum of $12,000 in the ndertaking, were discouraged. They id not feel any better when I told them t would take almost a year and a good eal of money before we would be in a osition to do business. I had to work gainst prejudice among the stockholdrs as well as lack of confidence on the art of the public in starting. The first ear's business netted $1,500. Last ear's business reached $10,000. I have urchased stock from the different memers of the company until I now own a ontrolling interest. Last year the conition was such that we must either pend several thousand dollars in reairs, go out of business or rebuild. We hose the latter course and have just ompleted the new range at a cost of 13,000.

We own half of one city block. The ffice and garage front north and the whole plant is well back from the street, eaving fine grounds for lawn and planting. While our greenhouses do not over so much space as the old plant, he office, service building, etc., are arge enough to take care of four times he amount of glass we now have and were built to allow for growth. The whole place is modern. The only old material used was the bricks, glass and some heating pipes. The John C. Moninger Co. constructed the plant under the direction of W. A. Walker. The wrecking was started June 20 and the new houses were planted August 15, the whole plant being completed September 18.

It took both nerve and money in these times to undertake a proposition of this kind in a town of less than 5,000. We have enough coal and wood to last until March and our stock looks well. The Missouri Colony for the Feeble Minded, a state institution, has attempted to go into the commercial florists' business here, but the people do not approve and the great majority remain loyal to us. However, we make no effort to compete with this concern. The wholesale florists of Kansas City will not sell to this institution, but one in St. Louis supplies the stock. We run a front page ad daily in our local paper, also in the best weekly paper in the county. Many of our ideas in advertising come from The Review. I made use of the item in The Review about President Wilson greeting the wounded soldiers. I read The Review carefully every week and would not do without it for twice the price of subscription.

SOLANUMS NOT FRUITING.

Please advise me in regard to my Jerusalem cherries. I planted the seed January 23 and the plants are now in 4-inch pots, but many of them have no berries. Do you think I pinched out the buds too long? Do these plants require a high temperature and plenty of water? The leaves fall from some of them. H. E. C.—O.

You did wrong in pinching your solanums. This is the reason your plants have failed to fruit. When you pinched out the tops, you destroyed the flowers and future fruits. Seed sown as early as January 23 should have produced big, bushy plants in 6-inch or 7-inch pots, loaded with fruit. Our solanums sown in March are in these sizes of pots and almost weighed down with fruit. Another year plant your solanums out in the field, pot up early in September, do not do any pinching at all, and you should have large plants and an abundance of fruit. Solanums do not need a high temperature, but like plenty of water. C. W.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

AN EDITORIAL BOUQUET.

Rarely has editorial taste been exhibited with more felicity than in the selection of the subject for the cover page of the Christmas number of The Review. Cleveland florists recognized the picture at once and feel gratified at the favor shown them. It harks back to the big flower show in 1915, and both design and picture are suggestive of the creative genius of Fra Fred Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co. Mac.

CONSERVATION OF FLOWERS.

Conservation of flowers is, indeed, a new kind of conservation. During the last year conservation of every description has been forced upon the florist by the war, and now comes the necessity for conserving his product, flowers. The need is only temporary, however, let us hope.

The present supply of flowers in the Sixth City is so inadequate to the demand that the publicity committee, of which H. P. Knoble is chairman, deemed it imperative to call a meeting of the florists for the purpose of discussing the situation. The gathering was held at the Hollenden December 13 and was made up of the representative members of the trade of the city and its environs. The proper relationship of selling price to cost was first thoroughly treated, evolving the conclusion that, though a few of the leading florists were awake to new conditions, the majority were not living up to their opportunities and were unjust to themselves and our business because of their tardiness in raising their prices commensurately with the advance in costs. The problem of making the extremely low supply of flowers fill all orders, however, occupied attention. It was disclosed that every florist was daily refusing orders because of his inability to fill them, owing to the desperate scarcity of stock. The local wholesale market could only partially supply the need and distant sources of supply could lend little assistance. Each retailer present explained his particular method of coping with the situation, the consensus favoring a larger use of accessories and prepared stock. The necessity of a higher type of salesmanship was also pointed out as an important factor. Instead of selling designs made up entirely of flowers, those consisting of more plentiful items, such as prepared oak sprays, magnolias, laurel, boxwood and ivies, and baskets in which plants, ferns and other things could be used, all of which would require only a minimum amount of fresh flowers, should be judiciously offered. Thus would a goodly degree of genuine conservation in flowers be effected and the trying conditions greatly alleviated. The meeting was held at the psychological moment and without doubt much good was accomplished. Its pressing importance should have called out a greater attendance of the smaller florists, but as yet there has been evolved no recipe for getting them in large numbers to meetings designed especially for their benefit. It is to be hoped, however, that persistence in this direction will ultimately win out. Mac.

THE ABSENT ONES.

In the homes of many florists this Christmas there will be vacant chairs; for some, perhaps, forever. Broken family circles will gather around accustomed festive boards with thoughts upon distant son and brother. Again the old stories will be retold and the many youthful pranks recounted. In person absent, in spirit the young soldier-heroes will be present. And mingled with the affection of parents and the love of brothers and sisters will be the proud consciousness that they and theirs have done their duty.

Fate appears to call upon some generations to make heavy sacrifices in order that succeeding ones may enjoy repose and peace. And being a comparatively new business, particularly in America, for the first time in its history the organized trade has borne the heavy burdens imposed by war. Well has its duty been performed in the conservation of vital commodities, in the giving of its treasure and in the sending forth of its young men, and well, indeed, may future members of the profession in the years to come marvel at its emergence so little warped and injured. The time of trial is over, but there is still much to be done in the work of reconstruction. The part that the commercial florist, with his vast ranges of glass, is going to take in restoring the maimed and physically incapacitated to industrial usefulness will serve forever to prevent the application of the term nonessential to his calling.

The history of the progress of the trade will have few pages so interesting to future readers as those dealing with the problems brought about by the war. And inscribed in gold upon them will be the deeds of our soldier-members. Whoever they are and wherever they may be, their fellow-craftsmen unanimously extend them their best wishes for a merry Christmas and happy New Year. Mac.

"EVERY LITTLE HELPS"

PUBLICITY FOR FLOWERS.

President Wilson is proving an excellent publicity man for flowers; he is getting flowers into the news columns of the daily papers even via the cable, now that he is in France. Note the following interesting bit by the Associated Press, describing an incident of the President's day December 15:

"The President visited the tomb of Lafayette in the Piopus cemetery while returning home after the morning church service. No ceremony had been arranged at the cemetery and the President went accompanied only by Brigadier General Harts, a secret service operative and a French officer assigned to him as a personal aide. The President, removing his hat, entered the tomb carrying a large floral wreath.

"As the President placed the wreath on the tomb he bowed his head and stood silent before the resting place of the famous Frenchman who helped America in her fight for liberty. He made no speech whatsoever. He then returned to the Murat residence.

"President Wilson insisted on taking his own wreath, contrary to the custom here, by which the florist delivers the wreath and the donor later makes the visit and leaves his card. The President sent Admiral Grayson to buy the wreath, and after some difficulty in explaining to the florist, who could not understand why the traditional custom was being broken, obtained it and drove to the tomb. On his personal card President Wilson wrote this inscription: 'In memory of the great Lafayette, from a fellow-servant of liberty.'"

BUSINESS BOOMING.

Transfer Orders Increase.

Nothing has done so much to increase the interest in the transfer order department as has the publication of figures showing the volume of business being done by florists who are pushing this branch—the business, both incoming and outgoing, exceeds the estimates of even the most enthusiastic.

Grandy the Florist, Norfolk, Va., states that his October business with other retail florists, mail, telephone and telegraph, amounted to $1,322.05 and consisted of 146 orders.

One of the direct results of realization of the growth and extent of the transfer business has been a large increase in the Pink Section of The Review, devoted to the advertisements of those who are pushing this feature of flower selling. Last week and again this week the Pink Section contained twenty-four pages.

FOR A CHARGE ACCOUNT.

Henry Penn, Boston, has just designed what he believes to be an extraordinarily good form to be filled out by those customers who want charge accounts. Mr. Penn is always ready to help along the good work of putting the florists' business on a better basis and has sent one of the application blanks to The Review with the notation: "We find this form the simplest and right to the point. All florists are privileged to use it." A copy can be secured from Mr. Penn for the asking.

THAT ROAD THROUGH HEAVEN'S.

Through the property of Florist Thomas Heaven, near Benton Harbor, Mich., there is a road that autoists formerly called the "road through Heaven's." But not now.

It happened this way:

Mr. Heaven's property lies along the Paw Paw river. At both ends of the property, on which stand Mr. Heaven's home and greenhouses, there are main roads, each leading to a bridge across the stream. It is some distance to a cross road and the cross road has a rough reputation, or a reputation for roughness, so naturally it is avoided. Thirteen months ago one of the main thoroughfares, known as the Lake Shore road, was closed while a new bridge was being built and autoists drove as far as the bridge in spite of signs of warning, then turned around and, instead of going back to the rough cross road, used the private road that runs through the Heaven property, thus saving time and enjoying the well kept drive. When the bridge was finished the other main highway was closed to build a new bridge over the stream at that point.

For a time Mr. Heaven was glad to have the autoists use his private drive, but when the road commissioners refused to make the repairs made necessary by the constant travel, he balked and bars were placed across the road, which is three-quarters of a mile in length, in front of his home, and made it a toll road. Mrs. Heaven is the toll gate keeper. The autoists are assessed as follows:

Automobiles, 25 cents; "Henrys," 10 cents; soldiers, sailors and doctors, free. Half of the proceeds go to the Red Cross and the other half is applied to maintaining the road.

One guess as to the new name for the road—it still begins with "H."

NEW YORK.

The Market.

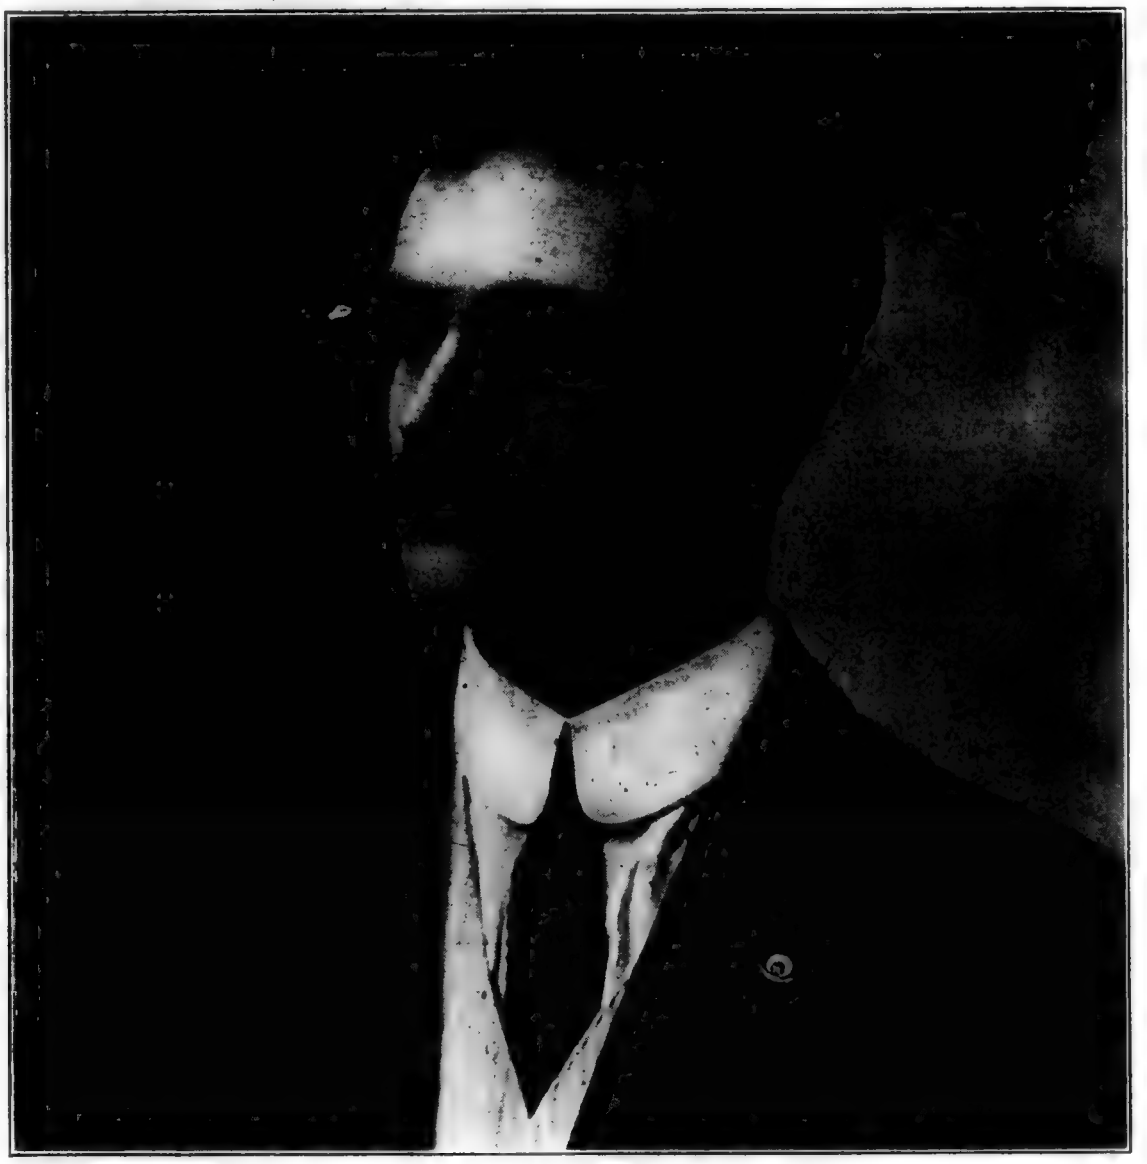
While it cannot be said that the demand for a week past has been particularly heavy, it has been sufficient to insure the absorption of all arrivals at prices generally high. This is because consignments have been particularly light. Outside of a limited supply of chrysanthemums of the Godfrey type, we have seen the last of these flowers for the season. Arrivals of carnations are more numerous, but not nearly so heavy as might be expected at this time; consequently, blooms bring abnormally high prices. The variety Mrs. C. W. Ward, in fancy grades, brought as high as 12 cents December 14 and 10 cents was the average top for other varieties; only short-stemmed flowers brought less than 8 cents. Some of the larger carnation growers are only now commencing to ship, so late was benching accomplished. The shortage in carnations may continue over the holidays, but afterwards we may expect a deluge.

Roses are in liberal supply, but are active in movement, as they have the preference over all other flowers. Buyers prefer to pay as high as 15 cents for roses in the extra grades rather than 12 cents for carnations, believing there is a much better ratio of value. Arrivals are showing Christmas quality notwithstanding the spell of unusually mild weather we are having. American Beauty has advanced, and it is expected that the Christmas cut will bring the prices of other years.

Cattleyas are in quantity sufficient for the demand. They appear to lag, however, on account of the prices asked, which are $1 to $1.25 for the best; lower grades at 75 cents and less move quickly. Cypripediums sell well, but the supply is light. There are few spray orchids available.

Gardenias are in heavier supply and prices in consequence have receded. The best bring $6 per dozen, but the bulk of sales are in grades at $3 to $5. The stock in the better grades is fine, the flowers mounted on stems of good length.

Lilies are in good demand, but the supply is small. Buyers have had to pay 20 cents, and even more, per flower, for the best. One large shipper has finished his crop and will not plant more bulbs, as the stock available is said to be inferior, which is not at all surprising.



Sweet peas are in better supply, and arrivals no doubt will be heavier each day from now on. Most of the early cuts were lost through the dropping of buds, supposedly due to atmospheric conditions, which of late have been trying for peas. Calendulas are in plenty, and move well on account of the general shortage of other flowers. Stevia, bouvardia, wallflowers, pansies, snapdragons, mignonette and callas clean up well, as do other flowers not seen in great quantity. One grower is shipping in strelitzia, the bird-of-paradise flower, which serves as a curiosity in window display. A few poinsettias are arriving, but are too far ahead of their season to attract much attention.

Plantsmen report a general clean-up of Christmas stock, a brisk business being done, at prices in advance of those in previous seasons. A heavy holiday trade in cut flowers is not probable, as a short supply only is expected.

Retailers Meet.

A meeting of retailers was held December 12, at which, it is understood, market conditions in general were discussed, particularly as regards the prices now in force, which are considered to be unjustifiably high. The growers assert that prices are settled by general conditions. They say that it should be apparent to all that the cost of production is double what it was formerly and, therefore, prices are no higher than they might be expected to be. Labor, fuel and supplies of all kinds are important factors in the general cost, and the advance in cost of these items is not more than covered in today's prices of products. They believe the public should not expect to get flowers at pre-war prices, any more than the various other commodities for which they pay prices much more advanced.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

JAMES McHUTCHISON.

AFTER James McHutchison had devoted a number of years to the florists', seed and nursery business in Australia, his native country, New Zealand and England, he came to the United States, where he spent five years as a traveling salesman for August Rhotert. Then he decided that he would, as he expresses it, "Americanize the European plant, seed and nursery business." To do this he secured an office in New York city and founded the firm of McHutchison & Co., in 1902. During the firm's first three years in business it was forced to move three times, each move being into larger quarters. In 1916, Mr. McHutchison bought the building that now houses the business at 95 Chambers street. Before importations practically stopped because of the war, McHutchison & Co. handled ninety per cent of the raffia supply that came to this country. The firm represents many foreign producers of seeds, bulbs, plants and nursery stock and acts as agent for the American buyers. The story of the firm is the story of Mr. McHutchison.

Various Notes.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co., 56 Vesey street, dealing in bulbs, etc., was discharged from bankruptcy December 10.

Captain Joseph Raphael De Lamar, of Glen Cove, L. I., whose death we lately recorded as of one who was a liberal supporter of our flower shows, left $10,000,000 to scientific institutions devoted to the care of public health.

Joseph A. Muller and Frank G. Sealey, formerly salesmen for the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., and well known to the trade throughout the country, have formed a partnership and opened an office at 47 West Forty-second street, where they will deal in horticultural products and supplies under the style of Muller-Sealey Co. A selling arrangement with the Roehrs Co. is retained. Mr. Muller has been a member of the New York Florists' Club for some years; Mr. Sealey is a candidate for election next month.

Michael Andropulos, who has retail stores on Ninety-sixth and One Hundred and Twelfth streets, where business is conducted under the style of The Garden Florist, is home on furlough from a southern camp, where he is a private in a surgical unit. "Mike" has had much enjoyment, so far, from his military life, but is rejoiced to think that he has an opportunity personally to supervise the good Christmas business expected at his two stores.

The beautiful blooms of the new chrysanthemum, Golden Mistletoe, shown by the A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., at the meeting of the New York Florists' Club, December 9, were on exhibition next day at the store of the Henshaw Floral Co., Inc., 127 West Twenty-eighth street.

The United States Employment Service, of the Department of Labor, which has an office at 469 Fifth avenue, would like to record definite assurances of aid in obtaining employment for returning soldiers, and florists whose former employees entered the service would do well to intimate to the department their willingness to take the men into their employ again, and the salaries they would be willing to pay. It is believed that such information would expedite the mustering out of thousands of men, as the government is unwilling that our troops be discharged broadcast without prospect of employment.

Mrs. J. Clark Curtin, chairman of the Flower Distribution Committee of the National League for Woman's Service, whose work the florists have been so generously supporting, as it is entirely among sick and wounded soldiers and is greatly appreciated by them, is making an appeal for donations of flowers for Christmas. She fully realizes the condition of the market at this time, but still pleads for flowers, hoping that the florists will even sacrifice to insure that all her poor boys shall have the cheer and comfort which a few flowers bring to them. Individual donations as small as a dozen carnations or roses would be gladly welcomed and if any florists could ship Christmas greens, such material could be used to advantage. Mrs. Curtin is raising among her friends a fund, all of which is to be expended in flowers, but she does not hope that this will provide more than a small portion of requirements. There are many thousands of our boys in hospitals in and around New York. The New York Florists' Club's flower committee, J. S. Fenrich, chairman, 51 West Twenty-eighth street, will receive anything that may be sent in.

The many friends here of Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., congratulated him on reaching his seventy-fifth birthday, December 16.

Fifth avenue—or shall we refer to it by its new name, "Avenue of the Allies"?—is particularly beautiful just now in its dress for the Red Cross drive now in progress. From its beginning in Washington square to Fifty-ninth street, on each side of the avenue, are rows of large Christmas trees, each tree in an enormous tub, and crossing the street at intersections overhead are substantial ropes of evergreens. All this decorative material was furnished by the Kervan Co.

Meyer Otile, partner in the firm of Riedel & Meyer, Twenty-eighth street wholesalers, was taken ill December 16 and removed to Bellevue hospital, where for a time his condition was serious and diagnosis difficult for the physicians. By the next day, however, he had improved sufficiently to be taken home.

John Young received congratulations December 17 from friends, it being his fiftieth birthday anniversary. There was no formal celebration of the event.

J. H. P.

Max Schling has introduced a novelty in bridesmaids' bouquets by combining a corsage with the bouquet. The bridesmaid carries the double piece while attending the ceremony and then detaches the corsage for wear at the wedding dinner, leaving the bouquet intact. F. T. D. advertising at this establishment had, by December 9, brought eighteen or twenty Christmas orders for out-of-town delivery. He looks for a record Christmas business and is planning for material progress in 1919, to be a big year for New York florists.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Market conditions remain the same as described in last week's report. The cut of roses and carnations still is far short of requirements and the dark weather that prevails in this locality is not going to help the holiday cut. Good poinsettias are arriving and clean up daily. Stevia is of good quality. Easter lilies and callas are coming and violets, both single and double, are here, but in short supply. A few freesias and calendulas come to the market and are quickly taken. American Beauties are in good demand. Plants of all kinds for the holidays have been practically cleaned up.

Various Notes.

A. Barber had the decorations for the opening of the new Hotel Cleveland December 16. Poinsettias and Beauties were used in large vases and baskets, of which there were more than thirty. The lobby was filled with palms and ferns. Ophelia roses, pompons and leucothoe sprays were used on the tables.

Mr. Darnell, formerly with the J. M. Gasser Co., is helping this firm during the holiday rush.

C. Betscher, of Canal Dover, O., was in the city last week on business.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to D. Bramley in the death of his wife.

W. F. B.

Hugo Schroeter is helping Paul Hahn during the Christmas rush, having put in much of his spare time in Mr. Hahn's store for several months. After Christmas Mr. Schroeter will go to Cincinnati to become connected with the Cincinnati branch of the White Motor Co., selling trucks.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Detroit never had better business than at present, although the degree of satisfaction with which the situation is viewed depends altogether on the point of view. Stock has been scarce and high in price for weeks, necessitating the revision of many preconceived ideas of how to run a flower store.

The prospect for Christmas is that there will be far more buyers than cut flowers or plants and that everything will sell at higher prices than ever before.

Club Meeting.

At the recent meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club the Hills, of Richmond, staged a vase of Rose Premier. It made quite a hit if one may draw conclusions from the enthusiasm of the judges, as it is seldom a committee goes on record as strongly as did M. Bloy, A. J. Stahelin, Thomas Browne and Wm. Dilger, who reported:

The committee appointed to examine closely and to report on the exhibition of 100 blooms of this novelty at the meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club, December 11, submit the following:

We regard this rose in all its features and constitutional qualities to be far superior to any rose now in commerce. It is so far in advance of all other varieties that mere comparison does not alone disclose its merits, which in the total seem to entitle it to the designation of perfection in a rose.

We highly commend this wonderful variety and predict for it a great future as supplying a long-felt want for a rose of its magnificent color, rose-pink, with stiff thornless stems and luxuriant and really beautiful foliage that augments the striking appearance of the rose on exhibition. Its pronounced delicious fragrance is a distinct mark of this truly wonderful rose.

Of course Premier will make good, but wouldn't it be one on these judges if Mr. Hill should spring a still better one in about a year?

At the same meeting Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., showed three new mums being sent out this season, Victory, Loyalty and December Gem, which the committee praised unreservedly; also a 1920 white and a 1920 anemone-flowered variety.

Various Notes.

Hugo Schroeter, who has been connected with a Pierce-Arrow truck dealer in Cleveland since leaving Detroit, has made a direct connection with the White Company at Cleveland and right after Christmas will go to Cincinnati to sell White trucks there.

Peter F. Reuss, who was associated in business with the late B. Schroeter, has purchased the business from the estate and is running it under his own name.

Word has reached A. Miller's many Detroit friends that he has a daughter at his home in Chicago. Robert Rahaley sent a basket of Beauties.

Philip Breitmeyer spent a day in Chicago this week.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are about gone, though several of the local growers report that they still have Chadwicks on hand. Due to the cloudy weather of the last week, carnations are blooming slowly. Local dealers who depend on the wholesalers for their stock say that they are obliged to pay such high prices for carnations that they have raised the retail price to $1.50 per dozen. A good cut of Easter lilies is proving a great help in meeting the demand for flowers for funeral work. Calendulas and bouvardia are plentiful and stevia and callas help out wonderfully. Violets are scarce.

Most of the florists are having trouble in obtaining enough flowers to supply the demand, for, in spite of the fact that they have been obliged to raise their prices, people are buying heavily. Business shows a decided improvement over that of recent years.

Everyone is preparing for a large Christmas trade, although some are wondering where they will obtain enough Christmas greens, as holly, laurel, etc., are so expensive and scarce. They will of necessity ask a much higher price than ever before for roping, wreaths, etc. Some of the florists say that they will not sell 25-cent bunches of holly, as in former years. Effective novelties in the form of baskets, small window boxes, etc., have been used to decorate the florists' windows, with plants in attractive combination. Crotons, primroses, cyclamens, Jerusalem cherries, poinsettias, ferns, begonias, etc., are used in these pieces.

Various Notes.

The windows of the New York Flower Store are attractive with a variety of Christmas novelties. This has been a busy week with this concern.

The demand for funeral designs continues heavy at the establishment of Julius Reck. Some splendid sweet peas and Easter lilies are being cut here.

Funeral work has kept all hands at the store of James E. Beach busy. He has some splendid poinsettias ready for the Christmas trade. A plentiful crop of callas is on hand to help out in the present carnation shortage. Some fine Easter lilies also are being cut.

G. F. Herthal, the West End Florist, is making great preparations for the Christmas trade, which he expects will be excellent.

Many people are attracted by the striking window decorations seen at the conservatory of George Pflomm, which include handsome baskets filled with combinations of crotons, flowering orange trees, etc. He is well stocked with all varieties of Christmas plants. Floral designs are reported in great demand here, due to the increasing number of deaths.

The report from Robert H. Hawkins is that business in general is splendid, the bulk of the trade, however, being composed of funeral orders. He has a large variety of potted plants on hand for the Christmas trade.

Chadwick mums are still being cut at the greenhouses of the Park Floral Shop, also a heavy crop of callas. A splendid shipment of holly and boxwood has been received.

James Horan & Son report that cut flowers are more plentiful with them than for some time. Their chrysanthemums are gone, but a good crop of carnations, stevia, narcissi, etc., is being cut. However, they are having trouble to get enough violets to meet the demand. This firm has so many orders for wreaths, Christmas greens, roping, etc., that it is having trouble in obtaining enough to fill them.

A number of large pieces were designed for the Bullard funeral at the store of John Reck & Son, which called for quantities of American Beauty roses. This firm has opened a branch store at the corner of Main and Golden Hill streets.

The writer extends Christmas greetings to the local trade and the trade in general. I. L. B.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business continues good, but the problem remains, to get stock. The shortage is the same as last week. Prices continue high. Plant growers are doing a tremendous business.

The supply of roses is far short of actual needs and all that come into the market sell quickly at prices the highest this market has ever known for this flower. Carnations, too, are short and clean up quickly at top prices. Poinsettias are plentiful and are proving a welcome addition to daily supplies. Easter lilies are coming into the market. Snapdragon sells readily. Callas clean up quickly from day to day. Stevia is in fair supply and sells well. Single and double violets meet with a good market. Calendulas sell well. Among other offerings are lily of the valley, orchids, baby primrose and forget-me-not.

Greens of all kinds are meeting with a good market. Supplies are selling well.

Various Notes.

Ray Reinstatler, for G. Brunner's Sons, put up the decorations for the farewell banquet to ex-Mayor Julius Fleischmann, at the Hotel Gibson December 16.

C. E. Critchell has returned to his desk after his recent attack of the "flu." Mr. Critchell is selling and handling more supplies and greens than ever before at this season.

E. G. Gillett received another large lot of boxwood last week. It moved out as fast as he could get it packed.

Among recent visitors were Miss Fannie D. White, Lexington, Ky., and Frank Winans, Petoskey, Mich. C. H. H.

The business of the late D. Rusconi is being continued by Mrs. Joseppina Rusconi, administratrix of the estate. Japanese lily bulbs have been one of the principal items handled and as these did not arrive this year, the business is marking time until normal conditions are restored.

Rochester, Minn.—Emil Rieple is putting up 10,000 feet of glass, using Moninger material. He intends to open a store before Easter.

FORCING ASPARAGUS.

A Continuous Crop Indoors.

Crisp, fresh asparagus tips can be obtained in a continuous supply this winter by forcing. For a large supply crowns of the plants may be forced in the field or in greenhouses, while the small gardener may bed a few crowns in the cellar to furnish tips for his own use. Specialists of the Department of Agriculture describe this winter gardening practice as at present not a general one in this country, but of considerable importance in Europe.

Method of Forcing.

Lifting the crowns from the field and placing them under greenhouse benches, in hotbeds or in cellars is the commoner method of forcing. The crowns are plowed or dug up late in the fall when the soil is moist, so as to have as much soil as possible adhere to them. They are then left exposed in the field until frozen, when they are covered with litter or removed to a shed in order to prevent alternate freezing and thawing, which is harmful. The crowns then are stored in a cool cellar or pit and bedded as needed to supply a succession of shoots.

When ready for forcing, the crowns or roots should be brought to the greenhouse and bedded on two or three inches of loose soil on the floor under the benches. The clumps should be placed close together, the spaces between the clumps filled with loose soil, and the crowns covered to the depth of about an inch. The soil should be moistened thoroughly and kept moist all the time, but never allowed to become drenched. For white shoots the light should be excluded by boarding up the sides of the benches or hanging old carpets, burlap or canvas over the openings.

The Temperature Needed.

For the first ten days after the crowns are placed for forcing, the temperature should be kept rather low, 45 to 50 degrees. After this period a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees is most satisfactory, although a higher temperature will not be injurious. A temperature as high as 75 to 80 degrees produces a rapid, soft growth, while a low temperature produces a slow growth, but gives shoots of good quality.

In about six weeks after bedding, the cutting can begin and will continue until the crowns are exhausted. As soon as the crowns become exhausted they should be removed and a new supply put in. With a little care in timing the bedding of the crowns, a continuous supply can be had all winter.

FATHERS' day will not down, but attempts to push it only bring a laugh.

GERANIUM cuttings, although produced in large quantities this season, are far short of the demand.

THERE never was a Christmas at which the supply of greens was so small when compared to the demand.

WHAT the trade needs is quality—there are too many growers who seek maximum production without regard to the quality of their stock.

THERE seems to be no surplus of anything this season, except work; there is plenty of that to go around among all who are capable of doing it.

THE mild weather so far this season is doing far more than any government activity ever did to conserve the fuel supply. Growers are duly thankful.

IF a plantsman wants to become absolutely independent, let him always do unto others as he would be done by, especially in the matter of shipping only such plants as he would be glad to receive.

GROWING palms from seeds is not a business attractive to Americans. It takes too long to get the crop ready for market; your American plantsman wants to finish a crop every four months, not every five years.

IT will be a good many years before the government of the United States hears the last of the plant exclusion order. The governments of several other countries are pretty sure to take a hand in the matter as soon as larger questions are settled.

THE average florist, like the small dealer in other lines, still awaits the reappearance of the demand he knows exists; he does not seek to develop and direct new demand. Those who have the ability to create business soon pass out of the small-merchant class.

ROOT all the geraniums you can.

OUR stock seldom looks to others as good as it looks to us.

R. VINCENT, JR., White Marsh, Md., was 75 years of age December 16.

THE supply of canna roots for spring, 1919, is the smallest in many years.

GOOD gracious, but won't there be a tremendous lot of wedding work when the boys come home!

NOTHING could stimulate production to a greater degree than is being done by the present heavy demand and high prices.

IF you can not fill an order right away, do as you would be done by, acknowledge its receipt and state when it will be filled.

THE supply houses never were so bare of merchandise as now; it will take them many months to restore their stocks to normal size.

THE income tax laws have forced to keep books many florists who never did so before, but they have not got all of them to the point of knowing how much they owe.

WHY should a florist complain that he is not popular with his competitors? If he were popular with them, would it not be a sign that his measure had been taken and that his competition was not to be feared?

ONE of the interesting and significant facts is that in practically every bankruptcy case the debtor's list of liabilities fails to correspond with the creditor's claims; in almost every case the liabilities prove to be larger than the books show, while the assets shrink.

CURIOUSLY, a few months ago, when prices were low, everybody was urging that we get more money for our merchandise, but today, with prices higher than ever before, still nobody seems happy. Note that in New York this week a mass meeting of the trade was called on account of having too much of what everybody, almost, was crying for not long ago.

WORKING OR BUZZING?

A business man had his desk covered with papers and he hurried from one task to another. To a friend who was standing near, he said: "I am terribly busy, you see." "You are not busy," said the friend. "You are only confused."

Much of our busyness is mere confusion, and our activity beating the air. Motion is not necessarily work.

Think it over. Are you doing something or merely buzzing around?

"ONLY."

The salespeople in the flower stores used to say, in answer to the query, "How much?" "Only four dollars!" And if the customer was pretty nearly sold anyway, or if the price was anywhere near a right price, the deed was done, and all that was left was wrapping and delivery.

But now the salesperson doesn't say that. Salespersons are very human, and usually in private life good bargainers and careful managers. So now when the price is asked the salesman or saleswoman says: "Four dollars—ain't it awful?" And the customer agrees heartily that it is.

But it may be that it is fostering in the patron a confidence he never had before in salespeople. And after the war has been won for a little while, perhaps our old friend "Only" will return and we shall have confidence in him. For we shall have been through the mill with the salesman, and know "only" prices when we see them.

EVERYTHING IN REQUEST.

All things seem conspiring to make the season a big one for the trade. So stock is moving at a lively rate, with gratifying returns to the grower. The following is one of many letters of appreciation arriving daily at the offices of The Review:

Please discontinue my ad for calendulas. I am much pleased with the results The Review brought, as I have sold close to 5,000 plants from one insertion.—Greenwood Avenue Greenhouse, Chicago, Ill., December 4, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Chicago never has had so strong a market as in the week now under review. From December 11 to December 17 Christmas prices have prevailed; indeed, prices have not been so stiff at Christmas for several years as they have been in the last week or ten days and there is no one in the market who can remember a time when high prices have prevailed for such a length of time.

A change, however, is beginning to be apparent. The excitement has subsided. Buyers have found that the rise in the market was more than a flurry and many of them are changing their method of operations to meet the conditions. Quite a few buyers have stopped ordering and the majority have reduced the size of their orders; standing orders in many cases have been cut down or canceled. It is to be considered that the market always is quiet just before the Christmas rush, and the same report might possibly have been made had the price level been no more than normal this week. The commission men are not unreservedly in favor of the high prices, believing that there comes a place where they will be harmful to the business, but the growers, who have been under high expense and reportedly without profit for a long time, urge that hay be made while the sun shines. They point out that the prices are justified by the fact that no flowers are being lost, either by wholesalers or retailers. The public is taking everything the market affords.

The somewhat reduced demand, however, is making it possible this week to fill a much larger percentage of the orders than it was possible to fill a week ago. Carnations are the shortest item on the list and, compared to normal prices at this season, carnation prices are the highest. There have not been enough to go around at 15 cents, which was the price for a good average grade in any color at the end of last week and the beginning of the present one. The man who wants the fanciest grade of roses and is willing to pay for them is not having much trouble in getting what he needs; the call for short to medium roses is much more robust and, naturally, the price is higher in proportion.

We are in position to offer

169-175 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO

Long Distance Telephone, 1978 Central

It cannot be said that there is an oversupply of any flower and the prices all along the line are much above those of this date in other years.

Christmas orders are being booked in large numbers. The wholesalers are exercising the privilege of selection, each according to his lights. Some houses are taking orders only within a given radius, feeling that they need not this year assume the risks of the far distances. Several are booking orders only from those who have been buying regularly, and it seems to be the general idea to decline with thanks the order of the man who always makes a claim after each holiday shipment. Of course the buyer who has a reputation for being slow pay has little chance under such conditions.

It is quite likely, therefore, that the total number of orders booked may not be so large as recent conditions would lead one to think and that it will not be so difficult to fill orders as some observers have been predicting. Most of the orders call for medium roses and it looks as though there would be an adequate supply for those who can use the higher-priced grades.

No one can remember when there has been so little holly in Chicago the week before Christmas, nor can anyone remember another year in which it took three 5-dollar bills to get a case of it. Bouquet green also is like the proverbial hen's teeth, which were not much in evidence, but nobody seems to care; by general consent bouquet green has been listed among the nonessentials. There is no great amount of boxwood, but most of the buyers seem to have obtained what they need. Mistletoe equals all requirements.

Workers Coming Back.

One by one the young men are coming back from the training camps and, mostly, going onto the old jobs. Every day a familiar face reappears.

Henry Niebuhr, who, before entering the army, was chief accountant for the A. L. Randall Co., is back on the job again, having been released from the army. He was stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Joseph Carlin, who left the Fleischman Floral Co. to enlist in the navy, has been released from service at Norfolk, Va., and is back with his former employers.

Henry G. Wittbold, son of the Evanston florist, called on friends in the market the early part of the week in uniform, with the gold bar of a second lieutenant on his shoulder. Mr. Wittbold has been released from the army and goes on the officers' reserve.

Allan Humason has returned east after a short furlough. Mr. Humason is attached to the port of embarkation at Hoboken, N. J., and was one of those in charge of the sailing of the S. S. George Washington, on which President Wilson and his party went to France. Mr. Humason expects to be discharged from the service soon, at which time he will take up the lines he formerly sold.

Hilmer V. Swenson, well known to the trade through his connection with florists' advertising, is back. Mr. Swenson was one of the first Chicagoans to enter the army and be commissioned as second lieutenant. He was retained in this country as an instructor. Mr. Swenson intends to enter the advertising business again.

fore entering the army, was connected with the Kentucky Tobacco Product Co., Louisville, Ky., called on his many friends in the market the latter part of last week. Lieutenant Leonard was stationed at Camp Hancock, Ga., in the Machine Gun Division. He received his discharge from the army the early part of this week and is now "Mr." Leonard, of the U. S. Officers' Reserve Corps. He will return to his former position January 1 and in the meantime will be at his home in Hart, Mich.

Various Notes.

Arrangements have been made by T. E. Waters, who is in charge of the Victory banquet, to be held by the Chicago Florists' Club January 9. The banquet will be held in the Bluebird room of the Hotel Randolph, Randolph and Wells streets. Remember the date. Bring your friends and do not forget the ladies, as there will be dancing and good music. All reservations should be made direct to Mr. Waters, care Poehlmann Bros. Co.

If you happen to see a Ford touring car with a 1918 Illinois license No. 165957 and you do not see C. S. Stewart, 3323 West North avenue, in it, call the police. Someone took it from the garage at the rear of his store December 12.

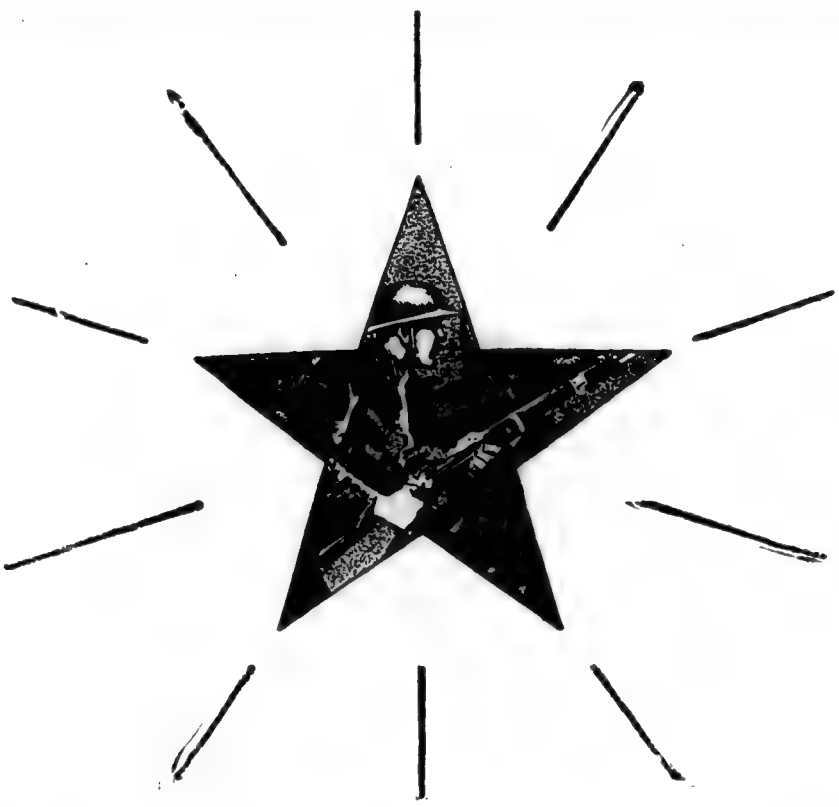
A bright and bouncing daughter has come to gladden the home of A. Miller. The mother and the new arrival were the recipients of many flowers, several handsome baskets coming from Mr. Miller's business friends in other cities.

After having spent the summer on his farm at West Springfield, Pa., Carl N. Thomas resumed his station, December 16, in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will make their home for the winter at the St. George hotel, on the Midway.

Harold Amling, son of E. C. Amling, is at home from Culver Military Academy for the holidays.

A. M. Augspurger, who recently was with the George Wittbold Co., has gone into business for himself at Peoria, whence he came, dealing in a wholesale way with plants and various lines of supplies.

After a fortnight's trip through Illinois, G. M. Reburn is at home for Christmas. He says everyone he called on is preparing for a big business.



The record price for carnations, so far as this market is concerned, probably is held by the blooms of Laddie sent to the E. C. Amling Co. by Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond. Offered only in small quantities, they have brought as much as 25 cents per flower.

The American Bulb Co. expects to merchandise 2,000,000 gladiolus bulbs in the first few weeks of the new year.

"Jack" Beyers wrote to a friend November 12, saying that he was sitting in a former German dugout on the western front and that he had not "heard the firing of a gun since yesterday morning." We, of course, know why. Mr. Beyers is with Company D, 131st Infantry.

Free flowers were advertised last week as a drawing card by one of the large chains of grocery stores at the opening of one of its stores. How do they do it—or did they do this without knowing the price of flowers?

side his store, but he has numerous friends in the trade who remembered that December 15 is his birthday anniversary. He is 51 years of age.

One of those who make daily trips to the market to purchase stock is J. C. Wolf, of the Armitage Flower Shop, and, judging from the amount of stock he carries away with him, business in his neighborhood is excellent. Mr. Wolf says that, although he is located in a neighborhood where the people are not wealthy, they pay the price for what they want and do not quibble.

Emil Buettner was 62 years of age December 14.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are greatly handicapped during the present rush of holiday business by the Spanish influenza having invaded their establishment, laying up five of their wire workers besides Joseph and Raymond Ziska. Raymond's condition is said to be serious, while his brother expects to be back at work soon.

Fred Felsch, the surviving partner of Felsch Bros., Maywood, is in ill health and will sell out, seeking the chance to get well again. The location is a good one.

Visitors.

Buyers from a distance continue to throng the market. There have been more trade visitors in the last two weeks than in any other like period in the history of the market.

Among the week's visitors was Julius Snyder, of the B. A. Snyder Co., Boston. He says his visit was purely one of exploration, because his concern does not normally do business west of Rochester. Mr. Snyder liked the looks of the Chicago market, even under the present condition of scarcity, remarking December 16 that one of the several principal wholesalers here seemed to him to have handled as many roses that day as the Boston market will handle in a week this season. Accused of not being literal, Mr. Snyder affirmed that he meant it, every word of it.

Gust Rusch, of the wholesale cut flower and supply house of Milwaukee which bears his name, came here last week to look into the market condition for Christmas.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

A Jack Spratt market is the order of the day. The platter is licked clean every day. A week of continuous rainfall and cold, dark days has retarded stock. With the demand brisk, the supply has been inadequate. This week started with sunshine and, if the weather continues bright, the Christmas market will be an improvement over that of the several weeks preceding.

Roses are scarce at from $6 to $35 and are in excellent demand. Carnations were never more popular or more expensive, moving quickly at $12.50 per hundred. The retail stores are selling carnations at $3 per dozen. These prices have never been known before in Indianapolis.

Callas are available at $2.50 per dozen. Mignonette is bringing a steep price, $6 per hundred sprays. In the smaller flowers, sweet peas sell at $1 and $2 and violets at $1 and $1.50. Narcissus is a welcome addition, at $6 per hundred. Poinsettias will not be numerous, either in cut blooms or potted plants.

All potted plants are in limited and inadequate supply. These are in exceptional demand, because less expensive than cut flowers. Those wishing flowers and finding them so extremely high will fall back on the less expensive potted plants. Cyclamens, Jerusalem cherries and begonias are leaders in this line.

Various Notes.

For the last two years there has been talk of a new commission house in Indianapolis, but now it is a reality. The new store will open at 205 East Ohio street the first of the year.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

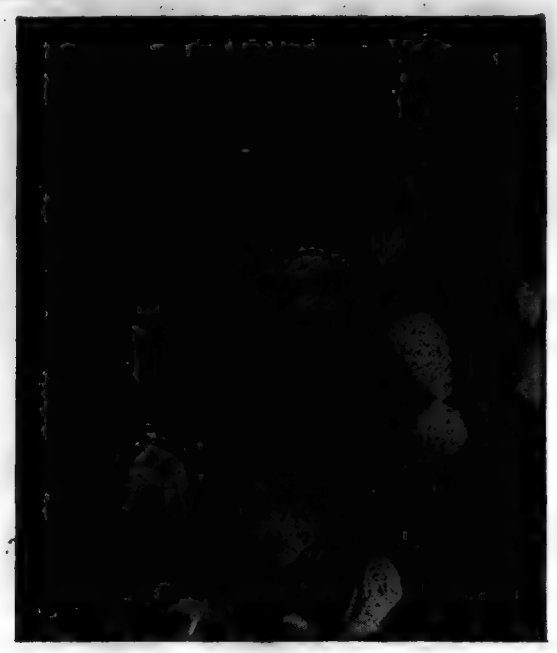
Flowers are scarce. Not so much because there are fewer of them, but because there is more business. Last year's Christmas prices have prevailed all the week on certain items. Carnations and short and medium-grade roses are good examples. Fancy Beauties and Russells command more than at this time last year, but not so much as they did last Christmas. The present price-level, maintained for a month, would yield better returns for the same quantity of flowers than any Christmas scale of prices ever did. The difficulty is that nobody, or next to nobody, has the usual quantity of flowers. Here and there you find a man who says he has as many flowers as usual, but it is the exception that proves the rule. The government restrictions and the "flu" have done their work. The supply is small and will continue so until the end of the year. Here authorities differ. Some say that the supply will increase steadily from now on. "Send the orders along and we will care for them," they confidently assert. This statement is based confidently on the expected reappearance of Paper Whites, and larger receipts of snapdragon, lilac, early Soleil d'Or, and so on. Those of other views say that there will be no perceptible increase in the supply for six weeks. "It is not in sight," they say. Obviously the thing to do is to find the man who has the stock.

But to return. Carnations have been bringing $10 a hundred straight all the week, with a few fancies higher; short roses, from $6 to $8 per hundred, with better stock running up to $15, $20 and $25, Russell to $40 and Beauties to $50. Valley and Paper White narcissi are out of the market. The latter will soon reappear, but the future of valley is uncertain. Lilac is beginning again. Sweet peas are more plentiful in certain places. There are a few cold storage Easter lilies and a moderate supply of callas. There are orchids, Cattleya Trianæ, Cypripedium insigne and some mixed varieties, a supply of stevia and some single chrysanthemums cut in sprays. Poinsettia is ready when wanted.

The condition of the demand may be best described in this way. A good buyer takes what he can get, when he can get it. He does not demand that his order be filled exactly; he knows that is often impossible and, where he has confidence, he does not question the price.

New Chrysanthemums.

A meritorious exhibit of three vases of new chrysanthemums has been on view at the establishment of the S. S. Pennock Co., this week, and excited much favorable comment from the growers and other experts. They were sent by Elmer D. Smith & Co., of Adrian, Mich., and were intended for the Florists' Club's meeting December 3, but did not arrive until December 11. They looked exceptionally good for all their twelve days on the road, especially the incurved white called Victory. It did not have a speck, but the bronze variety, December Queen, was a bit faded as to color and rather droopy. The pure yellow variety, Loyalty, resembles the Victory in size and form and looks like a good acquisition. Altogether these three newcomers for late-flowering habit reflect credit on their raiser, Elmer D. Smith, and will be welcomed by the trade generally.



True Sports.

The entire change in the market has brought about a situation that has not been in evidence for a long time. To understand this situation clearly, it must be remembered that when all the glass in and near the city is in successful operation, enough stock is produced to supply three times the city's needs. This is due to the enterprise of the wholesale florists and plantsmen, who ship two-thirds of our product out of town. It causes a degree of independence of spirit in our city buyers that past experience fully justifies. These buyers know that they are depended upon to support the market when it is too late to ship plants and cut flowers out of town for a holiday. They have got in the habit of taking chances on getting their stock at the last minute. Now, however, conditions are conpletely changed. There is not enough stock to go around. The late buyer, whether he be in town or out of town, suffers. He stands a poor chance of getting what he wants. It must be said in justice to these buyers that they have shown themselves to be good sports. Time and again during the last three months these buyers have been caught, but they rarely whimper. There is no complaining, no rag-chewing, as the boys say, just a calm, quiet determination to lose no more business where brains and foresight will prevent it.

Hustling.

One of those delightful stories of successful business hustling was told at the store of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. last week. Here it is, in Mr. Bayersdorfer's own words: "We received word that our immortelles were on the water. They had been lying at Marseilles since last July, not a steamer having sailed with general merchandise from that port in six months. We cabled to learn the name of the steamer. We got an answer and also learned that part of the cargo for the Pennsylvania Salt Co. would be discharged at this company's wharf here before the steamer unloaded the balance of its cargo in New York. Here was our chance. We knew that if the immortelles went around to New York they would reach us too late for Christmas. We made special arrangements, hired two trucks, had them waiting at the wharf away down on the neck early in the morning of Friday, December 13, and that evening had ninety of the 101 cases of immortelles here in our warehouse. The other eleven cases could not be found. They probably were in the ship's hold and not between hatches, where the ninety, being light, were stored. The government inspectors went over them the next day. Now they are going out."

At the Bellevue.

No one is better able to forecast the season than John P. Habermehl, of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, who operate three handsome flower shops and a range of glass in this city. Mr. Habermehl, who is in close touch with the business and social life here, kindly gave his views on coming events in his firm's shop in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel a few days ago. "I think it will be a good season, but I do not think that there will be many large affairs. The charity ball is the only large ball yet on our books. You know the girls cannot have the balls just by themselves; the boys must be home to make them successful, and the boys are not home yet. Things are undoubtedly commencing again. The Union League has ordered its Christmas decorations, which were omitted last year. The Manufacturers' Club will resume its monthly entertainments for the wives and daughters of the members, next month, which were suspended during the war. The decorations for these monthly affairs are not large, but they indicate a return of social activity. A serious feature is the scarcity of cut flowers. This is a drawback. Look at these little bunches of Mrs. Godfrey chrysanthemums. We paid $25 per hundred for these bunches. They do not seem large enough for the money, yet they were sold at the market price, as governed by supply and demand. We are preparing to meet this scarcity, should it continue at Christmas. With plant hampers and baskets in supply, should a customer feel that cut flowers are expensive, we can offer a plant basket, say, for $20, that will remain beautiful for many weeks.''

A Merry Christmas and a Glad New Year to All

We wish all our friends a Splendid Christmas business and a Prosperous New Year.

We want to express our hearty appreciation for the generous orders that have been entrusted to us and we hope they may be continued throughout 1919.

We want our friends to know that while our service has not been what we had hoped and tried hard to make it, conditions were extremely adverse. The war, the draft, the influenza, transportation, all held us back. We ask our friends to make allowances.

The last two weeks have been unseasonably warm, with much cloudy weather, but so far nothing has suffered. Carnations and roses are still coming in freely, and are not growing soft so far. more than that in the city itself. The scourge of pneumonia and influenza has kept stock swept clean down to rock bottom for funeral designs.

We have a few good second-crop mums on the market still and they certainly are appreciated. We see a few good azaleas here and there, showing that we can grow them if we need to do so. Had the war lasted a few years longer, undoubtedly we would have been producing as many of this valuable plant as we need.

Thus far the only novelty on the market this year in commercial quantities is Felicia Agathæa cœlestis. This daisy is certainly one of the daintiest of corsage flowers. Grown from cuttings, it produces a supply of flowers all winter. The blooms are three-quarters of an inch in diameter, of a forget-me-not blue, with a pronounced white eye. This flower undoubtedly has come to stay in Nashville.

The bulb business has been dull thus far, possibly because of the price of bulbs. There was no building during the last summer, because the powder plant took all of the carpenters. There are signs of a revival in building, however, and if it comes, there should be a normal demand for outdoor stock again.

Hardy ornamentals are moving slowly this fall, probably because there has been no building.

with the surface of the ground. These beds were worked deeply and well fertilized with horse manure that was thoroughly rotted. Some bone was also mixed with the soil. After the plants were set, no other fertilizer of any kind was used. The results were as fine single-stem blooms as we have ever seen grown in the south. All the work of applying liquid manure was saved, with no falling off in results.

Haury & Sons have a good display of excellent ferns in their window at present. Ferns are selling unusually well this fall.

Geny Bros. are showing the cleverest imitation of orchids we have ever seen. They were so true to nature that one had to look twice to see that they were artificial. This firm is finding them of great value in making wreaths for cemetery use, putting one or two with the usual permanent material with excellent results.

McIntyre Bros. have replanted the shrubbery about their store, making it the most attractively planted piece of evergreen shrubbery in the city. They are having good business in this line this fall. Their regular cut flower business was never better than this season.

Seed Trade News

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

L. W. WHEELER, Gilroy, Cal., will be 50 years old December 20.

THE Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., won its case against R. A. Holden & Co., Cincinnati, O., for payment for 557 bags of beans sold to the latter in January. The beans were seized by the government and condemned by the government chemist and the Holden Co. refused to pay for them.

A BILL for a pure seed law drafted by the agricultural extension department of the Ohio State University and the State Board of Agriculture jointly is to be presented to the legislature of that state this winter. By its provisions dealers will be required to indicate on all packages of seeds sold the percentage of weed seeds and inert material included.

THE RED CLOVER EMBARGO.

The War Trade Board, at Washington, December 12, raised the embargo on the export of red clover seed so as to permit British importers to secure the seed they had contracted for in this country. It is estimated that these contracts amount to 2,000,000 pounds. The permission was given with the proviso that none of the seed is to be sent to the continent.

FREE SEED DISTRIBUTION.

During the fiscal year 1918, according to a late bulletin of the Department of Agriculture, there were distributed on congressional and miscellaneous requests 11,165,709 packages of vegetable seed and 2,188,818 packages of flower seed, or a total of 13,354,527 packages, each containing five packets of different kinds of seed. There were also distributed 12,473 packages of lawn-grass seed and 11,110 packages of improved narcissus and tulip bulbs. The seeds and bulbs were purchased on competitive bids, as heretofore. Each lot of seed purchased was thoroughly tested for purity and viability before acceptance by the department and tests of each lot were conducted on the department's trial grounds to determine trueness to type.

U. S. SEED TESTS.

According to the report of the acting chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, "during the year 16,838 samples of seed were received for test at the Washington laboratory and 11,349 at the five branch laboratories maintained in coöperation with state institutions." This is a larger number of samples than was tested in the previous year.

"In the spring of 1918 seeds of red clover and redtop were collected for examination for the presence of adulterants as well as to determine how fully the seed trade is complying with its agreement to label all field seeds with the percentage of pure live seed. This material will be examined and reported on later.

"The enforcement of the seed importation act has kept out of the country

THE VEGETABLE NOVELTY OF THE YEAR

New Hybrid Marrow Rotherside Orange

An excellent new Marrow, bearing deep golden-colored globe-shaped fruit, slightly flattened at the ends; the flesh is firm, with a distinct and delicate flavor superior to that of any other sort. It matures very early, is of running or trailing habit, and extraordinarily prolific. Will doubtless be welcome in every garden. Packets, $15.00 per 100; $2.00 per dozen. (Retail, 25 cents.)

FLOWERS

THREE BEAUTIFUL NEW ANTIRRHINUMS:

FAIR MAID, nanum grandiflorum. Deep flesh pink, with large white center.
ROSEBUD, nanum. Pleasing bright rose pink, with small lip, white throat.
SENSATION, nanum. Bright orange-scarlet, with white throat.
Packets, $15.00 per 100; $2.00 per dozen. (Retail, 25 cents.)

Schizanthus Wisetonensis Snowflake.

Of compact habit, bearing masses of pure white flowers, beautifully fringed and much larger than those of its parent, Bridal Veil. Of easy culture and admirably adapted for growing in pots. Packets, $15.00 per 100; $2.00 per dozen. (Retail, 25 cents.)

Zinnia elegans robusta grandiflora Achievement.

THE FLORAL NOVELTY OF THE YEAR

A unique and charming Zinnia, with partially tubular and cactus-like petals, having a great range of rich colors—rose, salmon, scarlet, coppery-yellow, etc. On the reverse side they are light or dark lilac, making a most rare and beautiful combination of color. The flowers are often five to six inches across and abundantly produced. Highly decorative in the garden, and also effective as a cut flower.
Packets, $15.00 per 100; $2.00 per dozen. (Retail, 25 cents.)

On account of the difficulties of transatlantic shipment, imports of most kinds of seeds have fallen off, Canada bluegrass from Canada and winter rape from Japan being the only two items the imports of which have exceeded those of the previous year.''

MAY LEGALIZE FIXED PRICES.

Federal Trade Commission Acts.

Many lines of business are more deeply interested than seedsmen in the proposition to settle the legality of fixed resale prices, but such action is of paramount importance to the commission box seed houses; it is not easy to see how their business can be conducted profitably unless their right to fix the resale price of their packets is recognized.

The Federal Trade Commission recognizes that what it regards as the existing law is not fair to legitimate business, favors price cutters and is not in line with public interest and has recommended that Congress take cognizance of the situation.

''The Supreme court,'' said the commission in a communication to the legislators, ''has made it clear that, in the present state of the law, the maintenance of a resale price by the producer is a restraint of trade and is unlawful. Such being the judgment of the Supreme court, the Federal Trade Commission has enforced the law, even though it may have appeared to operate inequitably in some cases. In its enforcement of this rule, the commission has been mindful that the cutting of a recognized resale price on well established and identified articles has been, at times, indulged in for unfair trade purposes. When so unfairly used, such price cutting is attempted to be cloaked as lawful competition and justified by the Supreme court decisions.

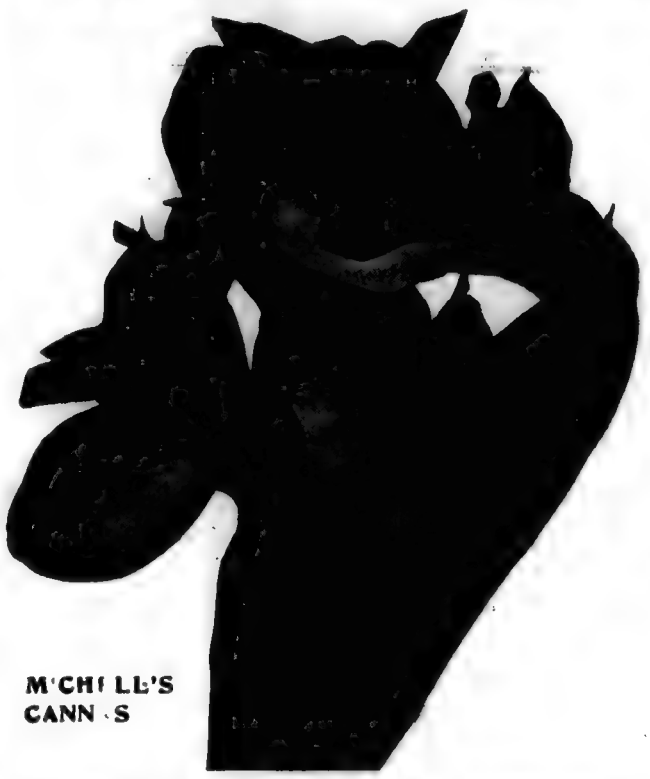
Perplexity in Present.

"Thus both price maintenance and price cutting, under certain conditions, are found to be unfair and business men are perplexed. It is with the desire that this perplexity may be terminated that the commission addresses the Congress.

"The consuming public does not enjoy benefit by unfair price cutting to compensate it for the injuries following demoralization caused by price cutting. This for the reason that, in the long run, unrestrained price cutting tends to impair, if not to destroy, the production and distribution of articles desirable to the public.

"There must be a common ground wherein the rights of producer, purveyor and consumer may each be fully secured and equity done to all. The search for such a ground has been a task of the commission and results in the following conclusions:



(1) That producers of identified goods should be protected in their intangible property right or good-will.

(2) That the unlimited power both to fix and to enforce and maintain a resale price may not be made lawful with safety.

"Bills now pending before the Congress may well be made to meet the difficulties of the situation if amended to provide for a review of the terms of resale contracts and a revision of resale prices, by a disinterested agency.

To Legalize Fixed Resale Prices.

"Therefore, it is recommended that it be provided by law that if the manufacturer of an article produced and sold under competitive conditions desires to fix and maintain resale prices, he shall file with an agency designated by the Congress, a description of such article, the contract of sale and the price schedule which he proposes to maintain, and that the agency designated by the Congress be charged with the duty, either upon its own initiative or upon complaint of any dealer or consumer or other party in interest, to review the terms of such contract and to revise such prices, and that any data and information needful for a determination be made available to such agency.

"Such legislation would seem to be in accord with the spirit of the times in that it is designed, by removing this perplexity, to promote the efficiency of manufacturing and commercial institutions and so to serve the interest of the consuming public."

In addition to attracting much attention at the funeral, the design gained Mr. Fenker a nice notice in the local paper.

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Plans for 1919.

There is no doubt that florists generally have faced a rather poor condition of business this year. Our publicity committees realize that this is the main reason for the shortage, small though it be, in the $50,000 which it was expected could be raised for the first year of our campaign. We are over $4,000 short of planned requirements. The florists' industry has gone "over the top" in practically all other "drives" but its own.

It would be unpatriotic to criticize, and yet it may be pointed out that the florists who did contribute to the fund are unanimously of opinion that business would have been much worse this year had it not been for the campaign. Being financially interested in our movement, they have made it their business, through inquiry and comparisons, to determine for themselves the value of our work. And they are satisfied to continue their subscriptions for another year, and the year after, and then another year.

There's faith for you!

No Time Like the Present.

We are now in the closing days of 1918. Florists are anticipating an unusually good Christmas trade, and prospects for a prosperous year are exceedingly bright. It is a good time for all who have allowed the present year to pass without making a subscription to the fund to sit down and write a check for a 1919 contribution. Better still, fill out our form, sent on request, covering an annual contribution for three years.

A prominent retail florist said the other day, "Why make three or four years the term of the campaign? You may have my support as long as I am in business. The movement is the best ever instituted in the florists' industry, and should never stop. Why halt at an expenditure of $50,000, when $100,000 would double the benefit and put flowers where they ought to be—on every home table, every day in the year?"

There's the rub. With a little less than our planned amount we have barely scratched the surface of possibility. But the scratching was deep, as we have discovered. With more money we could "brand" instead of "scratch" our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," on the public mind, and it would stay—as long as we renewed the branding.

It is up to the trade to make this possible. The committees have a fine working organization, but it is money only that will keep the machinery go-

CHRISTMAS CONDITIONS.

Business Bound to Bulge.

If there is any class of men who ought to feel at peace with the world and have nothing but good will toward their fellowmen at this Christmas season, it is we florists. Peace has brought to us the only thing we needed to make our sense of contentment complete—the lifting of the restrictions on our business. At the same time the demand for flowers never was greater, nor were prices better for the grower or retailer. We now have something on the munitions manufacturers, who have been waxing fat during the last four years. Their era of prosperity is about past; ours is ahead of us.

There is a fly in our ointment, but it won't stay there long. Stock, both cut and potted, is not in as large supply this Christmas as we could wish; in fact, there won't be enough to supply the demand. And it is discouraging to have to turn away customers. But what stock we have will bring just as much money as a larger supply did a year ago. For proof remember what happened at Thanksgiving, three weeks ago.

This Christmas will bring into play all the ingenuity that is at the command of the resourceful florist. He will take what he has in the way of supply and make the most of it. And when it is considered that Christmas buyers will be more numerous and have become accustomed to paying the price demanded, there is a practical certainty that everything the flower store has in stock will be moved.

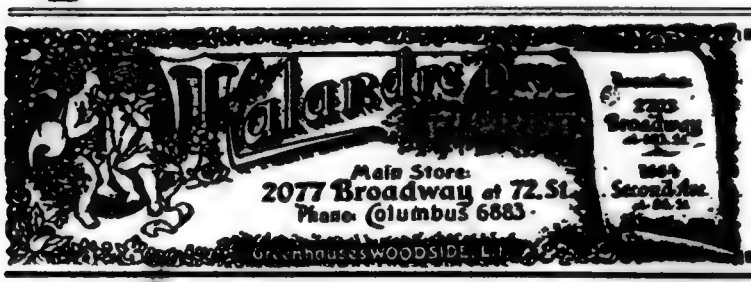
The Cut Flower Supply.

What would in most seasons be a fairly good supply of cut flowers is available this year. There are many of the large growers who planted the usual number of roses, curtailing their production in other directions to meet the fuel restrictions. Carnations, too, will be in considerable supply. But the plants are conspicuous by their absence—absence in numbers, that is. There are lots of them, but not nearly the quantities that we could sell if we had them.

With this situation confronting him, the resourceful man turned to the supply houses for much of his Christmas stock. Ruscus, roping, frieze, bells, stars, poinsettias and the other artificial things will be used to fill up the gap caused by the absence of the real things.

These things are as closely associated with Christmas as are the greens. Lycopodium is scarce and holly more so. Mistletoe is in something near a normal supply. Prices on all this stock are higher than usual, as they are on everything else. But the customers paid the advance at Thanksgiving and everyone cleaned up. The same conditions will prevail at Christmas.

Keep Up the Advertising.



While many of us, under present conditions, are sitting back waiting for the business to come to us, rather than going out after it, we all ought to remember that big things are just ahead. The leaders in the trade, who see farther than the end of their noses, did not eliminate their Christmas advertising. Instead they will consolidate the gains they have made and attack the public with more vigor, believing that the partial success already won should be turned into a complete victory for flowers at Christmas and all other times.

The S. A. F. publicity campaign has been pointed so that the final and heaviest broadside of the first year is being turned on the public to stimulate Christmas flower buying. Some 10,000,000 people buy and read the magazines that are carrying the Christmas command to "Say It with Flowers." Hundreds of florists will deliver the same message to their fellow townsmen through the local newspapers, many of them using the S. A. F. copy and illustrations.

It is human nature to want the things we can't get and should there be more buyers than stock, the next holiday will

F. T. D. WARNING.

Because of the shortage of flowers and blooming plants, Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D., has sent a warning relative to the transfer of orders for Christmas to all members of the association. The warning says:

Never before at any holiday was it so necessary to remind all our F. T. D. members to use their good judgment in sending out F. T. D. orders to be filled in other towns.

The scarcity of flowers and blooming plants warrants all our members to eliminate as much as possible small orders amounting to $2 or $3, as they will be hard to fill in some sections of the country.

Be sure to instruct all your clerks taking orders to be delivered in other towns to be frank with their customers and state facts.

not been so scarce for many years. The markets are cleaned up early each day. What remains of the late chrysanthemums finds a good demand and the quality of the stock is good. A few Major Bonnaffons are seen, but the majority are Chadwick and Golden Chadwick and Eaton. The supply of violets is sufficient to meet present demands, but the high prices keep down sales. Social events and parties have not yet started and the need of corsages has not been felt. Stevia is on the market and sells rapidly. The scarcity of carnations is felt throughout this locality and top prices for good stock are from 8 to 10 cents. Cypripediums and cattleyas are seen and callas are becoming more plentiful. Easter lilies are selling well. Sweet peas are not making much of a showing as yet. Roses hold much the same, with long-stemmed stock predominating and bringing good prices, almost equal to those reached at Christmas. White roses are scarce, but there are plenty of pink. Columbia is the most popular, with September Morn a close second. Russell, Shawyer, Prima Donna, Champ Weiland, Sunburst, the Wards, Ophelia and the Killarneys are among the daily shipments and all sell well. Calendulas and mignonette move nicely, although the supply is not large. More than the usual demand is noticed this season for strawflowers, the better helichrysums bringing from $20 to $30 per thousand. A number of Christmas orders have been received and, according to present indications, it looks as though the Christmas trade would be heavy. The greenhousemen report that their stock of potted plants is in fine condition, with a splendid assortment of Jerusalem cherries, begonias, poinsettias, cyclamen, heathers and primulas. Christmas greens are not arriving in abundance and it is feared that the supply may be limited.

Various Notes.

The store formerly occupied by Max the Florist, on Lyell avenue, will be reopened during the week of December 15 by E. C. Colegrove, formerly of Child street.

Mr. Brothers, until recently with the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., is now with J. B. Keller Sons, as head designer.

Among visitors to the trade this week were: George Brown, of Utica, N. Y.; H. E. Brandt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; R. E. Blackshaw, vice-president of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; B. A. Snyder, of Boston, Mass., and R. H. McKerr, of Canandaigua, N. Y.

The Rochester Florists' Association held its first meeting of the season December 9 at the Musicians' Headquarters. Charles E. Zoller, a color photographer of fine taste, gave an interesting lecture, with colored photographs, of California and the Pacific coast, to a large audience composed of members and their wives. The views were most interesting, all of the plates having been imported for Mr. Zoller's work. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening's entertainment.

During the week new, up-to-date fixtures and counter cases have been installed in the new seed store of Hart & Vick, Inc., on Stone street. The woodwork is finished in quartered oak, the walls and ceiling are decorated attract-many cases, large retail orders for Christmas and are sending fewer flowers to the wholesale market, but the principal reason is that numerous greenhouses, which a year ago grew flowers, have just finished crops of tomatoes, cucumbers or lettuce and will now be closed for the winter. Everything points to abnormal scarcity and high prices for Christmas.

Few growers are shipping heavy cuts of roses and prices have stiffened so that few short stems now go below $10, with the best grades of hybrid teas making $30 to $40 and American Beauty approaching the dollar mark. There will be a fair cut of Hadley and other red varieties for the holidays and Columbia is steadily improving as the winter advances. Carnations are aggressive and $10 is now the bottom quotation; as much as $20 is being asked for reds and deep pinks for Christmas. Chrysanthemums are falling off in quality, but flowers unsalable a year ago are now realizing good prices. Lilies are in better supply. Callas have advanced to $25 and are quickly sold out. Violets are scarce and supplies of sweet peas and valley are limited. Marguerites are less plentiful and little snapdragon is seen. Of stevia there is a good supply. Asparagus sells well. Cattleyas are scarce and easily command $12 per dozen, with higher figures in sight.

Pot-plant trade is good. There is an excellent supply of well grown plants and, owing to the high prices of cut flowers, retailers are pushing plants all they can. Cyclamens and begonias are the best sellers, but oranges, ardisias, heaths, Jerusalem cherries, poinsettias, primulas, freesias, etc., are all in demand.

Various Notes.

William H. Elliott is sending in from his Madbury, N. H., establishment a splendid lot of Hadley, Columbia, Ophelia and Miller roses, also a nice cut of the charming single Irish roses. At

Mr. Latham was always a keen and progressive young man and his friends are proud of his war record.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, has his carnation houses all in heavy crop at present. Matchless still leads as a white, but Crystal White is doing well. Pink Delight, Ward, Champion, Benora and other varieties are in fine shape. Stevia, both tall and dwarf, is being cut in quantity. Mr. Christensen says he finds but little difference in net returns

Francis P. King, formerly with James M. Tuohy, was drafted early in the war and trained at Camp Devens. He was among those who took an active part in the big drive started in July which ended the great war. He was severely wounded in action and is now at the U. S. Embankment hospital, Staten Island, N. He plans to start up eight large houses of roses toward the end of January and will devote others to tomatoes and cucumbers. At present he is doing a large business in evergreens and wreaths from material on his own woodlands.

William Mix, formerly salesman for the W. W. Edgar Co., who has been for some months in the army, has just returned home, having secured his discharge from a camp in Virginia. He will follow his old vocation again.

Penn, in his windows this week, in addition to his Christmas plant display, has paintings of some of the leading French generals and one of the noted Farre aeroplane paintings. Lorraine and Mrs. Peterson, also poinsettias and cyclamens for the Christmas trade.

The wholesale house of H. M. Robinson & Co. is a hive of industry at all times, but was never busier than now. In spite of the prevailing scarcity, a fine lot of cut flowers is always to be seen here and a great business is being done in evergreens and other Christmas decorations. W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There was no let-up in business last week. The retailers never were so busy as they have been this season, principally with funeral work. The wholesale market was fairly well supplied with stock, but the heavy local demand cleaned up the arrivals daily and many out-of-town orders had to be refused. High prices prevailed all the week and many of the retailers used artificial flowers in their design work. The clear, warm days the first part of the week brought an increased supply of flowers. Carnations were in limited quantities and the price went as high as $20 per hundred for the extra fancy stock, while the lowest price was $10 per hundred. The quality of the flowers was excellent.

Roses, too, had a heavy call and there were some fine flowers to be had. Russells, Ophelias and Columbias were the best, of course, while Wards and Killarneys were close seconds, the latter being in smaller supply, however. A few late mums were in the market and the best brought $4 per dozen. Bulbous stock is scarce and Paper Whites are up to $5 per hundred. Easter lilies and valley also have advanced in price, the supply being limited. Violets, usually abundant at this time of the year, are scarce and the demand holds the price up to $2 per hundred. Sweet peas also are in small supply and choice stock brings high prices. There is a good supply of calendulas and they sell well. All greens have advanced in price, as the supply is limited. All the wholesalers say there is a big demand for Christmas supplies.

Various Notes.

The committee in charge of the proposed Victory banquet held a meeting December 10 and decided to postpone the event until early in February. Another meeting will be held in January to make the plans for the banquet.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., president-elect of the S. A. F., is in Detroit, where he met Secretary John Young. They will talk over plans for the convention to be held in that city next August. Mr. Ammann is now a grandfather, a child being born recently to his daughter, who lives in Chicago. He will visit them on his return trip.

William Brinkman, the Arsenal Street Florist, had his store closed all last week, his family being sick with the influenza. The store and home were placarded with warnings.

Henry G. Berning spent a few days in the Chicago market last week. He reports that conditions there are similar to those in St. Louis.

Both W. C. Smith and Mrs. Smith were confined to their home last week with mild cases of influenza. They are improving rapidly and Mr. Smith expects to be back on the job this week.

Mrs. F. W. Bruenig is not worrying over the high price of carnations, as there is a big cut at the range in Columbia, Ill. She reports large funeral orders last week.

Mrs. Max L. Pelletier has the sympathy of her friends among the florists in the death of her sister last week. The funeral was held from the family home December 14.

this department never was so busy as it has been this season.

Albert Senger, the Lexington avenue grower, has a lot of poinsettias, cyclamens, begonias and cherries for Christmas. Most of them are marked "Sold" to the local trade.

Oscar Ruff was back in the wholesale market after an illness of two weeks with influenza.

Walter Young, of C. Young & Sons Co., is at home on a furlough from Paris Island. He will remain during the holiday rush.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held January 9. While the spring flower show has been abandoned, plans for a fall show will be discussed.

Oscar Killes, aged 22 years, employed by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. during the last two years, died December 5. The funeral was held from the home of his parents December 9. He was well known to the trade. J. J. B.

NEWPORT, R. I.

At the meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, December 10, Alexander MacLellan read an interesting and instructive paper entitled, "Plant Exclusion an Accomplished Fact." Mr. MacLellan has been elected treasurer of Aquidneck Grange, of Middletown.

Andrew K. McMahon has been reelected quartermaster by the Lawton-Warren Post, G. A. R.

Roland Fry and family have removed from Middletown to Southington, Conn., where he has taken a position on a large farm devoted to pomology.

After a week's illness, Mrs. Georgiana Cowles, wife of James S. Cowles, died December 8, at her home on Bateman avenue, in her sixty-fourth year. She had resided in Newport nearly forty years, her husband having been gardener for the late Fairman Rogers and later carrying on the business of gardening on his own account. Her son, Charles W. Cowles, has been gardener for Edward C. Knight for several years at his summer residence on Bellevue avenue.

John T. Allan has been appointed chairman of the Ward 4 committee for the Christmas Red Cross drive. James McLeish is a member of the Ward 5 committee.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Indications of a return to normal conditions, commercial, civic and social, are seen on every hand and are even reflected in connection with matters pertaining to the flower business. There is an increasing demand for cut flowers and potted plants for the home and plans are in progress for a larger number of elaborate social functions than for several years.

As there is also a disposition to furnish whatever coal is reasonably necessary for fuel purposes, several of the greenhousemen who had announced their intention of closing their ranges for the winter are now preparing additional benching so as to relieve the situation as far as possible. The recurrence of the influenza epidemic has caused an increase in funeral demands that is affecting the market materially.

Prices hold well, ranging above normal. While curtailed in variety, stock is coming along in better quantity and quality. Christmas greenery has made its appearance at prices above those of former years, but the demand is much greater and present rates undoubtedly will advance before the season closes.

Various Notes.

Oliver H. Williams, of Hartford avenue, is making preparations for a trip to Florida next month.

William E. Chappell, of Branch avenue, was confined to his home last week by a severe cold.

The flower department in S. S. Kresge's store, Westminster street, has been enlarged for the holidays.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., made a business trip through Connecticut last week.

H. C. Neubrand was in the city last week representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

E. D. Tucker, of Saylesville, has opened a retail store at 128 Broad street, Pawtucket, for the holidays.

Edward Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., made a trip through northeastern Massachusetts last week after Christmas stock.

Timothy O'Connor had a large number of pieces for a funeral at East Greenwich last week, three auto deliveries being requisitioned to make the trip.

Frederick Dietz has changed the heating apparatus in his greenhouses on French street from coal to oil.

The Abbott Decorating Co. has received considerably larger amounts of Christmas greens than usual this season. W. H. M.

CUT out our geranium ad. All sold out after first insertion.—Hammerschmidt & Clark, Medina, O.

PLEASE cut out my pelargonium ad in the Classified section. The Review surely played up on the bit and cleaned the whole stock up.—C. L. Humphrey, Zanesville, O.

I AM completely sold out. The little ad sold over 18,000 bulbs in four days. On the first insertion I received two orders from customers nearer Chicago before I received my own copy of The Review.—Squire Buster, Wilmington, O.

What do you think she thought?

When a cultured woman customer heard one of your clerks come so far from the right pronunciation of the name of a flower or plant that she did not recognize it, what do you think she thought of your store? Sometimes, too, your clerks are "off" on the spelling of technical names. In either case the will quickly solve your troubles. It spells the names correctly and tells how to pronounce them. It is a little book in both size and price, but it is invaluable to every florist. It costs only 25 cents.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Anticipation runs high that the coming Christmas season is to be the most successful in the history of our business, owing to the reaction following the depression of the war. This expectation seems to be justified, inasmuch as many people who have been holding onto their money are now spending more freely. The thousands of soldier and sailor boys, also, who have returned from service in home and foreign fields, already have begun sending posies to their mothers, sweethearts and sisters, as if eager to make up for lost time; all of which augurs well for the trade. However, and this is an important consideration, flowers of all varieties continue scarce, while prices, of course, as a result are high.

Various Notes.

James J. Higgins says he is to have his "first real Christmas in twenty-one years." Accompanied by his family, he left December 15 to visit Mrs. Higgins' sister, Mrs. C. A. Hine, of the Winona hotel, Winona, Minn. Mrs. Higgins and the two children will remain for two months, while her husband will leave for home during the holidays, stopping en route in Chicago to attend the semiannual convention of the salesmen of the A. L. Randall Co.

George C. McCallum has been transferred from the Chicago Naval Training School to New York city for ocean-going service, taking rank as third quartermaster. After two months of deep water experience, he expects to take the examination for the office of ensign. Earl J. Hunkle has returned to the salesroom of the McCallum Co., following three months of essential labor with the Westinghouse Union Switch & Signal Co., at Swissvale, Pa.

Beckert's Seed Store has its stock of foreign bulbs well cleaned up and everything in shape for the mail order season, beginning the middle of January. The new secretary, Adolph Kruhm, who also serves as buyer and sales manager, is now compiling his third catalogue for this firm.

Charles Nieman, the Philadelphia importer, called on the trade last week.

The proprietors of the store formerly known as the Empire Flower Shop, in the Empire building, have decided to change the firm name to McGrath & Langhans. The absent, although not silent partner, Mr. Langhans, is still at Camp Forest, with no prospect of an early return home. As usual, Mr. McGrath has engaged seven or eight students from the University of Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Institute of Technology for the holiday season. During this time and the Easter season the firm does a capacity business in poinsettias and other Christmas and Easter plants, grown by the Blind Floral Co., the original proprietors, at the farm near West View.

After an absence of two months due to influenza, Miss Essie Reilly, of Braddock, has returned to Randolph & McClements. Two other sisters, Mrs. Thomas Reilly Cavanaugh and Miss Cecelia Reilly, also have returned to Johnston's Braddock store. Their brother, Raymond W. Reilly, who was decorated for bravery during scout service in No Man's Land, is now with the Fifth Division of the regular army in Germany. Mr. Cavanaugh, who was After five months' service at Camp Dix, N. J., John Demas is expected to return soon to his position with Harris Bros. The members of this firm are his uncles.

Louis Minsky, former manager of the Grand Flower Shop, has resigned to locate with the Philadelphia Florists, in the Fifth avenue arcade.

James L. McCarthy has returned to the salesroom of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Inc., after a three months' course in the motor transport work at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Mr. McCarthy was ready to leave for Camp Greenleaf when the war ended.

The John Bader Co. donated 20,000 vegetable plants to the War Gardens Commission, according to the report of J. H. Weisman, field secretary, which states that the lands supervised by the commission included 719 plots and the returns from crops totaled $42,000.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The weather during the week has been mild and cloudy, more like spring than early winter, and the report is prevalent that if the coming week should bring clear days, the cut of carnations will be all that the growers could expect. Of course this will not alter the shortage of stock for Christmas. That is too decided. The demand is beginning to be evident. Orders for cut flowers already are being booked. Among the working classes the demand will be great for plants. The cut flower market is out of reach of the average buyer, but plants selling from $1 to $2.50 are popular and will be profitable to the retailer who handles them to advantage; for instance, a primrose, a cherry plant or a common begonia, with pot cover and a tie of attractive ribbon for $2 or $2.50.

It is evident that if the retailer doing $5,000 to $20,000 yearly business wants to get his share of the profits the trade is due to make, he must be resourceful and get good prices for plants. The larger retailers always get their prices. Cut flowers are going to be extremely scarce, since they have been so for some time, and their prices are going to be out of the reach of a large percentage of buyers.

During the week the stock arriving has been soft, on account of the dark weather. Carnations have struck high tide at $10 and $12 per hundred. Mums are still coming in and they are bringing prices undreamed-of by growers. A good quantity of stevia is arriving. It sells for $1.50 and $2 per hundred. The only roses that have had a chance to be vased and put in the icebox for some time have been special American Beauties.

Various Notes.

Leo Neubeck lost his wife December 8. Mr. Neubeck is the owner of the Connecticut Flower Shop, Connecticut street. He is the son of L. H. Neubeck, Main street. Mrs. Neubeck was ill but a short time.

Galley Bros., Genesee street, are having a great demand for baskets filled with strawflowers of various colors. Both windows are filled with them. They are novel and attractive.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Santa Barbara, Cal.—Two well known men of this city are starting a florists' and seed business, with every prospect of success. They are K. B. Van Woert and E. Malis. The firm will be known as the Santa Barbara Seed Co. A fine location has been secured at 818 State street, in the center of the business district. The firm purposes to handle all classes of seeds and bulbs, also supplies for nurserymen and gardeners. There is no firm doing this as a specialty in the city, and it looks as though these young men have an excellent opening before them. The neighboring cities, like Montebello, are the sites of many fine estates.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Another week of good local business and an exceptionally heavy week of shipping have brought stock down to the vanishing point. Orders had to be refused repeatedly by wholesalers and some of the stock used in funeral work was of the poorest description. The better class of stores, of course, do not descend to this kind of business, but, unfortunately, there are many that do. Roses are improving both in quantity and quality and bringing satisfactory prices. Carnations are of medium quality and there is not sufficient good stock to go around. Scotch heather, as Erica melanthera is known on the market, is getting better in color and consequently sells more rapidly. There probably will be a good supply for Christmas and it will help out, with the scarcity of other stock.

The greens and holly situation as yet is indefinite and orders do not come so freely as usual, owing to the higher prices, but doubtless the demand will be here before the holidays.

Good plants are likely to be scarce for the holidays. There are some extra fine cyclamens in several establishments, while in others a disease of some undetermined kind has caused a great deal of bud-dropping. A well known nurseryman gives it as his opinion that a nematode on the roots is responsible for the damage. He cites an instance of several years ago when a grower of outdoor cyclamen seed had to give up the culture of this plant on account of the ravages of this worm. Thrips also has been making trouble in other establishments. There will be a good supply of fine potted poinsettias, a fair number of begonias and only a few azaleas. Ericas are also in the market, besides ferns and foliage plants.

Club Meeting.

The first meeting of the Florists' Club since the closing order was rescinded took place at Christopher's the evening of December 11, with President Borden in the chair and J. Austin Shaw, of New York, the guest of the club. Besides these, there were present W. Armacost, A. Goldenson, H. R. Richards, H. N. Gage, T. Wright, F. H. Howard and John Polder. Such a small attendance was disappointing, but an enjoyable evening was spent. The flower show committee reported the failure of its efforts to arrange a show at the Liberty fair at so late a date and the secretary read its letter of resignation. J. Austin Shaw gave a pleasing short address, mentioning the fact that for twenty-five years he had missed only three meetings of the New York Florists' Club. He also gave some interesting data and experiences. Incidentally he mentioned the pleasure he already had enjoyed in his short stay in California and paid a compliment to our climate. He also recited an original poem on roses, which was heartily received. The matter of fake insecticides was brought up and several members gave their experiences with the product of a local manufacturing concern that has proven effectual in killing many plants. The secretary was instructed to write to this firm, registering a complaint on behalf of the club, and requesting it to give more attention to perfecting the spray before further distribution of it. President Borden had to leave early and placed the meeting in the hands of Vice-president Armacost, who conducted it from that time. A motion made by Fred Howard and seconded by T. Wright, that the meeting scheduled for December 24, coming so near Christmas, be abandoned and the next regular meeting be held the second Tuesday in January, was carried. After discussion on various other topics the meeting adjourned.

Various Notes.

In the note on the Liberty fair exhibits last week the writer unintentionally omitted mention of the display made by E. D. Sturtevant, the veteran water lily and aquatic plant grower, of Hollywood. Mr. Sturtevant had a circular tank with a fountain in which were some of the finest of his rare and valuable species and hybrids of lilies. For so late in the season the display was wonderful and a great credit to the growers. An ornamental fountain in the center proved attractive and the edges of the pond were decorated with fine ferns by F. R. Hills.

At Lincoln park everything was found in excellent condition. Although flowers are scarce, owing to frost outdoors, the indoor stock is attractive. Some fine plants of Cattleya Trianæ, Percivaliana and others of C. labiata types were in full flower in the conservatory and a large number of spikes are forming on Lælia superbiens, many of them eight or nine feet long. Mr. McGillivray is working up an excellent stock of crotons, pandanus, dracænas and other foliage plants and some young stock of the royal palm, oreodoxa, are fine for outdoor decoration. This palm should be grown more inside, for, though tender, it is one of the most graceful when young, and is a rapid grower.

F. Lichtenberg and C. Gutting left this week for a fishing and hunting trip and at last reports were snowed in up in the mountains.

The L. A. Floral Co. has taken a large store directly opposite the Fourth street store as an overflow for the Christmas trade, especially in greens, wreaths and berries. A fine stock is shown.

W. Armacost & Co. is sending in extra fine roses in all varieties, possibly the finest stock ever grown around Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Chase, of Derry, N. H., left December 11 for home by the southern route.

A. Ecke reports the biggest business he has ever done on poinsettias, notwithstanding the loss of some of his plants in the recent wind storm. He says the later stock looks fine and he predicts a big Christmas business.

J. Austin Shaw, long connected with The Review as its New York correspondent, is living in Hollywood, where he probably will stay for the winter. He already is boosting for California with the energy of a native son or a real estate agent.

S. Murata & Co. report a record-breaking business, but, owing to scarcity of stock, not all the orders sent in could be filled. Orchids have been in big demand.

Purdie & Co. have a window display which continues to attract crowds of pedestrians and is a great credit both to Mr. Purdie and Mr. Schneider. In fact, these young men have made a most promising start in the year they have been in business and everyone wishes them a continuance of their success.

Nurserymen report an awakening in business and the prospects are bright.

SAN FRANCISCO

The Market.

More demand than flowers is the situation here, which is a peculiar condition for this market at this time of the year, or, for that matter, for any time of the year. It is not simply a question of flowers being scarce, nor, on the other hand, of the demand being unusually heavy, but a combination of the two. Everything cleans up, regardless of price or quality, and the growers and wholesalers report orders galore that they cannot fill. Not only do they hate to lose the business; what seems to concern them more is having to disappoint their customers. The size and number of the telegraphic orders arriving daily indicate critical stock conditions and a big demand in other places also. Never before have the shipping orders called for such large quantities of flowers. For instance, customers who in former years ordered violets in ten and fifteen dozen lots now call for fifty and 100 dozen lots. Others do not specify any particular kind of flowers, orders reading as follows: "Ship $50 good flowers daily." As is bound to be the case under the circumstances, flowers, whether good, bad or indifferent, find buyers at stiff prices. The cold weather has a tendency to accentuate the shortage of flowers, although the weather man is not held entirely responsible for the present short supply. On account of the fuel restrictions, the labor shortage and other war conditions, the growers did not plant so heavily this year as usual and, furthermore, the heavy demand during the influenza epidemic caused exceptionally heavy cuttings for October and November. The outlook for Christmas stock is not altogether pleasing. It seems a foregone conclusion that cut flowers will be in light supply, compared with the demand, and it is generally conceded that the supply of flowering plants is not large. However, the trade is inclined to make the best of the situation, being confident that there will be enough stock to bring the total volume of business up to a high figure, considering the high prices which are bound to prevail.

Roses are the mainstay of the market, being the most plentiful item of stock. They are not sufficiently plentiful, however, to make up for the short supply of other seasonable flowers. The average quality leaves nothing to be desired. In fact, there was never a finer showing of Russell, Ophelia, Hadley, Shawyer and other varieties for the first half of December than have been offered this year. American Beauties are in their prime also. Carnations are extremely scarce; good ones, which could be bought at $1 a bunch last Christmas, now bring $1.25 and $1.50. The violet situation is acute also, the cold weather since Thanksgiving being held largely responsible for the short supply. The growers are not only charging more per bunch, but the bunches are smaller than usual. The supply of gardenias and orchids is equal to the demand, although more of each could be used on certain days. Cut cyclamen helps out in relieving the general shortage of flowers and the same may be said of Paper White narcissi and freesias, but these flowers cannot be expected to fill the big gap by any means. Cut poinsettias move freely.

Various Notes.

Having sold his interest in the firm of J. B. Boland and severed his connection with the store, Charles Shellgrain is preparing to engage in business for himself. He has secured a favorable location in the Sutter hotel building, a block from the Boland store, and across the street from Pelicano, Rossi & Co. The quarters are being nicely fitted up and Mr. Shellgrain expects to be ready for business at an early date. He has had long experience in the florists' business and has many friends to wish him success in his new venture.

Another new store is being opened in San Francisco. It is located on Market street, between Fremont and First streets, and will be operated by the C. C. Navlet Co., Inc., a large establishment of San Jose, Cal., which until a few months ago conducted a seed, plant and cut flower department in the Emporium, one of the largest department stores in this city.

C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., has been spending several days in San Francisco, calling on friends in the trade.

Francis D. Pelicano, son of Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., was released from the S. A. T. C. this week. In regard to business Mr. Pelicano says there is nothing to complain about except the difficulty in getting stock. He considers the outlook exceptionally good for the holiday trade.

The Art Floral Co. executed a handsome decoration for a Chinese-British banquet this week, using poinsettias and various other flowers. P. V. Matraia, head of the Art Co., fears the cold weather will have a bad effect upon Christmas stock.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray says she had fine Thanksgiving business and looks forward to Christmas sales being proportionately heavy. Not only is business good at her store on Geary street, but hotel business has picked up wonderfully in the last few weeks.

Albert O. Stein's force has been busy with funeral work and table decorations. Mr. Stein makes a specialty of decorations for social functions and he is pleased to see a revival in this class of work since the signing of the armistice.

Charles Stappenbeck, Polk street, reports a good neighborhood trade. He, in common with other merchants on that street, is encouraging the "Shop on Polk street movement," which has helped out considerably. Mr. Stappenbeck expects to have a fine cut of roses for Christmas.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee has fully recovered from the "flu" and is glad to have all her force back on duty also. The only thing to worry her now is inability to get stock to fill shipping orders. She says, "It would make you sick to see the telegrams coming in—people spending their money on wires, while we are not able to send them anything." In her opinion the shortage is easily explained, the primary factor being that the growers had no way of anticipating the abnormal demand which has developed in the last few months as a result of demonstrations that California flowers can be shipped to distant points without refrigerator service.

In regard to the rose situation, J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., says his firm is cutting a normal supply, but the demand is ten times as great as in former years; hence the shortage. He is prorating the daily arrivals among the firm's customers to the best of his ability, but even so, it is unsatisfactory in his opinion to have to cut down on orders, as there are bound to be disappointments and misunderstandings. Not only is the McLellan Co. cutting as heavily as possible in its own greenhouses, but it is buying from the outside also and withal Mr. Axell says it is impossible to cope with the demand.

but not enough flowers to fill them. Christmas business, as far as he can tell, will be restricted only by the amount of flowers and plants available for sale. He expects his whole family to arrive from Canada within a few days.

The Market.

Stock is in heavy demand, while hardly enough is received to make a display in the shops. Christmas trade prospects are excellent and, with prices back where they ought to be, the florists should fare well this season. The supply of holly is apparently unlimited. Mistletoe also is abundant. The shops are displaying Maud Dean, all the other mums being gone. This variety probably will be the only one with us for the holidays. The flowers are taken as fast as they open and prices realized will be at the top notch and the stock worth what is asked for it. The supply of carnations is shortening up on account of the cloudy weather.

Local florists who have received their shipments of French bulbs all have been greatly surprised at the mathematics employed to figure out transportation charges on their bulbs from New York. At the rates now in force on the railroads the total charges collected on delivery are more than 100 per cent in excess of rates guaranteed by the bulb men. A concerted effort will be made by local florists to find out who is to foot the bills for apparent errors.

Rahn & Herbert have fine Christmas stock at their greenhouses at Clackamas, including several houses of fine poinsettias, cyclamens and begonias. Flowers are scarce, with practically nothing coming into the market from the local growers. California roses are arriving in good shape, but mums, which are nearing the close of their season, are poor. They are a help, however, in making up funeral designs.

If the local retailers had to depend on local stock to carry on their business, they would have enough to supply them for half a day, perhaps, at a time. The

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

HEAVY spring importations of Holland nursery stock are assured.

THE nursery trade is of mixed mind in the matter of the exclusion of foreign plants, but it seems probable that only a small number of concerns can profit by it in the near future.

THE Greening Nursery Co., of Monroe, Mich., represented by Charles E. Greening, is developing the park system of Toledo, O., with gratifying success. The undertaking was difficult on account of the clay soil, but the Greening system of soil treatment has brought speedy and pleasing results.

"ONE GRAND RUSH" IN SOUTH.

The Texas Nursery Co., Sherman, Tex., had the largest fall business in its history, the company reports. "In the grand rush of shipping the largest fall business we ever have had, we have disposed of practically all our fruit stock, except that needed for spring orders," writes the secretary of the company. "We also have had some demand for items we cannot supply, such as Elberta peach and Compass cherry. The supply of ornamental and shade trees is good and while the demand is greater than in a number of years, there still are more than enough to go around. Evergreens are in stronger demand, with a limited supply."

MUST CHANGE THEIR METHODS.

W. W. Hoopes on Nursery Problems.

"Our retail business this fall is just the same as it was a year ago, but on account of a rise in prices, we did not have to handle nearly so much stock for the same amount of money," reports Wilmer W. Hoopes, treasurer of the Hoopes, Bros. & Thomas Co., West Chester, Pa.

"We usually have from 140 to 150 men working in our shipping season in the fall. This year the largest number we could get was eighty. We had to pay these eighty nearly the same amount that we paid the 140 a year ago. These eighty men, however, handled our business in just as good time as in 1917, on account of the smaller amount of stock which was necessary to fill the fall orders.

"Our wholesale business this fall was about seventy-five per cent better than last fall. We do not go after trade orders in the fall, as we have so much retail business that it is all we can do to get these orders off in time, and then get our stock into the cellars for spring orders.

Where Nurserymen Are Short-Sighted.

"The greatest trouble with the nursery business as we see it is that nurserymen have not advanced their prices in proportion to the rise in other commodities. This evidently comes from the old idea of nurserymen that price is the main argument by which to secure an order. They do not seem to think that quality counts for anything. The first thing they say to a customer when he asks the price is how cheap their goods are, and this has gotten so fixed in the purchaser's mind that he judges nursery stock by the price and not by the standard that all other goods are sold by. Where lumber for boxing has increased three times, fruit tree seedlings, in some instances, four times, wages once and a half, manure and all other commodities two to three times, it seems foolish to talk about a raise in prices of our goods that has only, in many cases, been from ten to fifteen per cent; and yet a nurseryman thinks, if he has done this, he has raised his prices tremendously. They all think of the old times and how much more they are making at the new prices, without thinking of the increased costs.

Losses Are Not Considered.

"The nursery business does not pay the amount of profit it should, taking into consideration the length of time it requires before the stock is ready for the market, during which time it is subject to droughts and freezing, and numerous other things that cause a serious loss. Then the largest loss of all, that is seldom taken into consideration, is that when the trees are grown and ready for market there is a tremendous amount of wastage; that is, trees that are not marketable for some cause or other—these are thrown on the brush pile. Then there are the trees that are not sold when they are at a marketable age; these also have to go on the brush pile. When all these losses are taken into consideration, the profit on what have been sold is cut down materially and someone has to pay for it, which is the nurseryman, who balances up his books at the end of the year and wonders where his profit has gone. He has been counting this up in both seasons, spring and fall, and feels confident he has made a lot of money until he balances up. It is certainly time for nurserymen to get their houses in order; the time when things can be put on a proper basis has arrived. There is going to be a scarcity of good stock in the nursery market for the next two or three years and prices should be so arranged that a good average profit can be made."

CONDITIONS AND PROSPECTS.

Asked about the supply of fruit trees and ornamental stock and what varieties are scarce and what plentiful this season, David C. Stranger, of the Cherry Hill Nurseries, West Newbury, Mass., said: "We are unable to give definite information on these points, and we feel that little can be ascertained unless it be the fact that American growers, with few exceptions, have more ornamental stock than they had last year. Fruit stock, however, is reported to be scarce and it would be safe to say that there is not more than sixty per cent of the amount of stock there was in this country in 1916.

"The present outlook is encouraging for the 1919 season, but according to our experience up to the present with the 1918 season, it reaches only two-thirds of the volume of business of the 1917 season. This seems to be the condition with most nurserymen whom we have talked with. As for the financial condition, we venture to say that the nurseryman who breaks even for the season of 1918 will be fortunate indeed.

"This may seem a pessimistic view, but when you consider the enormous shortage of labor, the amount of stock that has had to be neglected, and the general falling off in orders due to so much money being invested in the different liberty loans and the unwilling-ness of people to venture much money in ornamental work, you will readily see what we have said will be found true. We are optimistic, however, and look forward with much pleasure to doing a larger and better business in the years to come."

WEBER & SONS GET BIG ORDER.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo., was advised December 16 that it had been awarded the contract to furnish the trees, shrubs, vines and roses for the United States Housing Corporation, at Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island, Ill. The contract calls for something more than 22,000 ornamental shrubs and 4,500 ornamental shade trees, besides climbing vines and roses.

"This is going to keep us pretty busy for the next month getting ready to make delivery about the middle of March," says F. A. Weber, secretary and treasurer of the company.

"Owing to the influenza epidemic, we have been short of help, but business with us this fall has been as good as we could expect under the conditions," continues Mr. Weber. "We had all we could do with the small force of help we had and it is only lately that we have been able to get any stock dug for storage. We are pretty well along with this work now and if we can get four or five more good days will be in good shape for spring shipments. Fruit stock in general is scarce throughout this section. The demand is strong and we predict a general clean-up on all lines of fruit stock. Ornamentals are still quite plentiful in certain lines, while other lines are being pretty well cleaned up. We look for a large business next spring."

COAST NURSERY NOTES.

Tree digging is in progress at the Placer Nurseries, at Newcastle, Cal. The output is estimated at seventy per cent of normal, or 500,000 trees. A loggers' donkey engine has been secured to pull the digger, horsepower having been used in previous years. About seventy-five men are employed to handle the product.

Conferences planned for horticultural week at Riverside, Cal., early in November, but postponed because of the epidemic, are now announced by State Horticultural Commissioner George H. Hecke for next June, dates to be fixed later. The series includes the convention of the California Nurserymen's Association. M. M.

The war is over and there is joy in every home; your customers will want fine plants to decorate their festive boards and to make presents. EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

There is no let-up in funeral work, so, although there are good cuts of flowers, stock is still short of the demand. After a few rainy days, the weather has cleared and the prospects are good for a fair supply of flowers and plants for Christmas. Prices are high and probably will continue to be so for some time.

Various Notes.

William Gardner, superintendent of the city parks, died last week after a short illness with pneumonia, following the influenza. Mr. Gardner had been in Evansville four years and was well known to the florists of the city. He was a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural College. Three years ago Mr. Gardner married Miss Mildred White, of Bucyrus, O., his birthplace. The body was shipped to Bucyrus for burial.

Theodore Kuebler has his stand in the Municipal market well decorated with ferns, begonias and other plants for Christmas. All of the members of his family and his force have been ill with the influenza.

M. L. Lockyear, of the Lockyear Floral Co., visited Seubold's Greenhouses, at Huntingburg, last week in quest of stock.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann continues to have a heavy run of funeral work.

The William Blackman Floral Co. reports that funeral work is plentiful, but stock is not.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting some fine Columbia, Russell, Milady and Killarney roses. He expects the cuts to continue until Christmas.

Niednagel & Sons have a fine lot of carnations for Christmas.

Karl Zeidler is expected back from a hunting trip to Mississippi in time for the Christmas rush.

E. L. Fenton has received a card from Ernest L. Lutz, dated in Belgium. He expects to return early in February.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its annual banquet December 10 in Brenneman hall, with thirty members present. President Elmer J. Weaver appointed David Rose, Lemon S. Landis and Rudolph Nagle to take charge of the sports and entertainment. J. Wade Gayley, of Strasburg, carried off the first prize in the bowling contest, and A. F. Strickler was awarded the booby prize in the same game. Charles B. Herr, of Strasburg, won first honors in the card games. Billiards and pool were enjoyed by some of the members, while others visited together and discussed business matters.

The buffet lunch was enjoyed by all and A. F. Strickler and Lemon Landis were voted delightful hosts. Mr. Weaver's sweet cider was a delicious beverage.

A short business session was held afterwards, at which nominations for officers for 1919 resulted as follows: President, Elmer J. Weaver; vice-president, Lemon S. Landis; secretary, Albert M. Herr; treasurer, Harry K. Rohrer.

The January meeting of the club will be held in the club's rooms in the Chamber of Commerce. It will be a joint meeting with the Ladies' Auxiliary, which will assist in arranging a program for the occasion.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE FUEL SITUATION.

Easier in East.

There is a continually easing tendency in the fuel market, of particular advantage to florists in the eastern districts. A large part of the relief is due to the continued mild weather, but another part is due, of course, to the removal of the pressure of war work. This has been of special advantage to eastern growers in that it has relieved the demands on transportation. The fuel troubles in the east have been due as much to the lack of transportation facilities as to any shortage of coal.

While the Fuel Administration has taken off all restrictions on the greenhouse industry, eastern florists who have been burning anthracite are not yet able to buy fuel; this is because the domestic demand has not been satisfied. Growers are able to get enough bituminous coal, and it is having the effect of starting them on the work of reëstablishing their operations on the basis of full capacity.

Bituminous Abundant.

The fuel situation was much more serious in the east than in the middle west and growers in the east as a rule accepted the condition as likely to continue, whereas, western growers, instead of closing a large part of the glass as the eastern people did, went ahead with preparations as usual, trusting to their ability to get coal when they needed it. The western growers therefore now are in much better position than the trade is in the east.

In the middle west local bituminous coals are abundant; the railroad yards at Chicago are congested with cars of coal for which there is no immediate buyer. The same thing is true of other larger cities. Prices are not weakening except in an unimportant way, because the labor cost is so high the mine operator must maintain his rates. But buyers are learning that they do not now need to accept the low-grade coal and certain mines are finding it increasingly difficult to operate. Their closing will release additional labor for the mines producing better fuel and will have a tendency toward lower wages and lower prices for another season.

While the government has taken off all the fuel restrictions on florists, it has not yet canceled the zone plan by which distribution was controlled, and the smokeless coals are not yet going west.

dahlias and chrysanthemums to depend on, while now there is nothing but roses, carnations and the usual indoor stock and all of these are far short of requirements. The demand is above normal and the retailers are at their wits' end to fill orders. This is true also of the commission men; they have to take care of their customers as best they can with the supplies available. There is not nearly enough stock on the market to go around. For funeral work the stores are pushing palm leavcs, galax and magnolia leaves, anything to conserve cut flowers for the general trade, which is getting better every day.

From present indications this will be a greenless Christmas. Today the writer tried to place an order for cedar and laurel roping. The best price he could get was 15 cents per yard wholesale. When we remember that it used to go begging at 4 cents, we can easily realize there will not be much used. Holly is scarce and such as is seen has no berries. In fact, it looks as if stock of the sort the florists use at Christmas will be scarce, and at the same time the demand will be greater than ever.

Social functions are beginning to start up; the Monday Cotillion, formerly known as the Monday German, the principal social organization in the city, will hold but one dance during the winter. This will be February 22 and it promises to be one of the most elaborate affairs this organization ever held. The lateness of the date will prove a good thing for the florists. The first dance was usually held the early part of December; had it been held this year at the usual time it would have been impossible to get flowers. We can only hope that by Washington's birthday, conditions will be better.

the Maryland Sheep Growers' Association, the Maryland Vegetable Growers' Association and several other agricultural societies. The one in which my readers will be most interested is the Horticultural Society. The first session of this society was called to order in tbe Emerson hotel, by its president, William J. Johnston, December 10, at 9:30 a. m. Mr. Johnston delivered a stirring address, urging the members to larger horticultural development, now that peace has been declared. The meetings lasted three days and the speakers were the most noted horticulturists of the country.

Club Meeting.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its regular meeting December 9. William Lehr told of his visit, with a party of Philadelphia growers, to the ranges of many growers near Philadelphia. Among other things Mr. Lehr said he had noticed was the fact that, with curtailed labor, the stock in these establishments looks better this fall than last. One case he cited was a place that usually carried fifty-six men on its pay roll. This year it had but fifteen and yet he had never seen this place in better shape or more productive. Mr. Lehr is of the opinion that the florists generally have been in the habit of employing too much help. That is one of the lessons learned from the war.

George Talbott, who has been financial secretary of the club for many years, found it necessary, owing to business relations, to resign. The members tried to prevail on Mr. Talbott not to give up, but he was determined. President Vincent will appoint his successor at the next meeting.

Labor Conditions.

The florists who are having their troubles with the labor question will be glad to hear that the Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. will finish its contract with the government at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds December 15. This was a cost-plus contract, and the men worked overtime every day and Sundays. The government will continue the work and the schedule which will go into force December 16 will call for an 8-hour day for five days and a half-day on Saturday. This will affect 2,500 men, and as this concern is one that absorbed labor the florists needed, many will get their old help back. This week I heard of another case of released labor, that of Robert Young, who for fifteen years had been with Robert L. Graham at his Aisquith street store. Last spring Mr. Young was drafted and sent to Camp Meade. Mr. Graham did not know how he was going to get along without him, for he was a young man in whom he had every confidence and upon whom he could depend to take entire management of this part of his business. He was mustered out December 6 and is now holding down his old job and everyone is happy.

It will take both time and patience before those who have experienced similar hardships will look back upon them simply as a memory. Tate.

"WORDS FITLY SPOKEN."

The yuletide brings many a kindly thought, whether expressed in word or symbol. Expressions like the following coming to the editor in the midst of his labors for the ongoing of our vocation are the earnest of the good will abounding in The Review's large family of subscribers and the incentive that precludes weariness in well doing:

I agree most heartily with all florists that The Review is an absolute necessity for those engaged in any way in the florists' business. I wish The Review all success in its field of usefulness.—Mrs. J. M. Miles, Redfield, S. D., December 10, 1918.

The Market.

Weather conditions are unfavorable, with dark days and much rain. The Christmas outlook is not promising, as funeral work continues to clean up stock of all kinds each day, making it impossible to accumulate any surplus for the holidays. The quality of the stock coming in is excellent and better prices have never been received. Several local firms which were depending on buying Christmas plants out of town have not been able to do so, which is a great disappointment. Many boxwood plants in pots decorated with immortelles are shown and sell quickly. In fact, it is the opinion of most of the florists that these will all be sold out several days before the real rush begins. The local market is turning red with holly and the price is three times as high as last year. Mistletoe and Christmas trees are also coming in and find ready sale. This stock is fine.

Various Notes.

A. J. McNutt has the prospect of the finest Russell roses for Christmas.

A. H. Dailey has the only sweet peas on this market.

S. S. Skidelsky was a visitor this week and reports business exceptionally good.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., is cutting fine carnations and prospects for red carnations for Christmas were never better. This concern has four beds with 4,800 plants that are expected to produce 10,000 blooms in the next ten days. The variety is Beacon, which does well at this range. K. P. B.

CYCLAMEN.

Cyclamen. Now I am talking about a subject that I know interests you all. I have planted many hundreds of thousands of cyclamen seeds and sold plants in every state in the union and this is a subject on which I will try to interest you more than ever for several reasons; you will see this season again that every available plant that is salable will be disposed of and you could have sold more; again, owing to certain laws that are about to be put in operation (if I am informed correctly) will prohibit importation of azaleas, thus we will have to depend on domestic grown stock, and what is better adapted for Christmas sales than cyclamen?

If you have not seeded cyclamen for next season for your Xmas needs, then it would be wise for you to buy transplanted seedlings if you want to grow them yourself, or three or four-inch stock for May, June or July delivery. In either case it will be wise for you to place your order at once, for I am certain the same condition will prevail as last season, when we turned down orders for thousands and thousands of plants. Seed sown now will make good plants for later sales. Seed advertised in classified section for seeds.

Can offer you the cream of several hundred thousand seedlings for delivery as you desire as follows:

Seedlings, transplanted, separate colors, grown from the very best of seed obtainable, $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

Seedlings, transplanted, separate colors, grown from a very good commercial strain, but not as good as above, $6.00 per 100, $55.00 per 1000.

Cash. Money returned if sold out. Have booked many orders for 5000 and 10,000 lots.
A. M. Augspurger, 231 Gilbert Ave., Peoria, Ill.

125,000 Cyclamen seedlings, twice transplanted, 4 to 6 leaves, Wandsbek type, dark red, light red, white, salmon, also 3 shades of best pink. From home sown seed of the best cyclamen experts who sold 86,000 last year and not one complaint. No azaleas next Xmas. Be prepared, buy seedlings, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

Ferns. With stocks lower than ever, demand unprecedented, business increasing by leaps and bounds, will create a shortage never known before. Prices will be higher. Stock I offer is as good as the best. Consider quality first.

GERANIUMS.

Geraniums. You have not experienced anything just quite the present situation regarding geranium stock in the past twenty years; 60 days ago you could have bought all the geraniums you needed at $20.00 per 1000 out of 2-in. pots; today you cannot procure them at almost twice the price. There are still a few to be had, but you must pay the price to get them; on the other hand, adjust your selling price next spring accordingly. One prominent Chicago grower (you would all know him if I mentioned his name) told me that they were going to ask $15.00 per 100 for 4-in. geraniums wholesale the coming season, and they will get it; another grower up north told me just last week that he was going to retail his 4-inch stock at $3.50 per doz.

I can still supply some stock, but to be on the safe side send in order at once. January delivery.

Prince of Wales is destined to be the best florist's cut flower gladiolus ever known. Color, a clear, gorgeous, glistening salmon, melting to throat of the sweetest yellow. The Ophelia Rose of the gladiolus world. Extremely early (just after Pink Beauty), large flowered on tall, strong spike and grand multiplier. Every spike a bouquet. Excellent forcer, weeks ahead of America. I believe that I have the largest TRUE stock in America and can offer strong, flowering bulbs for propagating, 4 for 50c, $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100. Grow it once and you'll want a thousand. Raymond M. Champe, Walled Lake, Oakland County, Mich.
